VITALE, 2 OTHERS HERE REPORTED IN INTERNATIONAL NARCOTICS RING

John J. Vitale, Mafia gangster who has become a key figure in the investigation of a reported contest for control of gambling activities in this area, is one of three St. Louis hoodlums who are members of an international ring bringing illegal shipments of heroin, a narcotic, into this country, the Post-Dispatch was told today.

Vitale was questioned and released yesterday by St. Louis county authorities in the expanding inquiry that followed shooting at the automobiles of Birney T. (Chick) Haver Jr. and Kenneth Mueller, former associates of Frank (Buster) Workman.

Others Reported in Ring. Reportedly linked with Vitale in the importation of heroin into the St. Louis area are Anthony Joseph Giardano and Anthony (Tony) Lopiparo, also members of the Mafia, Italian secret society.

They are said to be making large profits through sale in this area of 10 per cent of shipments of heroin sent illegally into the United States through eastern ports.

The heroin comes from European outlets, with Charles (Lucky) Luciano, deported gangster now in Italy, handling the overseas financial arrangements for obtaining the narcotic, it was reported.

Vitale, Giardano and Lopiparo have so far carefully managed their narcotics business by remote control, to avoid being prosecuted for violation of federal laws, but authorities are convinced they are the men behind the shipments of heroin into this area.

$20,000 for 10 Pct. Vitale, Giardano and Lopiparo are said to have paid as much as $20,000 on occasion for their 10 per cent share of heroin shipments received in New York, Philadelphia, Boston and other eastern cities, and at times at New Orleans.

The price of the drug on the illegal wholesale market ranges from $400 to $600 an ounce. When the St. Louis gangsters get it, the heroin is virtually in pure form, but it is adulterated by use of sugar before being sold to addicts.

On an average, the narcotic is "cut" to the extent that the volume is increased 10 times. In St. Louis dope addicts pay $250 an ounce for heroin—$50 more than charged on the illegal market in Chicago.

$60,000 Profit. On a $20,000 shipment of heroin, Vitale and his fellow gangsters could make a profit of between $60,000 and $100,000, less money paid to "pushers" and other handlers.

The heroin sent to the United States through the international ring is shipped in by ship passengers, who hide it on their person, or through false bottoms of containers. Illegal heroin has been found by customs officers in containers for ship manifests.

The ring shifts the source of its supply in order to avoid detection. At present, most shipments are reported coming from Continued on Page 6, Column 1.

COUNTY TRANSIT GETS OK TO DROP 146 TRIPS WEEKLY

All 13 Bus Lines Affected—Mostly Early Mornings, Late Afternoons, Late Evenings.

By BOYD F. CARROLL
Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 24.—The Missouri Public Service Commission today authorized St. Louis County Transit Co. to drop 146 one-way bus trips its weekly transit operation schedules, effective June 6.

All 13 bus lines of the company in St. Louis county are affected by the reductions in service, which will remain in effect until changed or canceled by the commission. The cuts were sought as an economy measure.

The reductions approved conform with those requested by the company in a recent application, based on anticipated operating losses from reduced patronage.

80 Daily Trips to Be Ended. The 146 trips include 80 daily trips Monday through Friday, 53 Saturdays and 11 on Sundays. The trips to be eliminated are mostly those in the early morning, late afternoon and late evening hours.

The 146 trips include 80 daily trips Monday through Friday, 53 Saturdays and 11 on Sundays. The trips to be eliminated are mostly those in the early morning, late afternoon and late evening hours.

Headways—the time interval between buses—would not be lengthened during peak hours by the reduction in trips except in the case of the Valley Park line where a number of extra runs are being eliminated, the company said.

Company witnesses testified in a hearing last May 11 that the company would lose about $12,200 this year, based on present riding volume, if no reductions were made in operating costs.

Granting of the requested service reductions, it was estimated, would enable the company to earn a net profit of about $4500 this year. The loss for the first three months of this year was placed at $2312.

Commission Statement. "In our opinion, the public will not be unduly inconvenienced by the proposed changes and the savings in operating costs from reduced mileage should assist the company in improving its financial position," the commission said.

Company officers said in the recent hearing the company would restore any of the discontinued trips if the public would not be unduly inconvenienced by the proposed changes and the savings in operating costs from reduced mileage should assist the company in improving its financial position," the commission said.

Missouri Banker Has Lent $6000 To Youngsters, Never Lost a Cent

STURGEON, Mo., May 24 (AP)—Johnny Sydow started out in the sheep business at the age of 8 with $53 in his pocket and good intentions. Now, at 12, he has five ewes and a purebred sow as capital livestock, is earning profits from their offspring, and doesn't owe anyone a cent.

URGES PROPERTY OWNERS TO VOTE FOR BOND ISSUE AS INVESTMENT

President of Real Estate Board Says Benefits Will Far Outweigh Costs, Values Would Be Stabilized.

The $110,639,000 bond issue for municipal improvements is a good investment for property owners because the benefits will far outweigh the costs, Sam Michelson, president of the St. Louis Real Estate Board, declared today.

In a letter sent to St. Louis property owners, he urged passage of the bond issue in Thursday's special election, and explained why directors of the Real Estate Board have unanimously endorsed all 23 proposals in the program of improvements.

"We are in favor of the bond issue because it can remake the face of St. Louis," Michelson said. "It can materially relieve our traffic congestion by providing better streets and expressways. It can take truck traffic off our residential streets. It can improve our playgrounds, create new city parks, give us better street lighting, bring our fire department up to date, rehabilitate our older neighborhoods so they can resist blight and decay."

Meaning to Property Owner. "Now what does all this mean to a property owner? It means that the value of his property is stabilized. It means that he won't have to sit and see his property values go down because the city around him is decaying."

"It means that we will be paying for this with long-term bonds, rather than facing the prospect of being asked for a sizable increase in taxes to accomplish just a part of it."

"We think the benefits property owners will gain from this issue far outweigh the costs."

The Ministerial Alliance of Greater St. Louis, holding its annual meeting last night, voiced unanimous support of the bond issue to modernize St. Louis and appealed for passage of both the $110,639,000 program for general improvements and the $16,395,000 bond issue for improvements in the city's public schools.

"Every vote against the bond issue (for municipal improvements) is a vote for physical and moral decay and degradation. Every vote for the bond issue uplifts not only the physical face of the city and eliminates slums; it stimulates and improves the moral tone of the community; it strengthens our ability to provide wholesome outlets for energies of our youth, and to give constructive guidance and to their development as upright, honest and effective citizens of the future."

Survey on Tax Burden. Among the 17 American cities with population of more than 500,000, St. Louis has the lowest tax-supported debt per resident, the Government Research Institute, a fact-finding agency, reported yesterday.

Citing figures compiled for the institute by Dun & Bradstreet, Victor D. Branden, director of the research agency, said they show that St. Louis is able to finance the big bond issue without an undue burden on the taxpayer.

Per capita debt of the 17 cities, plus the debt of overlapping local governments such as counties and school districts, ranges from $320.06 for Houston, the highest, to $68.58 for St. Louis, the lowest.

"To put these figures at a more understandable level," Branden said, "the City of St. Louis is in much the same position as a thrifty home owner who has put off or neglected needed improvements and repairs in his home until he has paid off most of his mortgage."

"The city is also like the home owner who has put off or neglected needed improvements and repairs in his home until he has paid off most of his mortgage."

TREE IS STOLEN FROM FRONT YARD OF WOMAN'S HOME

NEWTON, Mass., May 24 (AP)—Police had a puzzle today. Who stole a 15-foot red maple tree from the front yard of Mrs. Mary F. Costello's home?

Mrs. Costello returned from a shopping trip yesterday to find a hole in the front lawn.

A neighbor recalled seeing four men in work clothes, with a truck and all sorts of special equipment, dig up the tree and haul it away with the tree company.

"The boss told us this was the tree," said Mrs. Costello.

Mrs. Costello remembered the dapper, polite man who called at her home Sunday, asking all kinds of questions about the tree.

"A real nature lover," said Mrs. Costello.

"A finger man," said police.

SCHEELE SAYS 'WE ARE CLOSE TO ANSWER' ON POLIO VACCINE

Discloses Tests of Cutter Serum Are Nearly Complete—Salk, O'Connor Join Conference.

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—Surgeon General Leonard Scheele said today "we are coming close to the time when we will have some answers" to the big questions about the polio vaccination program.

His statement was made at recess in a meeting of government scientists and advisers on the future of the vaccination program. Among those attending the session were Dr. Jonas Salk, chief developer of the vaccine, and Basil O'Connor, president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, which financed the research and the now stalled free inoculation program.

O'Connor yesterday publicly asked that the Government make a full report immediately of its study of vaccine produced by Cutter Laboratories of Berkeley, Calif. The vaccination program was halted for a check on safety standards when polio developed among children who had received the Cutter product.

Seeking an Answer. Scheele said: "During the period since the first incidence of polio among children who had received Salk vaccine, the mass immunization program has necessarily slowed almost to a halt. Very little new vaccine has been approved for release other than that released, as we have probed into the manufacturing and testing processes, seeking an answer to what if anything might have gone wrong and at the same time discussing present testing and production standards to determine their adequacy."

"We are coming close to the time when we will have some answers. The epidemiological picture is becoming clear, the tests on all lots of Cutter vaccine are almost completed, a complete reappraisal of each plant has been made, and a vast amount of extremely relevant data has been collected and is now being interpreted."

A Health Service spokesman said Scheele's statement was one that "sets the stage for a series of fairly rapid statements" on the vaccine situation to come out within the next few days.

Scheele said the Public Health Service is "working at top speed in an effort to find answers to the problem posed" by the occurrence of the polio cases among children who had received Cutter vaccine.

"No Easy Solution." He said that when the service "is sure of the medical and scientific facts" and of how they should be interpreted "its position will be made known to all public and professional groups."

"These are tremendously complex scientific problems which have no easy or immediate solutions," Scheele said.

Noting that today's meeting was being attended by the vaccine advisory committee of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, Scheele said the committee "all the facts that have been brought to light so far."

Scheele said the meeting also was attended by representatives of the American Medical Association and the Territorial Health Officers Association.

Scheele was asked for comment on a previous statement by Salk that "Scheele knows" why he (Salk) did not attend a meeting of Government scientists and advisers yesterday.

Scheele said: "Ask Dr. Salk; I'm not the person to say why he was not here."

O'Connor, asked by a reporter whether he is satisfied with the results of the meeting, said, "No comment."

In a speech in New York yesterday O'Connor spoke of "national and state policies" as complicating factors in the vaccine situation. He also mentioned supply, demand and "economic factors of competition" as being involved.

O'Connor complained that his foundation has had trouble getting information since April 12 when the results of last year's field tests were announced and the Government assumed direction of the program.

UTILITY SEEKS PERMISSION TO CUT RATES, GETS IT

SALT LAKE CITY, May 24 (AP)—Members of the Utah Public Service Commission may have been slightly startled by a request yesterday. But they did not show it. They went right ahead and granted it, post-haste.

The request, by the Windover Light & Power Co., was for permission to reduce its rates by more than 15 per cent.

Commission Secretary Frank A. Yeamans said the firm's application was "completely voluntary."

U.S. BARS NEUTRAL ROLE FOR DIVIDED OR UNITED GERMANY, DULLES ASSERTS

SENATE UPHOLDS VETO OF POSTAL PAY INCREASE

Carlson Says He Is Ready to Introduce New Bill for 8 Pct. Rise, in Line With Administration Proposal.

WASHINGTON, May 24 (UP)—The Senate today upheld President Eisenhower's veto of a bill which would have given 500,000 postal workers an average 8.8 per cent increase.

The vote closely followed party lines, with most Republicans voting to sustain the veto and most Democrats voting to override. A two-thirds majority was necessary to override the veto.

The Senate action killed the bill and made a House vote on the veto unnecessary. New legislation must be pushed through Congress now if the postal workers are to receive a raise.

Senate G.O.P. Leader William F. Knowland had assured the President earlier that his veto would be sustained.

CHLORINE PIPE BREAKS, FUMES ENDANGER TOWN

MONTAGUE, Mich., May 24 (AP)—Deadly chlorine fumes rolled in clouds from a broken pipe line at the Hooker electrochemical plant yesterday, endangering residents of this Lake Michigan resort community.

Some 300 school children were taken from class rooms and the town was alerted for mass evacuation before shifting winds ended the threat.

A liquid chlorine line sprang a leak. The chlorine hit the air, vaporized and formed clouds of gas. The glow of the gas clouds above the plant gave rise to a report a fire had broken out. There was no fire.

Four men were injured repairing the line leak. The $15,000,000 Hooker plant was completed two years ago. It produces chlorine and related products before shifting winds ended the threat.

2 U.S. STUDENTS FOUND DEAD ON BRITISH MOUNTAIN

EDINBURGH, May 24 (AP)—The bodies of two American students missing since Sunday were found today in a snow-filled gully on Ben Nevis, Britain's highest mountain.

The students were Frederick C. Hadden, 21 years old, of Pasadena, Calif., and Bert Woodburn, 21, of San Gabriel, Calif. Both were students at Edinburgh University.

Members of a Royal Air Force mountain squad who found them said both appeared to have died quickly from injuries suffered in falls.

The two young men set out Sunday morning to do some climbing on the 4406-foot mountain. When they failed to return, police sought them at shelter high up on the mountain. When they found no trace of them there, the R.A.F. men were called in.

EISENHOWER PLAYS GOLF WITH MIDDLECOFF, NELSON

WASHINGTON, May 24 (UP)—President Eisenhower played golf today with two former winners of the Masters tournament, Cary Middlecoff and Byron Nelson.

Middlecoff won this year's tournament at the Augusta National Golf Club where Mr. Eisenhower visits several times a year. Nelson won the Masters in 1937 and 1942. They played with the Chief Executive at the Burning Tree Club.

Mr. Eisenhower played last week with two other former Masters champions—Ben Hogan and Gene Sarazen.

When Mr. Eisenhower joined today's golf companions Nelson said, "I predict he will have a 68 today." The President laughed and shook his head. "Oh, no," he said. "You fellows shoot the 68 and I'll have an 80."

Paris to Washington Nonstop. WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—The Military Air Transport Service said today one of its planes has made the first scheduled nonstop passenger flight from Paris to Washington. The DC6 plane flew the 4110 miles in 16 hours and 25 minutes. It carried 53 passengers and a crew of 10.

U.S. CLARIFIES POLICY AFTER DOUBT ARISES ON AUSTRIA VIEW

Eisenhower Authorizes Secretary to Tell Bonn Envoy Remarks on Vienna Didn't Apply to Reich.

By GEORGE H. HALL
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 24.—The United States has ruled out a neutral role such as Russia proposes for the new German republic or a Germany that might some day be united through the consolidation of the eastern and western zones, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said today.

Dulles told his press conference that President Eisenhower authorized by conveying the position of the United States on the matter to the German ambassador, Heinz Krekler. This government's policy was enunciated to clarify an uncertainty which arose after Mr. Eisenhower's press conference last Wednesday.

Questioned by Envoy. Dulles said at a press conference today that Krekler questioned him on the subject last Thursday night and that Mr. Eisenhower authorized Dulles to tell Krekler the President's remarks about Austria were not to be interpreted as implying a role of neutrality on the part of Germany. Dulles gave Krekler this information Friday morning.

The United States thinks neutrality is not for a country of the character of Germany, Dulles told reporters. He noted that Austria has a population of only about 7,000,000 persons and that no one could realistically believe the strategically-situated German nation of 70,000,000 people is designed to play the role of a neutral country.

The President had said the recent agreement on the neutralization of Austria did not mean Austria would be disarmed but meant that Austria was in effect committed to maintaining its neutrality by arms if necessary. The question that came up was whether this concept might apply to Germany in connection with forthcoming talks with the Soviets.

Asked how he would view the establishment of a group of neutral states to the east of Germany as a sort of buffer zone, Dulles said he would welcome a group of independent states playing an independent role. Asked whether "armed and uncommitted" might be a better phrase than the word "neutral," Dulles replied that anything tending to contribute to the independence of the Soviet satellites was in line with United States policy.

Talks at Summit. The Secretary was asked a number of questions relating to the proposed Big Four "summit" talks this summer. He repeated that questions of substance are not likely to be discussed at the meeting of Mr. Eisenhower with the heads of the Russian, French and British governments.

Despite criticism in Russia of the terms of the invitation for the talks given the Soviet by the western Big Three and informally accepted by Russia, Dulles said he would be surprised if the Russians wanted to change the terms of the meeting.

Dulles said he was not familiar with all the details of a critical editorial in the Russian Communist newspaper Pravda last week, which said the conference should be longer than the proposed three days and that the participants should consider major problems rather than means for the handling of these problems later at lower official levels.

Dulles said he expects to go to San Francisco for the anniversary conference of the United Nations beginning June 20 and probably would have informal talks there with Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov and the British and French Foreign Ministers on plans for the summit meeting.

It has been announced Molotov will attend the meeting in San Francisco and it is thought likely he will spell out the Russian position on the top-level Big Four conference. In Vienna recently Molotov accepted the type of meeting proposed.

The date and place of the top-level talks have not been set. It would be within the province of the Western inviting powers to choose time and place, Dulles said, adding that this aspect of the matter is being explored.

TELLS OF $6699 IN GIFTS ON 3 U.S. CONTRACTS

Garment Manufacturer Names 2 Army Officers, 3 Civilian Federal Employees.

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—A New York garment manufacturer testified today he spent $6699.94 in cash payoffs and gifts to Government employees involved in three contracts he carried out for the armed forces in 1952 and 1953.

Leon M. Levy, a partner in Bonita Originals, Inc., gave the testimony to the Senate Investigations Subcommittee on the basis of notes he kept in his native Arabic language. He came to this country from Lebanon in boyhood.

Names Army Major. Levy said most of the money went to: Maj. Eric C. Farnell, former chief of the clothing branch of the Army headquarters Corps in New York; David Pollack, former head of the cost price analysis section of the Armed Services Textile and Apparel Procurement agency (ASTAPA) in New York; Pollack now holds the same post in the Philadelphia quartermaster depot.

Mrs. Mella Hort, former ASTAPA contract administrator in New York; Joseph G. Porreca, former chief of inspectors for ASTAPA and now a New York feather dealer.

In addition, Levy said he authorized payment of cash and a $285 doctor bill for Capt. Raymond Wool, who had charge of one Army contract. He said Wool was slated to get another $3500 in a deal that ultimately fell through.

Knew It Was Wrong. Levy told the committee he knew it was wrong to make these payoffs but turned over the money to a business partner for the firm, Marvin Rubin, in the belief he would be ruined financially unless the Government people were "taken care of."

Rubin previously has acknowledged getting a home freezer for Porreca and a coat for Mrs. Hort but has denied any improper payoffs.

From notes kept on a Bonita letterhead in flowing Arabic, Levy read off haltingly a list of gifts that included the freezer and coat—a $24.75 coat, he said—and also lingerie, liquor, two men's topcoats and some material for men's slacks.

Amid laughter, Levy said this fabric was intended for Capt. Wool—but that Rubin used it to make slacks for himself.

Subcommittee counsel Robert F. Kennedy said Wool now is stationed at Shelby, O., on an assignment to the air materiel command.

U.S. Treasury Check Bounces When Official Forgets to Sign It

LOS ANGELES, May 24 (AP)—It was something of a blow when the United States Treasury check bounced.

Edward Saver said he got the $37.50 check as a refund of a deposit he had made with his bid for some war surplus goods. He just sent the check to his bank to be added to his account. The bank promptly sent it back yesterday. Somebody in the Treasury Department had neglected to sign it.

SENATE CALLS VAIR CHIEFS TO TESTIFY ON U.S., SOVIET AIRPOWER

Talbott and Twining
Will Give Armed Services Committee a 'Thorough Briefing' Behind Closed Doors.

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—The Senate Armed Services Committee has summoned top Air Force officials for what Chairman Russell (Dem.) of Georgia, said today will be a "thorough briefing" on United States-Russian airpower.

Russell said Secretary of the Air Force Harold E. Talbott and Gen. Nathan F. Twining, the chief of staff, will testify Thursday behind closed doors on assertions the Soviets may have gained superiority in some fields. Russell said in an interview it will be up to a subcommittee headed by Senator Lyndon B. Johnson (Dem.) of Texas to decide whether to expand later an investigation of the subject.

Senator Stuart Symington (Dem.) of Missouri, a former Air Force secretary, has contended the Russians may be ahead of this country in the production of jet bombers and intercontinental missiles.

He told the Senate yesterday there had been "efforts to suppress discussion of the subject," and continued: "Evidence continues to pile up that Communist airpower is moving up to us in offensive striking power, and is moving ahead of us in the fields of defensive power, production and technology."

Commenting on a similar speech by Symington, President Eisenhower told his news conference last week that "to say that we have lost in a twinkling all of this great technical development and technical excellence as well as numbers in our total aircraft is just not true."

Senator Harry F. Byrd (Dem.) of Virginia, an Armed Services Committee member, said he just cannot believe the Russians have made the advances with which they are credited in some quarters.

"I have great faith in our military leaders, scientists and business men who have been working together to keep us ahead on scientific developments," Byrd said.

"With all of the money and man-hours we have spent on scientific developments, if we can't keep ahead of the Russians we had better give up now."

He said that at a closed meeting over which he presided recently, Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, NATO commander, "gave us reassuring testimony" that this country was keeping well ahead of the Russians in air developments.

Backing this up, Russell said Gruenther had testified "we were pulling away from the Russians." Gruenther's testimony was given before the Pentagon said 10 days ago the Soviets had flown formations of new, long-range jet bombers over Moscow.

"Something must have happened in the meantime," Russell said.

MRS. SULLIVAN'S COFFEE CENSUS PLAN TURNED DOWN

WASHINGTON, May 24 (UP)—The House today refused, 61 to 54, to appropriate funds for a monthly census of coffee supplies.

Representative Leonor K. Sullivan (Dem.) of Missouri, proposed the plan. She said the Census Bureau should keep a running account of coffee supplies to head off "the kind of fake shortage" that was experienced in this country last year.

Mrs. Sullivan offered an amendment to a pending appropriations bill to give the bureau $25,000 to make a monthly survey and report on domestic coffee supplies. She contends no real shortage of coffee existed during the price spiral.

She told the House Americans would have saved "hundreds of millions of dollars" had the survey she proposed been in effect in 1953 and 1954.

MAN CAPTURED HOLDING BABY IN WINDOW AT KNIFE POINT

YONKERS, N.Y., May 24 (AP)—A frenzied man held a year-old baby boy at knife point at a third floor window today while scores of onlookers watched in horror.

He threatened to dash the baby to the ground if police came in to get him. Police nevertheless captured him. The baby was uninjured.

Police said the man broke into the apartment of Margaret Grady, mother of two children, and beat her until she fled with one child. As police responded to the calls of neighbors, the man held the child at the window. Two policemen entered through a back door and seized him before any harm came to the child.

ALL PORT ARTHUR NAVAL BASE FACILITIES REPORTED TURNED OVER TO RED CHINA

TOKYO, Wednesday,
May 25 (AP).

All facilities of the naval base at Port Arthur have been turned over to Red China by Russia's armed forces, the Peiping radio said today.

"In the course of the transfer," said a broadcast, "Soviet military men helped the Chinese officers and men to familiarize themselves with the installations, facilities and military equipment."

The Russian army previously turned over its hospitals and other non-military facilities in Port Arthur to the Chinese. Russia has agreed to withdraw its armed forces from the big Manchurian naval base by May 31. It had occupied Port Arthur since the end of World War II.

LENIENCY GRANTED FOR REFUSAL TO YIELD PARTY LINE

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y., May 24 (AP)—Following a leniency plea from the district attorney, a judge today decided not to punish Mrs. Mary L. Kayes for her refusal to yield a party telephone line for a fire report.

She could have received a maximum sentence of a year in jail and a $500 fine under a new law governing such circumstances. However, the court imposed no sentence or period of probation.

County Judge John R. Schwartz said he was motivated by various considerations, including the fact she finally did alert the operator after first refusing to give up the party line for a grass fire report by Fire Warden Donald Townsend.

Also, the judge said, he believed that a barn which caught fire would have been destroyed anyhow.

NORTH CAROLINA UNIVERSITY FORMALLY BARS NEGROES

RALEIGH, N.C., May 24 (AP)—Trustees of the University of North Carolina, which never has admitted Negro undergraduates, are on record for the first time as saying it is not University policy to do so.

The trustees' statement was prompted by recent applications of Negroes for admittance as undergraduates, and discovery that there was nothing barring them in the state constitution, state laws or policy statements of the trustees.

Meeting yesterday at North Carolina State College here, a part of the consolidated university, the trustees adopted this statement from their executive committee: "The State of North Carolina having spent millions of dollars in providing adequate and equal educational facilities in the undergraduate departments of its institutions of higher learning for all races, it is hereby declared to be the policy of the consolidated University of North Carolina that applications of Negroes to the undergraduate schools at the three branches of the consolidated university not be accepted."

DUKE OF EDINBURGH FLIES LARGE PLANE FOR FIRST TIME

EXETER, England, May 24 (UP)—The Duke of Edinburgh flew a four-engine Heron aircraft today, his first time at the controls of a large plane.

The Duke, a keen aviation fan, flew to Exeter to visit the Royal Marines at nearby Lympstone and the Commando School at Bickleigh.

Royal Air Force Squadron Leader C. R. Gordon, the Duke's instructor, flew as co-pilot.

HENNINGS BEGINS NEW ATTACKS ON BRICKER PLAN

Amendment Approved
by Senate Subcommittee
Over His and Kefauver's Dissent.

By EDWARD F. WOODS
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 24—Senator Thomas C. Hennings Jr. (Dem.), Missouri, today renewed his attacks on the proposed Bricker amendment to redefine the President's treaty-making power with the assertion that "this above all is not the time to deprive the President of the power to save the republic."

The controversial amendment, sponsored by Senator John W. Bricker (Rep.), Ohio, was approved yesterday by a Senate Judiciary subcommittee. The vote was 3 to 2 with Hennings joining Senator Estes Kefauver (Dem.), Tennessee, in voting against it.

It was backed by Senators Price Daniel (Dem.), Texas, Everett Dirksen (Rep.), Illinois, and William Langer (Rep.), North Dakota.

Faces Sterner Treatment. The Bricker proposal, however, faces sterner treatment when it comes up for consideration before the full Judiciary Committee. The chairman of the committee is Senator Harley Kilgore (Dem.), West Virginia, who last year voted with Hennings and others on the Senate floor in beating down not only the Bricker amendment but a watered-down version of it sponsored by Senator Walter F. George (Dem.), Georgia.

"In my judgment," Hennings said, "the proposal would harmfully affect the constitutional powers of the great office of the presidency and do substantial damage to our scheme of government based as it is on the doctrine of separation of powers among the co-ordinate branches—executive, legislative and judicial."

He said that the amendment would "ripple the presidential office and would prevent the President from effectively carrying out our nation's foreign policies." The amendment would make it substantially more difficult for the President to act in a great emergency to safeguard the lives of the people and their liberties, he added.

"Not the Time to Tinker." "We cannot save ourselves from total war by tying the hands of the President or future Congresses," Hennings continued. "This above all is not the time to tinker with our Constitution and to subvert and cripple the President's powers in foreign affairs."

He described the action of the subcommittee majority in approving the Bricker amendment as "especially bad in the face of the impending four-power conference of the heads of state when the President must enter the conference with the full prestige of his office unimpaired."

HAMMARSKJOLD SAYS HE ISN'T DISCOURAGED ON U.S. FLYERS

PARIS, May 24 (UP)—United Nations Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold said today he saw "nothing to discourage" negotiations to free the American flyers jailed as "spies" by Communist China. Hammarskjold, a key man in efforts to negotiate freedom for the Americans, is in Paris working with a committee preparing for a conference on peaceful uses of atomic energy to be held in August in Geneva, Switzerland.

In an address to a lunch of the association of French diplomatic journalists, Hammarskjold said: "I cannot say much about the prisoners. Our five months of negotiations have been intense, and I see nothing to discourage us. Although this is a negative attitude, it gives a balance to what has been said. This problem is a symbol of a very delicate situation. But the fact of saying there is no reason to be discouraged means there are encouraging elements in the general situation."

SENATE LIKELY TO BACK POSTAL PAY RISE VETO

Republicans Told They Must Sustain Eisenhower if They Want Him to Run Again.

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—The Senate appeared likely today to rebuff half a million postal workers and give a victory to President Eisenhower by sustaining his veto of a postal pay increase.

The post office workers may still get a pay boost somewhat smaller than the one averaging over 8½ per cent which the President vetoed. Present pay scales were fixed in 1951.

Should the Senate upset predictions and vote to override the veto, the House would still have to come through with the same two-thirds majority. A Senate vote to sustain the veto would make it unnecessary for the House to act.

Three hours of debate were allotted before the showdown. Democratic leaders expected practically all of their 49 members to be on hand and ready to vote to override. One member who has been absent throughout the session recuperating from an operation, Senator Kennedy (Dem.), Massachusetts, returned to the capital yesterday.

G.O.P. Votes Needed. However, there are only 49 Democrats and if all of them voted for the bill, it would be necessary to get 15 of the 47 Republicans to pass the measure over the President's objections, assuming a full attendance.

Republican leaders said they were certain far fewer than 15 G.O.P. Senators would desert the President, and they expected to pick up two or three Democratic votes.

G. O. P. Senators, it was learned, were being told they should vote to sustain the veto if they want Mr. Eisenhower to seek a second term. Senator Knowland of California, minority leader, told Mr. Eisenhower today he believes the Senate will sustain the veto. He and other Republican congressional leaders discussed the measure at the regular Tuesday meeting with Mr. Eisenhower.

House G.O.P. leader Martin of Massachusetts told reporters Knowland had advised the President "he thinks he has got the votes to sustain the veto."

Martin expressed confidence that if the Senate should vote to override, the House then would sustain the President.

Another Bill Ready. Senator Carlson (Rep.), Kansas, floor manager for the Administration on the issue, said he would be ready immediately with another bill to provide an average 8 per cent increase for the 500,000 postal employees. That is somewhat higher than the 7.6 per cent figure previously indicated by the ceiling by the Administration.

Carlson's measure would make the increase retroactive to March 1, the same date as in the vetoed bill. It would fix a 6 per cent minimum on the salary posts, the same as in the Administration's previous 7.6 per cent bill.

The vetoed measure would have given everybody at least a 7 per cent boost. The overall cost of this measure, about $79,000,000 a year, amounts to 8.8 per cent of payroll. Of this, 8.6 per cent is in higher pay, the rest in increased travel allowances and benefits for substitute employees.

The President said the bill he disapproved would cost too much and create new inequities without correcting old ones. Also, it did not contain some reclassification features to increase salaries of higher-bracket employees which the Administration wished.

This is the first effort to override an Eisenhower veto since he became President. Vetoes of more than a dozen minor bills have not been challenged.

38 Pct. Increase in Jobless Benefits Vetoed by Governor

Donnelly Says It Would Deplete $200,000,000 Unemployment Reserve and Hurt State's Economy.

By HERBERT A. TRASK State Political Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 24—A controversial labor-sponsored bill proposing a 38 per cent increase in Missouri unemployment compensation benefits was vetoed yesterday by Gov. Phil M. Donnelly.

The Governor contended that the measure, vigorously opposed by business groups, would weaken the state's economy and tend to deplete Missouri's $200,000,000 reserve jobless benefit fund established to protect all Missouri employees.

It was the seventh bill passed this session to be vetoed by Donnelly. Opponents charged that payments to unemployed persons would have been increased about $10,000,000 a year if the bill had become law.

Provided $3 a Week Top. The bill would have increased the top unemployment payments from $25 to $32 a week, and extended the period during which the benefits could be paid from 24 to 26 weeks. Maximum benefits under the bill would have been hiked from $600 to $832.

Donnelly took a slap at the labor groups which backed the measure, declaring in his veto message that Missouri's unemployment compensation law "must not become a political football."

The law, he said, should not be endangered "in response to the pressure groups from either side which would seek to serve only their own selfish ends."

The Governor advanced three reasons for disapproving the bill. These were:

1. The increased benefits would jeopardize the adequacy of the reserve fund in event of a serious economic decline.

2. It would place Missouri firms at a competitive disadvantage, compared with firms in other states.

3. It would threaten continued operation of many small businesses in Missouri.

First Decrease Last Year. Donnelly pointed out that Missouri's reserve unemployment compensation fund suffered its first decrease, in 1954, when benefits paid out exceeded contributions by more than $13,000,000. This fund is created by payroll taxes paid by employers only.

The Governor said nothing should be done to deplete the fund during a period of "high prosperity," warning that such a step would leave the fund inadequate to afford proper protection in event of an economic decline.

He said most of the states adjacent to Missouri have smaller unemployment payments than Missouri would have under the proposed increase. This, he said, would place Missouri firms at a disadvantage competitively, and adversely affect the welfare of Missouri employees.

Donnelly pointed out that under the federal act, Missouri firms which employ four or more persons, instead of eight or more, will come under the state law next Jan. 1. He said in his opinion the bill would adversely affect such small businesses, which are highly essential to the economic welfare of the state.

State Representative Eugene P. Walsh (Dem.), St. Louis, who handled the bill in the House, said he would not attempt to have the House override the Governor's veto. But he added that he does not approve of Donnelly's action.

increase for postal and civil service workers last year came after Congress had adjourned. This year, a separate boost for civil service workers has been held up pending disposition of the postal measure.

ARGENTINE POLICE ARREST 11 MORE CATHOLIC PRIESTS

BUENOS AIRES, May 24 (AP)—Argentine police have arrested 11 priests and more than 30 Roman Catholic laymen in the past few days, charging them with distributing pamphlets or demonstrating on behalf of the church in its dispute with the government.

Those handling leaflets defending the church were accused of disrespect for President Juan D. Peron. In Argentina this is a felony punishable by imprisonment up to five years.

The police have been more active in the past five days than at any other time since the controversy between Argentina's church and state began last November. Their raids brought to 32 the number of priests jailed since the dispute started.

TWO CHARGE 'SPOILS SYSTEM' IN FOREIGN AID

Humphrey, Williams Say Pending Bill Is in Violation of Existing Law.

WASHINGTON, May 24 (UP)—Two Democrats today charged the Eisenhower Administration with trying to "legalize the spoils system" in the foreign aid program.

Senator Hubert H. Humphrey (Dem.) of Minnesota, and Representative Harrison A. Williams (Dem.) of New Jersey, said in a joint statement that a personnel provision in the pending aid bill is in "direct violation" of the existing law.

They said Congress should investigate "past violations of the law involved in patronage practices" of Foreign Operations Administration Harold E. Stassen during the past year.

They said FOA has "not adhered to" a provision in the foreign aid law "prohibiting political tests or political considerations in FOA appointments abroad." The two Democrats jointly sponsored the provision last year.

Humphrey and Williams attacked a provision in the Administration's new $3,350,000,000 foreign aid measure that will permit firing of any upper grade employee without regard for civil service regulations when FOA's non-military functions are transferred to the State Department June 30.

Meantime, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee of which Humphrey is a member, postponed, probably until Thursday, further consideration of the aid measure because of conflicting Senate business. Chairman Walter F. George (Dem.), said he still hoped to complete committee action by the weekend.

MODERNIZATION OF SCHOOLS IS PLANNED IF BOND FUNDS ARE VOTED

Key Project Would Bring Lighting in Every Classroom Up to Standard — Cost Put at $1,675,000.

By GARY W. FERGUSON
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff

A major modernization program in St. Louis school buildings will be carried out if voters approve the public school bond issue Thursday.

Many of the buildings have gone without substantial basic improvements for 50 years and longer.

The key project would bring lighting in every classroom up to national standards. Comprehensive surveys have revealed that illumination in 96 per cent of the school rooms is deficient, in many instances woefully so.

School officials are convinced that many cases of eye trouble among St. Louis school children requiring glasses to correct, result directly from the poor lighting.

In other phases of the modernization program, worn out equipment would be replaced and special instructional facilities would be installed.

$1,675,000 Program.
The lighting improvements will cost $1,675,000. Besides this another $4,136,000 of the $16,395,000 bond issue is earmarked for improvements, covering virtually all schools in the city.

The rest of the bond money would go for new schools and additions.

A favorable two-thirds majority is required for approval of the issue, to be listed on a separate ballot from the city's proposed $10,639,000 bond program, which also will be presented to the voters Thursday.

Discussing the need for new light fixtures, Superintendent of Instruction Philip J. Hickey told the Post-Dispatch: "Forty-seven per cent of the youngsters refer to the reading clinic for diagnosis of their reading difficulties are found to have eye trouble. This is an alarmingly high percentage, and we firmly believe the poor classroom lighting is responsible in many cases."

Besides eyestrain, Hickey said, inadequate lighting results in poor posture, because pupils hunch over their books to read them. "It makes close book work annoying for children," he added, "thus slowing down the rate at which they learn."

Fitted, Dull Blackboards.
Fitted, dull blackboards add to the seeing difficulties of children in hundreds of classrooms. Repeated refinishing over the years has destroyed the boards' gloss, and they are beyond repair.

If the bond issue passes, new blackboards would be furnished, of the green color adopted in recent years.

Plans for bringing the school buildings up to date are divided into two parts, instructional and non-instructional. The instructional work $2,250,000 has been allocated, on the basis of $20,000 each for 90 elementary schools and $50,000 for each of nine high schools.

Expenditures would vary building by building. Basically, however, the program centers about replacing worn out equipment and providing facilities such as lunchrooms, stages, science demonstration tables and classroom storage space in schools where they are lacking or inadequate.

"In some schools," Hickey said, "instructors of shop courses spend as much time repairing their faulty equipment as they do teaching. Science laboratory equipment in the high schools ranges in age from 20 to 50 years. Much of it can no longer

School Medical Office in Broom Closet

MISS BEATRICE G. AMRHEIN, school nurse, checking foot of JOHN DODSON (second from right) in medical office made from broom closet at Lafayette elementary school, 815 Ann avenue, while other pupils await examination. be repaired. Most of it is outmoded.

Non-Instructional Spending.

A total of $1,886,000 would be spent on non-instructional improvements, mostly to replace obsolete and worn out plumbing, electrical, heating and ventilating equipment.

The average St. Louis elementary school is 50 years old. The average high school has been in use 30 years. In many instances the School Board's building department no longer can obtain repair parts for equipment installed when the schools were built.

Among the relics of grandfather's school days that would be replaced are steam engines still used in some buildings to drive ventilating fans.

Booming sounds from the engines are carried into the classrooms through air ducts.

All-weather drinking fountains would be installed in about 50 playgrounds which now have no fountains. This lack of drinking facilities limits the usefulness of the playgrounds during and after school hours.

Money would be spent for additions as follows:

Ten elementary playgrounds would be enlarged at a cost of $750,000. Several schools in the city have fewer than 20 square feet of playground space for each pupil, compared with the nationally accepted minimum of 100. The playgrounds are so small that only idle milling about is possible at recess time.

A combination auditorium, gymnasium and field house would be built at the new technical high school, under construction at South Kingshighway and Northrup avenue. The addition, with equipment, would cost $1,459,000. It would be used by all high schools in south St. Louis for inter-school basketball games, now played in rented quarters, and other indoor sports.

Another $352,000 would be used to build and equip an addition at Southwest High School for home economics and shop courses. The school has no such facilities now, and students enrolled in these courses must go to Wade elementary school, a mile away, for their classwork.

A gymnasium and cafeteria would be constructed at Harris Teachers College, for $308,000. The school now has only a makeshift cafeteria for 1000 students, installed in a basement corridor. Gym facilities are totally inadequate.

The rest of the bond money, $7,715,000, would be used for four new 24-room elementary schools and 10 eight-room buildings for primary grades to relieve overcrowding.

TAPE RECORDING OF BET PRECEDES GAMBLING RAID

Chief Deputy Sheriff Clifford Flood of St. Clair county placed a bet on a horse race yesterday while Police Chief Reese G. Dobson of Belleville took a tape recording of the transaction.

Dobson, Flood and Sheriff Leonard O. Reinhardt then led a raid and seized betting equipment in a residence at 812 Scheel street, Belleville.

The officers went into action after Flood dropped into headquarters and told of getting a tip that a handbook was operating.

"This is Duke," said Flood to the voice at the other end of the line. "How about $5 across the board on Yankee in the third at Fairmount tonight?"

The bet was accepted and "Duke" said he would leave the money in a cigar store in downtown Belleville.

In the house the raiders arrested a man who gave his name as Frank Vollmer. He said it was the first time he had been arrested, but admitted having a federal wagering license which expired last June 30, police said.

He was charged with handbook operation and released on $2500 bond.

BURGLARS LEAVE BY FRONT DOOR, MEET DETECTIVES

Two burglars who broke into the W. B. Pepper Co., a building materials firm at 6920 Manchester avenue, last night, made the mistake of leaving by the front door as two detectives were passing on their way to work.

Detectives Adolph Schaefer and William McDermott saw the men place something in a parked automobile and, stopping to investigate, found the objects were a check writing machine and an adding machine.

The two burglars, who admitted breaking into the place, identified themselves as Robert Gene Hartzell and Gerald Thompson, both of the 2600 block of Rutger street. Hartzell said he broke the glass in the front door with his right shoulder. He was treated at City Hospital for a minor cut.

MADISON COUNTY HAS FIRST POLIO CASE OF YEAR

The first polio case this year in Madison county, Illinois, was reported today. The victim was Elmore Slow, 23-year-old welder, of 118 West Elm street, Hartford.

He became ill a week ago and was taken Friday to St. Anthony's Hospital, Alton, where the case was diagnosed as paralytic polio. Health authorities said he had not been inoculated with Salk vaccine and there was no known connection between Slow's illness and the vaccine.

Slow's wife, 21, is pregnant. They have no children.

No polio cases have been reported this year elsewhere on the East Side, including the East Side Health District, and the rest of St. Clair county. Last year the first East Side case was May 18 and the second May 26.

The most recent St. Louis-St. Louis county case reported was April 30. It was the fourth this year, compared with three at this time last year.

PUBLIC SERVICE CO., UNION NEGOTIATORS MEET AGAIN

Wage committees representing St. Louis Public Service Co. and the bus and streetcar operators' union met again yesterday in their prolonged effort to reach an agreement on a new contract.

The company requested time to consider certain union proposals, and another meeting will be called later in the week.

A. E. East, president of Local 788, representing 2600 operating employees, said the union is demanding a wage increase and other benefits.

Until last night the 46 companies offered increases of 7 1/2 cents an hour May 1 and 7 1/2 cents Jan. 1, with no other changes in the contract. The union rejected the proposal, and negotiations became deadlocked.

Conciliators A. E. Johnson and Roy Burton participated in the renewed wage sessions, which were held at the offices

LEADERS REACH MATERIAL TRUCK STRIKE ACCORD

Settlement Put Up to Drivers for Vote—Laborers Walkout Still Blocks Building.

Tentative settlement of the three-week-old strike of AFL truck drivers against 46 building material firms was announced today, following an all-night negotiating session by union and management wage committees.

Terms of the agreement were withheld pending approval by the 650 striking drivers at a meeting at 3 p.m. today at Teamsters' Hall, 4141 Forest Park avenue. Acceptance will be strongly urged by officers of Teamsters Local 682, a spokesman said.

Resumption of construction valued at an estimated $80,000,000 halted by the walkout hinges on settlement of a second strike, of 60 AFL construction laborers employed in ready-mixed concrete plants. The laborers, members of three local unions, were demanding wage increases of 10 cents now and 10 cents next year.

Indications were that, as a result of the agreement between the material firms and the truck drivers, a speedy settlement can be expected with the laborers, probably today. If this takes place, material deliveries will be resumed before the end of the week, it was stated.

Teamsters' union demands were for two 10-cent hourly wage increases for drivers of mixer trucks and two 12 1/2-cent increases for operators of flat-bed and open trucks. The drivers also sought seniority and health and welfare benefits granted by other employers. The first wage increase would be retroactive to May 1, the second would be due next Jan. 1.

Similar wage increases were included in recent contracts with the Home Builders Association, Associated General Contractors and lumber dealers.

Immediately after the strike began, May 2, the union made agreement with eight firms, including one member of the building material dealers' association, at union terms. Those firms, several of which were described as haulers rather than material dealers, have been delivering material to builders during the strike.

Until last night the 46 companies offered increases of 7 1/2 cents an hour May 1 and 7 1/2 cents Jan. 1, with no other changes in the contract. The union rejected the proposal, and negotiations became deadlocked.

Conciliators A. E. Johnson and Roy Burton participated in the renewed wage sessions, which were held at the offices of the United States Mediation and Conciliation Service, in the Old Federal Building. A five-hour meeting last Wednesday preceded the final conference last night.

Under the previous two-year contract, the wage rate for material truck drivers ranged from $1.92 to $2.77 hourly, with an average of $2.17, the union reported. Under the increase sought the average rate would go to $2.37 and $2.42 next January.

The work week is 40 hours. A cement shortage, reported in national construction circles, does not seriously affect St. Louis due to the number of cement producers in this area, a contractors' representative said today. The shortage is felt in areas into which cement must be shipped, it was stated.

How can you refuse your children and grandchildren a healthy, happy city to live in, play in, grow in?

Maybe you're the kind of person who likes things just about the way they are . . . pretty much the same menu, clothes cut the way they were last time you bought them, playing cards or fishing with the same old crowd, even going to bed the same time every day. Maybe then it doesn't matter to you what is happening to St. Louis. Perhaps you notice traffic's heavier on Gravois or Natural Bridge, or you see once-proud homes looking dingier week by week, or you walk past bigger crowds of youngsters around the corner drug stores. Perhaps you even wonder sometimes if all's right with your city. More likely you notice these changes for the worse and chalk them up to "progress." You take it for granted that a city growing older can't be as nice as the newer Western towns. That's where you're wrong. You're forgetting this is the city your children will probably choose to rear their own families in. This is the place they want to call home, and be proud of it! A little money, a little effort on your part can change the traffic picture; cloverleafs can spring up where bottlenecks exist now. Whole neighborhoods can take on new sparkle, new cleanliness. It will take get-up-and-go, but how do you think St. Louis got to be the size it is? How do you think the things we boast of came into being? Look at our parks. A lot of work went into planning them, and goes into maintaining them. They're wonderful, but we need more for our own youngsters and the kids next door. Granted that you're not one to get excited every time someone cries "Wolf." You've had bond issues stuck under your nose before; you voted NO or didn't bother to vote, and St. Louis managed to keep from sinking into the Mississippi. But if you think this is another one of those times, you're mistaken. The wolf is at the door; a shameful thing to admit, but that happens to be how it is! Of course, it won't be hard for you to step in and make yourself a hero to your children and your grandchildren; you can save a city for them, and all you have to do is vote YES Thursday.

Thursday is the day . . . and YES ☒ is the way to vote

VITALE, 2 OTHERS
HERE REPORTED IN NARCOTICS RING

Lopiparo is presently serving an 18-month term in the federal prison at Leavenworth, Kan., for contempt of court for refusing to answer questions of a federal grand jury in St. Louis. Giardano has a long record of arrests.

United States Attorney Harry Richards said today, after reading the Post-Dispatch article regarding the narcotics ring, that he would bring Giardano before the federal grand jury for questioning if the gangster can be found.

Giardano is also wanted as a grand jury witness in connection with the activities of the Twin City Distributing Co., cigarette vending machine firm once charged with cheating the city of St. Louis of $425,000 through counterfeit cigarette stamps. Fines totaling $13,000 were imposed against the firm in police court Feb. 3.

Lopiparo received a prison sentence for contempt of court when he refused to produce records of the Twin City Distributing Co., of which he and Giardano had been officers. John Vitale had been questioned by the federal grand jury regarding his participation in the narcotics racket, but refused to answer questions. He was upheld by the United States District Court.

Denies Knowing Havey, Mueller. Vitale told St. Louis county authorities yesterday he did not know Mueller and Havey, whose bullet-riddled Cadillac was found last week. Both men have disappeared, and Mueller is known to have been wounded by bullets.

The Mafia gangster was arrested for questioning after police heard that he had backed efforts of Havey, Mueller, and J. Fred Koenig, former St. Louis politician, to set up on the East Side a racing-results service in competition with that of Wortman, notorious hoodlum. Vitale said he had not seen Koenig for three years. He formerly operated a handbook with him in St. Louis, in the Penrose park district.

Declaring he wanted "no part of the East Side," Vitale asserted he is certain there is no wire service giving race results on the St. Louis side of the Mississippi river. He said he was acquainted with Wortman, and felt he was on "good terms" with him.

Away 15 Months. Vitale said he returned to St. Louis only six weeks ago, after an absence of 15 months. When asked where he had been, he said: "Oh, all over."

He is known to have been living part of the time, at least, in Detroit, although he has a home in the 3700 block of Avondale avenue, Arbor Terrace. He was arrested at a novelty company, in which he has an interest, in the 3600 block of Kielen avenue, Pine Lawn.

Shortly before Vitale's arrest, a man answering the description of Koenig alighted from a taxicab a short distance from the novelty firm. The same man had entered the cab at Lambert-St. Louis Field.

Koenig, former chief deputy clerk in the St. Louis circuit court for criminal causes, also has disappeared since East St. Louis police questioned him Friday about the whereabouts of his associates Havey and Mueller.

Koenig said he last saw Havey and Mueller May 15, when they attended a baseball game in St. Louis together, but Mrs. Havey told authorities Koenig brought the wounded Mueller to the Havey home at 9669 Halls Ferry road, Jennings, last Tuesday morning, shortly before Mueller's machine, with bullet holes in it, was found.

Kittens Born in Turnstile. NEW YORK, May 24 (UP)—One of the turnstiles leading into Brooklyn's Bedford avenue subway station was temporarily closed yesterday. A cat crawled into the turnstile housing to give birth to four kittens.

Bode's father left St. Louis and went to St. Joseph in 1839. He worked as a chore boy, then a bartender and about 100 years ago opened his own saloon, The Buffalo. A history of Buchanan county, written in 1904, reported that the elder Bode "passed many a dollar to a brother in need without any record ever being made by the outside world."

Inherited Some Assets.

The younger Bode inherited some of his estate from his father, inheriting the building in which The Buffalo is still doing business. But most of the son's estate was accumulated over the years. He owned outright 20 parcels of real estate in St. Joseph, some of it valuable business property, and held six parcels jointly with a sister.

After leaving St. Joseph he lived for a time in Kansas City and then came to St. Louis as a state bank examiner. In 1914 he joined the Federal Reserve Bank in the purchasing department and remained there until his retirement in 1937.

In his younger days he traveled abroad extensively. He sent articles of value picked up on European and Asiatic trips to the St. Joseph Museum.

He was active in social affairs of Federal Reserve Bank employees until his death and also attended social functions of the Concordia Turners, 1301 Arsenal street. He joined the Turner Society at St. Joseph 68 years ago and had belonged to the St. Louis organization for 20 years.

Associates there said he was a fair gymnast, having been active athletically until about 12 years ago. He made contributions to the society's endowment fund.

Meals at Hamburger Stand. Bode arose daily at 7 a.m. and walked to a nearby corner to purchase a newspaper. He would eat breakfast at a hamburger stand, where he took all his meals, and then would return to his apartment.

He told neighbors of his large stock holdings. If any attempted to detain him in conversation he would excuse himself, saying he had to get back to his desk in the apartment to work on his income tax and stock reports.

Bode was a bachelor. Surviving him are a sister, Mrs. Meta Bode Long of St. Joseph, and two nieces, Mrs. Charles A. Peters, St. Joseph, and Mrs. E. V. Thiehoff of Kansas City.

The will provides that the park property purchased with the $1,000,000 must be for "the benefit of all people of St. Joseph, regardless of creed or denomination." It will be administered by five trustees of the George Bode Jr. Benevolent Trust Fund, who will be appointed by the Mayor, county court and circuit court of St. Joseph and the St. Joseph Board of Education.

The American National Bank of St. Joseph and the St. Louis Union Trust Co. are co-executors of the estate. The will was drafted in 1945.

U.S. BARS NEUTRAL

ference, Dulles referred to the forthcoming official visit to Yugoslavia of two Soviet leaders, Premier Bulganin and Nikita S. Krushchev, Communist party chief. In a statement read to reporters, the Secretary mentioned "the humble pilgrimage to Belgrade to honor the defector (President Tito), whom, until recently, the Soviet Communists had abused and reviled" because of the Yugoslav policy of independence.

Later Dulles said this visit to honor a man who broke away from Soviet domination should have repercussions in the Soviet satellite nations that have been kicked around by the Russians. Withdrawal of the Soviet troops from Austria and demonstrations of joy in Vienna over the treaty of independence also should cause reactions in the satellites and pose new problems for Russia, Dulles said.

In reply to a question, Dulles said the visit of the Soviet leaders to Belgrade would have no effect on the United States policy of supplying military aid to Yugoslavia. There has been no decision, he added, on what disposition to make of American occupation forces, which will be withdrawn.

Dulles said also the Big Four Foreign Ministers might discuss the unusually high taxes imposed on truck shipments into Berlin by authorities in the Soviet zone.

REICH CAN'T GUARD
SELF, CONANT SAYS

DUESSELDORF, Germany, May 24 (AP)—United States Ambassador James B. Conant warned the Germans today a united, neutral Germany would be unable to defend itself against the Russians even if it were armed.

"The idea that a country like Germany, which has no natural boundaries at all, could defend itself alone outside a European defense system simply ignores the new military realities," Conant told a German audience.

"A single nation which is not protected by any alliance cannot protect itself so long as the present threat from the East exists."

"And fine words alone cannot convince us that such a threat no longer exists. Fine words must be followed by deeds before we are convinced of their honesty."

Conant promised that the United States, supported by Britain, France and the Adenauer government, will use all its influence to see German reunification in peace and freedom is achieved as soon as possible.

He listed that as first and foremost among the problems to be discussed at the projected conference at the summit of the Big Four leaders.

Turning to West Germany's plans to recruit 500,000 men for Western defense, Conant said the United States would provide military aid "as soon as the plans and capabilities" of the Bonn republic are clear.

RED TAPE IN SANITARIUM
BUILDING; IT TAKES 10 YEARS

MOSCOW, May 25 (AP)—In Sochi, popular Black sea health resort, it sometimes takes 10 years to build a sanitarium.

Trud, official newspaper of the Central Council of Trade Unions of the Soviet Union, has a special interest in this because many of the sanitariums and rest homes in resort towns are run by the trade unions. It exposes the situation with a charge that massive waste is committed in Sochi.

The trouble, says Trud, is that there are 17 organizations responsible for construction and six of these deal with blueprinting or drafting. Frequently the builders do not know what the designers are doing and vice versa.

THREATENED, ROBBED OF $55

Leo King, manager of a City Ice & Fuel Co. branch at 3409 Cook avenue, was robbed of $55 today by two men who threatened him with a revolver and a knife, he told police.

King, alone in the office shortly before noon, said the robbers, Negroes, took the money from his pocket, then fled.

BRITAIN TO JOIN TALKS ON SAVING SOUTH VIET NAM

France Also Agrees to Diem's Proposal for Four-Nation Conference.

LONDON, May 24 (AP)—Britain has agreed to join in four-nation talks in Saigon on ways of saving South Viet Nam from Communist domination. The talks were proposed May 21 by South Viet Nam Premier Ngo Dinh Diem in letters to the foreign ministers of the western Big Three.

The Foreign Office said today that the British Ambassador in Saigon, Sir Hugh Stephenson, has been authorized to take part in the talks. France also has announced willingness to participate. Presumably the United States also has consented through diplomatic channels, informants here added. No definite agenda or date was outlined in Diem's letter.

Diem's office in Saigon said last month it was hoped the three foreign ministers would go personally to Saigon. The plan was that Diem and the three ministers would go over the whole field of major problems created by last July's Geneva conference which brought peace to Indochina but left Viet Nam split in two.

France is due to confer in July with Communist leader Ho Chi Minh's North Viet Nam regime on plans for general elections to unify the whole country. Under the Geneva agreement, the elections must be held no later than July 20, 1956.

FOE OF DIEM SAID TO GET FRENCH AID

SAIGON, South Viet Nam, May 24 (AP)—The anti-government pope of the Cao Dai religious sect is receiving French financial aid to form his own private army, a source close to Premier Ngo Dinh Diem declared last night.

The informant said Gen. Nguyen Thanh Phuong, commander in chief of the regular Cao Dai forces and a supporter of Diem, had notified the Government of the French action.

The report of French collaboration with an enemy of Diem was sharply denied by a spokesman at the office of French Commissioner General Paul Ely. The government source, however, told reporters that Phuong had reported an attempt had been made to present a French gift of 1,000,000 piastres ($28,000) to his own headquarters on May 15. When Phuong ordered the money returned, it was sent by the French to the Cao Dai religious council headquarters at Tay Ninh, the informant said.

The Cao Dai pope, Pham Cong Tac, long at odds with Diem, has assembled about 500 men but they still lack arms, the government source said. They have joined the religious leader's private army with promises of more money and assurances that they can do their military duty in his force as well as in the national army.

Phuong's army of Cao Dai has been joined with the national army. The general's relations with the pope have been strained since Phuong became a member of the National Revolutionary Committee which demands removal of Chief of State Bao Dai, elimination of French influences and a strong national government in South Viet Nam.

Meanwhile, the government buildup in west Viet Nam for a showdown with dissident troops of another religious sect, the Hoa Hao, continued with requisition of all civilian air transport to carry national army troops westward. The Hoa Hao has 8000 men in a large area of the West.

Government sources said these preparations inspired Gen. Tran Van Soai, commander of one of two Hoa Hao armies, to offer to integrate 5000 of his men into the national army. The government found his conditions unacceptable because they would have permitted him to maintain feudal rule over a large territory.

Deputy Defense Minister Tran Trung Dung told reporters the government is willing to accept Hoa Hao armies into the national army but only without conditions.

Nova Scotia Forest Fires.
HALIFAX, N.S., May 24 (AP)—Most Nova Scotia forest fires were under control today but one burned at the edge of the main residential district of Liverpool and another in the Tantallon area, 15 miles west of Halifax. In Northern Ontario dying winds and rising humidity helped slow fires which have blackened more than 100,000 acres of timber.

G.O.P. MAY TRY TO SHELVE GORE HIGHWAY BILL

Bridges Says Party Will Adopt This Strategy if Senate Rejects Eisenhower Plan.

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—Senator Bridges (Rep., New Hampshire), said today if the Senate rejects President Eisenhower's road program Republicans will attempt to shelve a Democratic alternative offered by Senator Gore of Tennessee.

Bridges, who heads the G.O.P. Senate Policy Committee, came out of a conference of all Republican Senators to tell reporters that this strategy has been discussed.

Senator Martin (Rep., Pennsylvania), has proposed the Administration plan of spending 38 billion dollars in 10 years on a 40,000-mile interstate highway system as a substitute for the committee-approved Gore bill calling for a total outlay of 18 billion dollars in the next five years.

Predicts Vote Tomorrow. Bridges predicted the Martin bill will reach a vote in the Senate sometime tomorrow. If it fails to pass, he said Republicans then will try to send the Gore bill back to the Senate Public Works Committee.

The G.O.P. strategy then would be to press for House action on the President's program, with the hope that approval there might bring later Senate action on some form of compromise.

Bridges said Republicans expect the support of some Democrats for the move to shelve the Gore bill. He said, however, that modification of the bill's present form might take away some of this Democratic support.

Gore told newsmen there may be some further modifications in his bill but he does not plan personally to sponsor any. "I think we can defeat any move to send the bill back to Committee," he said.

Senator George (Dem., Georgia), and Byrd (Dem., Virginia) yesterday predicted defeat for the Administration measure.

George told newsmen he will support the Gore proposal from which he forced elimination yesterday of a billboard provision he claimed would invade states' rights.

Thumping his desk vigorously, George told the Senate a section to permit the Government to acquire advertising rights on 500-foot wide strips on each side of interstate highways involved "federal control of things that ought to remain in the hands of the states."

Senator Thurmond (Dem., South Carolina), promptly came up with an amendment to knock out the section. The Senate approved it unanimously on a voice vote.

George Predicts Passage. "In my judgment, the Gore bill will pass," George said. "I don't think the substitute bill carrying the President's plan will pass."

The Senate will resume debate on the measure late in the day after action on Eisenhower's postal pay bill veto. It has agreed to limit debate on the highway bill beginning tomorrow. Senator Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, the Democratic leader, said he hopes the measure can be disposed of then.

House Republican Leader Martin of Massachusetts believes the House will approve a highway bill pretty much in line with the Administration's program. He expressed the view after he and other G.O.P. congressional leaders held their regular Tuesday morning meeting with the President.

Appeal on Minimum Wage. At the White House meeting, in the presence of Mr. Eisenhower, Secretary of Labor Mitchell appealed to Republican leaders for action on the Administration bill to increase the minimum wage from 75 to 90 cents an hour.

Asked whether it was true that the Administration bill was "locked" in a committee headed by Representative Barden (Dem., South Carolina), Martin replied that is so. He added that Barden has been devoting his time to hearings on housing legislation.

A few hours later the House Labor and Education Committee voted unanimously today to conclude its hearings on school construction bills and start consideration of increased minimum wage proposals.

The school construction hearings were wound up on an acrimonious note, with Chairman Barden hotly disputing published accounts that he was "dragging his feet" on school aid legislation. He lambasted some committee members for "running to the newspapers" to reflect on his "fair dealing" with committee members.

Martin reported there also was discussion at today's White House conference of the Administration's bill to create a new military manpower reserve program.

COMMISSIONING TOMORROW OF NEW TYPE LANDING SHIP

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—The Navy announced yesterday that a new type of rocket landing ship, the USS Carondelet, will be commissioned tomorrow in a ceremony at the Bremerton (Wash.) naval shipyard.

Designated as an inshore fire support ship, the Carondelet is the first of a new type which will replace the World War II medium landing ships used to soften up enemy beaches just before American troops landed in amphibious operations.

The new vessel was launched in July 1953, at the Puget Sound Bridge and Dredging Co. shipyard, Harbor Island, Seattle. It is named for an old naval gun developed in Scotland about 1750 and first used by the British Navy in action against ships of the American colonies in the Revolutionary War.

MEXICO TO RELEASE GEN. MOW FROM JAIL

Extradition Denied on Charge He Embezzled $6,000
From Chiang's Government.

MEXICO CITY, May 24 (AP)—The Mexican Government said today it has ordered the release from jail of Gen. Pang-tsu Mow, who has been accused by the Chinese Nationalist Government of embezzling more than $6,000,000.

His extradition was requested by the Chinese, but was refused by Mexican courts and the executive branch of the Mexican Government. He still faces a charge of entering Mexico illegally, but he is expected to be freed on bond on this charge.

Mow was the head of Nationalist Chinese Air Force purchasing mission in the United States. After shortages appeared in his books, Mow fled to Mexico and was arrested at Cuernavaca in August 1952. He has been in jail since then.

The Chinese Government retained former Mexican President Emilio Portes Gil to prosecute the case. Mow's lawyer argued his client came to Mexico as a political refugee from persecution by Chiang Kai-shek's government.

A Mexican Federal Court judge said an advisory opinion last November that Mow was not subject to extradition and the case went to the executive branch for final decision.

Yesterday the Mexican foreign office notified Chinese Ambassador Chih Tsing Feng that Mow will be released. It also ordered the warden of the National penitentiary to free him as soon as bond is made on the additional charge of entering the country illegally.

Mow's lawyer, Julio Klein, said Mow would remain in Mexico to "rebuild his life here."

Chicagoan Has U.S. Bonds Nationalist China Claims.

CHICAGO, May 24 (AP)—A Chicagoan has turned up two mysteriously missing $100,000 short-term United States Treasury bonds and is fight efforts of the Chinese Nationalist government to gain possession of them.

He is William E. Decker of Decker & Co., accountants. His attorney, Irving Goodman, said he got the bonds recently from a John Anderson of New York City in payment for a real estate transaction.

The Chinese Nationalist Government has started court action here to get the bonds. They are among United States notes purchased in 1951 by Nationalist Lt. Gen. Pang-tsu Mow, now in Mexico.

New Jap Observer at U.N. TOKYO, May 24 (AP)—The Government today announced appointment of Toshikazu Kase as Japan's observer at the United Nations. He succeeds Renzo Sawada and will have the rank of ambassador.

KENNEDY BACK IN SENATE AFTER 8-MONTH ABSENCE

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—Senator John Kennedy (Dem., Massachusetts), looking tan and fit, returned to his office yesterday after an eight-month absence.

Following an operation for a spinal injury, the Senator has been recuperating at the home of his father, Joseph P. Kennedy, at Palm Beach, Fla.

"I feel in good shape," the Senator said as he stepped off the plane.

Kennedy said he is very much interested in current efforts to increase the federal minimum wage and, while he has not been in close contact with the question, believes that the floor will be boosted to $1.05.

The Administration has asked for a boost from the present 75 cents to 90 cents an hour.

During his convalescence, Kennedy continued, he has been able to view Congress's activities at long range and has concluded that "one of the major issues is the cuts in defense, especially the size of the cuts."

Kennedy was injured when a Japanese destroyer sliced into his patrol torpedo boat. He was operated on in 1944 and went to the hospital last October for a second operation.

Hardware, Paint, Linoleum Dealers Are Headquarters For Do-It-Yourself Needs

These dealers are experts with years of experience. 'Beacon Wax' is highly recommended.

Hardware, paint and linoleum dealers are fast becoming the popular haven for do-it-yourself, as well as clean up, paint up and fix up needs. These dealers are, in the main, neighborhood stores that take a great personal delight in catering to the needs of their friends and neighbors.

The dealers' long years of experience in all home-owners and household supplies makes their assistance invaluable to all good homemakers. It is because of their unexcelled experience in household lines, in which waxes are such an important part, that Beacon Wax likes to sell its products through this type of dealer.

Beacon Wax Company is world renowned as the makers of one of the world's largest selling floor waxes. 'Beacon Wax' Beacon is also the maker of the amazingly new remover for every brand of floor wax—all without any scrubbing; this product, aptly called 'Beacon All Brands Wax and Dirt Remover,' gives fine results. When it comes to paste wax, Beacon Paste Wax is a tremendous favorite amongst paste wax devotees. 'Thrill' is Beacon's new furniture wax that comes in two different shades: dark for dark furniture, light for light furniture. Without any rubbing, 'Thrill' shines all furniture to a new-like appearance. It resists dirt and dust. All these four Beacon products are available at hardware, paint, department and linoleum stores.

EAST BERLIN CHILDREN TO BURN U.S. COMIC BOOKS

BERLIN, May 24 (AP)—School children in Communist East Berlin will gather June 1 to burn western comic books and other "trash" literature, the East Berlin newspaper National Zeitung announced today.

The paper said the "huge" bonfire would be touched off by members of the Communist youth organization, Young Pioneers. The fire will climax a drive against western comic books, which the Communists say are undermining East German youth.

At a mock trial of the American publications last week, a Communist leader charged they are designed to make "youth ripe for carrying out the imperialist plans of conquest and revenge, and for an assault on the peace-loving peoples."

What does it mean to "diversify" your investments?

Question submitted by T. J. Marks,
Allen Park, Mich., Engineer.

It means that you don't put all your eggs in one basket... and it's a sound policy for many investors. You can diversify by investing in the different kinds of securities listed on the New York Stock Exchange. There are common stocks (generally they've brought the largest returns over the years, but entail the most risk) and there are preferred stocks (usually less reward and less risk). And there are bonds—corporate and government—which are generally the safest of all securities, but which usually pay only a fixed rate of interest. Many people diversify their investments in all three—common stocks, preferred stocks and bonds—the ratio of one to the other depending on their objectives and personal situation.

Another way to diversify is to invest in different companies, preferably in different industries. You can balance an investment that may bring a conservative return at a minimum of risk with one that might bring greater rewards at greater risk. You might even diversify in a sense by selecting a stock in a company with many different kinds of products and markets.

How can I know which stocks and bonds to buy?

Question submitted by R. W. Fiske, Darien, Conn., Salesman.

You need facts to make such decisions wisely. The Member Firms of the New York Stock Exchange can supply the latest available data on the securities of some 1,200 companies, as well as the many government bonds, listed on the Exchange. They'll be happy to give you the information you need without cost or obligation. Consider the pros and cons of investing. Discuss your objectives with a partner or registered representative of your local Member Firm. They'll help you plan investments tailored to the amount of risk you can afford to assume.

FREE BOOKLET tells you what stocks are, what cash dividends particular stocks have paid, how to buy stocks and about the new pay-as-you-go Monthly Investment Plan. AUTOMATION WILL BE A BOON

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., May 24 (AP)—A Kentucky labor leader told the American Baptist Convention last night that automation is a boon to mankind and will lead to a two-hour work day.

Factories operating almost automatically with little human labor will send living standards soaring, Albert Whitehouse said in a speech to the convention's annual meeting.

Whitehouse, director of district 25, CIO United Steel Workers of America, is also a vice president of the National Council of Churches. He is a member of the First Christian Church of Covington, Ky.

"I predict we will have a two-hour work day because of automation," he said. The change to a shorter work day will bring many social problems, he added, and the churches will need to help solve them.

Commerce Department Says Desire for Bigger and Better Homes Is Also Factor.

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—The Commerce Department said today rising income, easy credit and a desire for bigger and better homes underlie the current housing boom.

A department report noted that homes are currently being built at a record pace although new families are being formed at a low rate and family formation will remain low through about 1960. This is a result of the low birth rate period of the early 1930s; depression babies are now at marriageable age.

But following 1960, the department study said, the demand for housing will probably shoot up rapidly, as the war and post-war baby boom results in a steep rise in the number of marriageable young people.

The department gave no judgment on the current disagreement over whether easy mortgage arrangements under Government insuring processes has stimulated home building beyond the buying capacity of the public.

However, it pointed to several factors which, it said, are sustaining the housing market. Listed as principal factors were:

1. The total production of the nation is increasing by about 2,500,000 a year.
2. There has been a marked increase in recent years in life expectancy, especially for women. Coupled with this has been added provision for retirement in the form of social security and business pension plans. Thus more old people are able to maintain their own homes, instead of doubling up with younger members of their families.

3. The number of young people living with their parents, or other relatives, has also been declining. In 1947 nearly 3,000,000 married couples did not have their own household. Now only about 1,500,000 couples are living with relatives.

4. A tendency for unrelated individuals to get together and run a household. Between 1950 and 1954 there was an increase of about 1,250,000 such households, a rise of one-fourth.

5. Successive liberalizations of Government insurance for home buying in 1948, 1950 and 1954 have been "especially important" in the rise of residential construction.

Underneath it all, the Commerce Department said, "a large and rising flow of income has been the central influence supporting the high volume of residential activity, permitting the influence of other factors to be widely operative."

Scheele Says Answer Is Near on Polio Vaccine

by name, O'Connor declared: "So long as the Salk vaccine and its research was in the hands of the National Foundation, you had some intelligence, total courage, intellectual integrity, and you had no politics whatsoever. "The situation is not as difficult as babbled tongues would make it seem. Nothing said affects the safety of the Salk vaccine."

O'Connor's "politics" charge was interpreted by Senator Bender (Rep.), Ohio, as referring to what the Ohioan called the "hue and cry" of "Democratic politicians."

O'Connor's demand for publication of the results of the Cutter study was made in a later telegram to Scheele. Recalling that the Cutter vaccine was withdrawn on April 27, O'Connor said: "I assume enough time has elapsed to permit conclusive findings." His telegram hinted such results could be on whether testing requirements for all vaccine should be altered.

Cases Rise to 88.

In its daily report on confirmed cases of polio among persons inoculated with the Salk vaccine, the Health Service said today there had been a weekend rise of nine to a total of 88. Among the new cases was the first in a person who had received vaccine made by Parke, Davis & Co., Detroit.

Other post-inoculation cases had received vaccine of Cutter Laboratories in 60 instances. Eli Lilly Co., Indianapolis, in 19 and that of Wyeth Laboratories, Marietta, Pa., in eight.

About 6,000,000 children have been inoculated. Health officials in Boise, Idaho, reported a man died of bulbar polio yesterday and they classified him as an "association" case—two of his children had received Salk vaccine shots.

Milwaukee Cancels Shots. In Milwaukee, City Health Commissioner E. R. Krummel postponed Salk vaccine inoculation of school children there, saying: "We don't care what they do with vaccine on a national level. Milwaukee children will not get it until we are absolutely certain it is safe."

(The United Press said Alameda, Calif., had returned its Salk vaccine to the California Department of Public Health today after canceling its immunization program after 24 doctors who were to give the shots refused to participate because of the confusion over the vaccine.) However, about 50,000 Massachusetts youngsters yesterday were given their first shots. There also were vaccinations in New York, New Hampshire and Vermont. Chicago reported it would run out of vaccine today with 90,000 eligible children lacking second injections.

(New York Herald Tribune said that, in three days 31,482 of 100,985 New York children whose parents had signed them up, did not take the Salk shots.)

Senators Discuss Control. The Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee met for two hours yesterday on another aspect of the anti-polio program—control of the vaccine's distribution.

$1,425,436 RECORD BUDGET URGED FOR UNIVERSITY CITY

A record budget of $1,425,436, necessitating a 2-cent tax increase to $1.17 per $100 valuation, was presented to the city council of University City last night by City Manager Elder Gunter. The budget is $57,443, or 4 per cent above the one for the current fiscal year.

Included in the proposed appropriation measure is a $35,000 item for salary increases; the addition of eight fulltime and two part-time employees to the city's payroll, and an increase in the tax levy for the library fund from 9 to 11 cents, which accounts for the over-all 2-cent increase in the tax rate.

The three largest appropriations in the proposed budget are $258,686 for the police department; $154,903 for the fire department and $111,065 for street repair and maintenance. The council set June 13 as the date for a public hearing on the measure.

KEFAUVER OPENS HEARING ON LEWD MATERIALS SALES

NEW YORK, May 24 (UP)—Senator Estes Kefauver (Dem.), Tennessee, opened hearings here today on the distribution of pornographic photographs and lewd literature.

The first two witnesses said the widespread distribution of pornographic materials across the United States was at least partly responsible for an increasing wave of juvenile delinquency. One dealer, alone, did $250,000 worth of business a year in "dirty" pictures and books, Kefauver's subcommittee was told.

The witnesses were Peter N. Chumbris, associate counsel of the Senate subcommittee to investigate juvenile delinquency, and Father Daniel Egan, a Franciscan priest from the Graymoor School at Garrison, N.Y. Chumbris said he had made an investigation in more than 20 cities.

Mrs. Eva Sally Slawski suffered burns on her entire body today in a fire in her home at 2316 Newhouse avenue. Firemen carried her from the three-room, one-story brick house. She was taken to City Hospital. The fire, of undetermined origin, damaged the living room of the house. Firemen estimated damage at $150.

told him "he was doing favors for everyone." Levy said he protested that the company could not afford such expenditures. He said he also has a lot of other names on his list of payments but he doesn't know the people involved.

The witness said a payment to a man he thinks is Pollack was made in the shipping room of their plant. Levy said his partner, Maurice Ades, had suggested that Rubin "might put it in his pocket" instead of handing $500 to Pollack.

Rubin, he said, was outraged at the suggestion, "and to prove himself he brought in one man, dressed like a working man... and handed him $500." He said the man was introduced as Pollack.

"Why," McClellan asked, "were they paid?"

"Mr. Rubin know (sic); I don't know why," Levy replied.

Levy testified he wrote checks to pay $1000 to an Army major and $500 to a civilian Army employee after getting a Government contract for about 1,000,000 garrison caps for soldiers. He produced his notes scribbled in Arabic.

Discussing checks he said he wrote to pay money intended for Farnell and Pollack, Levy produced a diary also in Arabic. Levy, whose accent is heavy and whose sentence structure sometimes is weird, said Rubin told him that the $1000 "goes to Mr. Farnell." He said he recorded the payment in Arabic with a notation that it went to "the elephant" because Rubin had described the major as "a big, husky man" who swung a lot of weight.

Firm in Difficulties. Levy said the Bonita firm was in financial difficulties, and he was troubled about "a lot of monkey business" he had found in the bookkeeping when he and his partner hired Rubin to help seek some Government contracts for their plant in Puerto Rico.

He said Rubin represented himself as a man who "had the connections" with the Army Quartermaster Corps in New York, and that they did get three contracts.

One of the three contracts for the garrison caps was awarded on June 11, 1952, and listed a Capt. Frank D. Walker as the contracting officer. Two others were awarded the following day to Bonita, with Farnell listed as the contracting officer.

Levy said Rubin then bragged that "you see what I told you was right—we got the awards." Rubin has denied he claimed any "connections" with the Army.

Levy testified from a stack of notes on odd pieces of paper. He said he kept the notes in Arabic "so nobody could get hold of it. In Arabic I'm the only one could read."

He said there is no letter "p" in Arabic, so he spelled Pollack's name with an "F."

He said the company's books recorded the payments as for "travel and entertainment."

Governor Gets Bill to Boost State Aid to Schools for Busses

House Passes $1,000,000 Increase 83 to 22 — Defeats Series of Pay Rise Measures.

By EDWARD THORNTON
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 24—State aid to public schools for transportation of pupils would be increased by about $1,000,000 a year under provisions of a bill passed by the House and sent to the Governor yesterday. The vote was 83 to 22.

It would increase the maximum payment from $3 a month to $4 and provide a graduated scale, depending upon the distance each individual pupil is transported to and from school. The present law provides for state payment of $3 a month for each pupil two miles or more. The cost runs about $3,500,000 a year.

Concurrent With School Program. If approved by Gov. Phil M. Donnelly, the bill would become effective concurrently with the foundation school program previously passed by the Legislature, which will be submitted to the voters in a referendum Oct. 4.

House members in effect yesterday defeated all but one of a series of salary increase bills, which they previously had approved, by refusing to adopt Senate imposed amendments. The Senate is in recess.

The one measure sent to the Governor would increase the salaries of court reporters in circuit courts throughout the state to $8000. They now receive $4100 to $5000. Reporters in the two divisions of the St. Louis Court of Criminal Correction would be increased from $5000 to $6500 a year. The measure was re-approved by a vote of 84 to 23 after three Senate amendments were adopted.

Other Bills Passed. Among other bills passed and sent to the Governor was one which would extend coverage of the workmen's compensation program to 718 state employees in the Department of Corrections. It would cost the state about $25,000 a year additional. The vote was 93 to 7.

Passed and sent to the Senate was a bill to increase the number of referees in the Division of Workmen's Compensation from 12 to 14 and increase salaries of the referees. Their pay would be increased from $475 to $700 a month, except in St. Louis, Kansas City and Springfield, where the increase would be from $500 to $750 a month. The bill, approved by a vote of 105 to 7, is identical with one previously passed and vetoed last week by the Governor. An error, the cause of the veto, was corrected when the measure was reintroduced.

Also passed and sent to the Senate for consideration when it returns to work in the closing hours of the session next week, was a second omnibus bill which would appropriate a total of $14,016,816 for various purposes.

Included are allotments of $1,500,000 for the control and eradication of Bangs disease in cattle; a $1,000,000 emergency fund for use of the Governor, and $480,000,000 for the establishment of traveling psychiatric teams, provided in a bill passed earlier in the session and signed by the Governor.

Magistrates' Pay Rise Loses. House members today defeated a bill which would have given magistrates in St. Louis a $1000-a-year salary increase. The vote was 74 to 51 in favor of the measure, but a total of 79 affirmative votes is needed for passage.

The Senate-approved bill was the subject of a brisk debate yesterday when it was brought up for action by Representative Joseph W. Martino (Dem.), St. Louis. Representative A. Clifford Jones (Rep.), Clayton, strongly opposed any increase for "those loafers" and quoted at length from a report made last year by the magistrate court committee of the St. Louis Bar Association, following a survey.

The report showed, Jones said, that most of the magistrates were not in their chambers by 10 a.m. and that their courtrooms were deserted by 12:30 p.m. He said the report showed that the magistrates averaged workday was two hours long, making a 10-hour week. Thus, he said, they are paid on an average of $13 an hour. "On the basis of work done," he said, "they are the highest paid office holders in the state of Missouri."

Other Bills Defeated. Also defeated today was a Senate-approved bill which would have provided salary increases for deputy coroners in St. Louis and the chief clerk in Coroner Patrick E. Taylor's office. The vote on the measure was 66 to 35 in favor of passage, 13 votes short of the necessary number.

Another Senate-approved bill, which was defeated, would have increased the salaries of members of the State Tax Commission from $6000 to $8000 a year. The vote on it was 74 to 34, five votes less than required for approval.

The Governor signed today a bill which will increase the salaries of the Governor and the lieutenant-governor, effective when the new terms of these offices begin in January 1957. The bill increases the salary of the Governor from $10,000 to $25,000 a year, and the pay of the lieutenant-governor from $7500 to $12,000.

URGERS PROPERTY OWNERS TO VOTE FOR BOND ISSUE

owner in that needed improvements to his property have accumulated over the years and now must be taken care of to prevent serious deterioration."

All St. Louisans have a vital interest in the outcome of the bond issue election, but labor's stake is the greatest. Mayor Tucker said last night in addressing the stewards' council of Local 686, AFL Teamsters' Union.

Defeat of the bond issue would mean a decadent city, he warned, and this in turn would spell unemployment.

"St. Louis already has lost too many industries to other cities which have found it wise to make public improvements of the type that will be placed before the voters here," he said. "Passage of the bond issue will stem the exodus, and serve notice on the nation's business that St. Louis is now ready to take its rightful place among the large cities."

"In this election we will decide whether we are going to live in a prosperous city, or whether St. Louis will just be a good town to leave."

Phone Campaign Set Up.
A telephone campaign organized by the League of Women Voters of St. Louis will begin tomorrow. In this two-day drive, 1790 women volunteers will telephone 51,912 registered voters and urge them to vote for both the school bond issue and the program of general improvement.

Each worker has been given a list of 30 voters' names and telephone numbers. Several hundred additional women who volunteered after all the lists were distributed have been asked to telephone their friends and relatives.

The school bond issue program will be presented in a single proposal on a short ballot, and will call for one X mark by the voter. But the bond issue for general improvements involves 23 proposals, each of which is to be passed on separately. There is no way to vote on all 23 proposals collectively; the long ballot calls for 23 separate X marks.

The Election Board has instructed election judges and clerks that, in tabulating returns, no vote is to be counted on a proposition unless an X is placed in the box opposite the "Yes" or the "No" for that particular proposition.

TV Program on School Issue.
The citizens' committee for the school bond issue will present a program tonight at 6 o'clock on Post-Dispatch Television Station KSD-TV. Indorsements of the bond issue were announced today by the AFL Building & Construction Trades Council, St. Louis Hotel Association, United Church Women of St. Louis, Twenty-third Ward Regular Democratic Organization and St. Louis division, Missouri Association for Social Welfare.

One hundred parent-teacher associations and other school organizations pledged their support today.

Eight more Democratic ward organizations have indorsed all 23 proposals in the general improvements bond issue. Addition of the Second, Ninth, Eleventh, Seventeenth, Nineteenth, Twenty-fifth, Twenty-sixth and Twenty-seventh ward organizations to the list brings the total to 17 of the 28 wards. Most of the remaining groups are expected to pledge their support at meetings today and tomorrow.

The Business and Professional Women's Club of St. Louis voted unanimously to work for passage of all 23 proposals. The municipal improvements bond issue has been indorsed by George Khoury, executive director of the Khoury Baseball League, which has more than 1100 teams. Part of the $11,000,000 fund proposed for parks and playgrounds would be used to light ball diamonds.

Other indorsements came from the Cherokee Community Council, West End Community Conference, Southampton Development League, Life Underwriters' Association of St. Louis, Retail Druggists' Association of Greater St. Louis, Northside Kiwanis Club, South Side Optimists, St. Louis Employment Board directors and St. Louis alumni chapter of Kappa Alpha Psi fraternity.

A streetcar of 1890 vintage has been placed on display at Eighth and Locust streets, and surreys are touring the city in the campaign for the bond issue. They display placards urging voters to see to it that St. Louis goes forward and does not revert to "horse and buggy" days.

15-Mile Parade Tomorrow.
The need for public improvements will be dramatized tomorrow in a 15-mile parade featuring 23 floats—one for each type of improvement proposed in the bond issue—and 62 other vehicles. The parade will start from Goodfellow and Natural Bridge avenue at 11:55 a.m. and will reach the downtown section about 12:30 p.m.

The parade route will be south on Goodfellow to Easton avenue, east on Easton and Franklin avenues to Broadway, south on Broadway to Pine street, west on Pine to Twelfth boulevard, north on Twelfth to Olive street, east on Olive to Sixth street, north on Sixth to Washington avenue, west on Washington to Grand boulevard, then west on Grand square and Delmar boulevard to Skinker boulevard, north on Skinker and Hodiamont avenue to Easton, east on Easton back to Goodfellow.

Jewett Lewis, who was listed two weeks ago as a member of a committee appointed to work for the bond issue through neighborhood organizations, announced today that he has declined to serve. He heads the Walnut Park Improvement Association.

"The organization which I represent is opposed to this bond issue, and I personally am opposed to it," he said. The Walnut Park Improvement Association led the opposition to the route which has been selected for the Mark Twain Expressway.

Horse Car Dramatizes Bond Campaign

MANVEL DAVIS SUGGESTED AS MISSOURI G.O.P. CHIEF

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 24 — Selection of Manvel H. Davis, a Kansas City attorney, as national committeeman from Missouri would help establish harmony in the Republican party within the state, Henry A. Bodendieck, magazine publisher, said last night.

Bodendieck served as state publicity chairman for the Missouri-for-Eisenhower forces in 1952. Davis, a former state Senator, was general chairman of the Eisenhower movement in Missouri.

Perry Compton of Montgomery City, state chairman of the Republican party, said Sunday he would give up his post if his two leading opponents among Missouri Republicans—A. D. (Bud) Welsh of St. Louis, national committeeman, and Mrs. Estelle Tanner of Jefferson City, national committeewoman—would give up theirs. They have refused.

179 Huk's Surrender.

YOUTH FACES 15 CHARGES AFTER CHASE IN COUNTY

Billie Drope, 19-year-old waiter, faced 15 traffic charges today as a result of a chase early yesterday in which he drove his automobile at 90 miles an hour and outdistanced police of five
St. Louis county communities until forced to a halt in Wellston.

Drope was held in jail at Clayton in default of $6250 bond.
The traffic charges included one in Wellston, three in Breckenridge Hills, one in St. John and three in St. Ann, where the wild, six-mile chase started shortly after midnight. St. Ann officers also filed seven county charges in the court of Magistrate Raymond L. Harris.

In police court at Breckenridge Hills last night, Drope said he wanted to plead guilty but his case was continued in order to give him an opportunity to consult a lawyer. About 20 shots were fired at the speeder by police during the chase.
Drope gave an address in the 1600 block of Picker street.

The STRUGGLE for PEACE

Truman Says Man's Hope for Peace Depends on Supporting U.N. and Making Charter Principles Work

Ex-President Declares Millions Will Be Destroyed if Free World Leaders Fail to Do This.

By EDWARD F. WOODS
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1955, Pulitzer Publishing Co.)
THIRD OF A SERIES
KANSAS CITY, Mo.
May 24.

MANKIND'S hope for enduring peace in this Atomic Age lies in the support of the United Nations Charter by the Free World, and if the leaders of the Free World fail to make the Charter function, millions of us will be destroyed, former President Harry S. Truman told the Post-Dispatch today.

Discussing in an interview here the aspirations of men of good will everywhere for a free and happy life, the former Chief Executive recalled what he had told the San Francisco conference which drafted the U.N. charter nearly 10 years ago. At that time he said:

"If we had had this Charter a few years ago—and above all, the will to use it—millions now dead would be alive. If we should falter in the future in our will to use it, millions now living will surely die."

Bases of War and Peace.

Drawing on his rich experience in 18 years as Senator, Vice President and President, Truman said he does not believe that just and lasting peace can be accomplished by diplomats or by military combines. Agreements made by diplomats and military men have to be based upon the whole-hearted support of the people for whom they are made, he said.

History, he continued, is rampant with evidence that wars grow from seeds of economic hostility and social injustice, and the U.N. charter is aimed directly at eliminating these evils. In the success or failure of this instrument, then, lies the key to lasting peace, he said.

The Charter, he added, is dedicated to the achievement of peace and observance of human rights and fundamental freedoms, and the best efforts of statesmen cannot bring about lasting peace and security unless these objectives are attained for all men and women without consideration of race, creed or color.

Sixty nations, he noted, now make up the United Nations and all but a handful are free to practice international co-operation in the interest of helping to correct the economic and social causes for war.

A firm economic base for democratic aspirations of citizens of underprivileged countries must be established, Mr. Truman went on. The U.N. could do even more to strengthen itself in this area as an instrument of economic and social progress than by debating differences among nations and through police action against aggressors.

Poverty Greatest Challenge.
As he has contended frequently, Mr. Truman stated that the grinding poverty and the lack of economic opportunity for many millions of people in the economically underdeveloped parts of Africa, the Near East, the Far East and certain regions of Central and South America present the greatest challenge to the world.

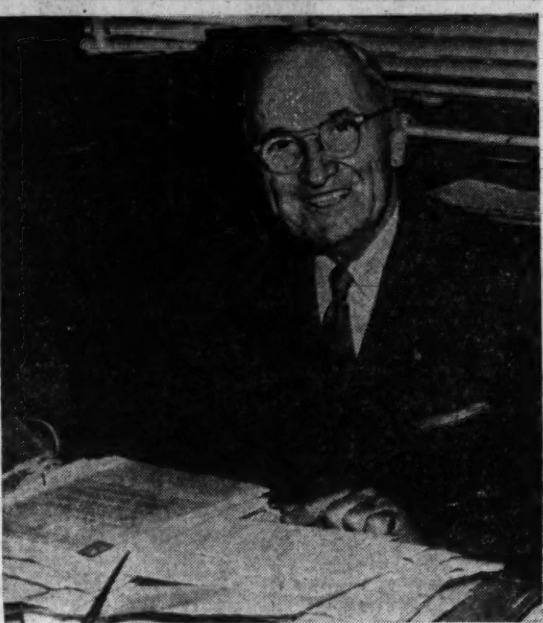

Nevertheless the spread of industrial civilization, a better understanding of the concepts of modern government and the impact of two world wars have stirred these people to great expectations, he said.

Frustration and disappointment could cause them to turn to false doctrines, which preach that progress can be achieved only at the price of tyranny. The United States and the other free countries of the U.N. should do everything possible through technical assistance and advice to bring the underdeveloped countries close to the free community in terms of friendship and commerce, he said.

If that is not done, Mr. Truman warned, the unsettled state of the world could only be prolonged indefinitely and the achievement of permanent peace frustrated.

Essential Bulwark of Peace.

The preamble to the U.N. Charter, he pointed out, recognizes that the economic and social advancement of all people is an essential bulwark of peace and under Article 56 of the Charter this nation is pledged to taking separate action or to act jointly with other nations in promoting higher standards of living, full employment and conditions of economic and social progress and development.

HARRY S. TRUMAN

"Peace with freedom and justice cannot be bought cheaply. No single nation has all the answers. It can be assured only by the combined efforts of people throughout the world who want to secure peace."

It is important in the face of Communist propaganda, he went on, that the development of the poorer nations take place under international co-operation. Communist propagandists might well exploit exclusive American operations within a nation as "colonization" and so frighten away the beneficiaries. "This would not occur if several nations were associated toward peace rather than war."

He stressed the importance of the fact that the world's leaders, if they are to save their people from holocaust, must continually resort to the negotiations tables for talks directed toward peace rather than war.

Leaders of the Free World must never by word, deed or act leave suffering and uncertain people anywhere in the world with the impression that they must one day in the long run fight with the Free World or against it.

He added that discussion and exchanges of opinion and viewpoints must be maintained within flexible bounds. Then the masses of people around the world, if the truth reaches them, will readily recognize the forces of peace as compared to forces which would brutally subject them to conflict, he said.

Whether at the negotiating table or in an international political arena, the Free World must show itself through its leaders as dedicated to the ideal that political problems can be solved by men of good will through discussion and without devastating war, he added.

In this connection, Mr. Truman said, he is opposed to expulsion of the Soviet Union from the United Nations despite the obstructionist tactics employed by that nation and its satellites.

Advantages of Russia in U.N.

It is his belief that through the medium of open debate the Soviet Union may be held up to the mirror of world opinion in a fashion not conceivably possible outside of the U.N. Thus the U.N. can serve as the conscience for mankind when it chooses between the Free World and those hostile to human freedoms, between the warlike and those who have demonstrated the peaceful approach that their goal is international friendship among people and that freedom of them means common freedom. Soviet membership in the United Nations has been advantageous to the cause of peace because the peoples of the world have been able to compare the Soviets' conduct to the standards of international peace laid down in the Charter and to determine that it is the Soviets who violated the basic ideals of mankind, he said.

This basic comparison has more than once enabled the Free World to keep the peace where it was seriously threatened, as it did in Iran and Indonesia, Mr. Truman said; and in 1950, when the aggressor broke the peace of the world in Korea, the United Nations met the challenge and for the first time an international organization organized effective collective resistance to armed aggression.

The former President said he very much favored regional security arrangements such as the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the South East Asia Treaty Organization, but he emphasized that they are temporary devices to deter aggressors and do not in themselves serve to secure the lasting peace.

They are necessary to national safety so long as the potential aggressor is building strength, just as are a large standing army and a stockpile of nuclear weapons.

Disarmament, as a move tomore clothing, more materials for housing and more mechanical power to lighten their burden. He added that we must insist on and encourage other countries of the Free World to pool their technological resources in this undertaking.

This has to be a co-operative enterprise, he said, in which all the free nations will work. It has to be a world-wide effort for plenty and freedom and, therefore, peace.

Business, private capital, agriculture and labor in this country must co-operate in this program to greatly increase the industrial activity in other nations and raise substantially their standard of living, Mr. Truman said.

Key to Prosperity, Peace.
Greater production is the key to prosperity and peace, he said, and the key to greater production is a wider and more vigorous application of modern scientific and technological knowledge.

These new economic developments will have to be devised and controlled to benefit the people in the areas in which they are being established, he said.

He said also that the old imperialism, which he interpreted as exploitation for foreign profits, is out of step with modern civilization. What he said he had in mind was a program of development based on the principle of fair dealing.

Only by helping the least fortunate of its members to help themselves can the human family achieve the decent satisfying life that is the right of all people, he said.

"Peace with freedom and justice cannot be bought cheaply," Mr. Truman said. "No single nation has all the answers. It can be assured only by the combined efforts of people throughout the world who want to secure peace. They are our friends and we must keep them our friends."

This third world war, the former President stressed, would spell the end of civilization.

Emphasizing again his convictions that permanent world peace is hinged to the free nations making friends, he said that more than half the people in the world are living in conditions approaching misery, the victims of disease and participants in an economic life which is primitive and stagnant.

It is the manner with which the free nations deal with those people as human beings, he said, whether they shall become our friends or the friends of those who are not bent on achieving peace, as we are.

He said that for the first time in history, humanity possesses the knowledge and the skill to relieve the suffering of these people. The United States, he went on, is pre-eminent among the free nations in the development of industrial and scientific techniques; and while there is a limit to the material resources which we can afford to use for the assistance of other peoples, our technological knowledge and skills are virtually inexhaustible.

Mr. Truman said that he believed that the United States and the United Nations should make available to all peace-loving peoples the benefit of our store of technological knowledge in order to help them realize their aspirations for a better life.

We should, he said, in co-operation with other nations, foster capital investment in these areas for their development.

Our purpose, he continued, should be to help the free peoples of the world, through their own efforts, to produce

PEARSON Democrats Aid Military Rise In Civilian Jobs

They Fail to Block Committee Approval of Aids to Gen. Swing.

By DREW PEARSON
WASHINGTON.

THE Democrats had an excellent chance to stand up against the further militarization of the civilian branch of government when the House Armed Services Committee had to vote on permitting two generals—Maj. Gen. Frank Partidge and Brig. Gen. Edwin B. Howard—to join Lt. Gen. Joseph M. Swing in running the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

Gen. Swing, an Eisenhower classmate at West Point with no previous experience in immigration problems, has been running the bureau with an iron hand, and wanted two more military pals to help him do it. Congress has not yet acted on the appointment and Congressman Robert Molloy of West Virginia, a member of the Armed Services Committee, moved to do so, but his fellow Democrats lined up with the generals.

Here are the Democrats who voted for the generals: Carl Vinson (Ga.), Overton Brooks (La.), Paul J. Kilday (Tex.), L. Mendel Rivers (S.C.), F. Edward Hebert (La.), O. C. Fisher (Tex.), Porter Hardy Jr. (Va.), Charles E. Bennett (Fla.), Richard E. Lankford (Md.), George Huddleston Jr. (Ala.).

Republicans voting for the generals were: Leslie C. Arends (Ill.), W. Sterling Cole (N.Y.), James T. Patterson (Conn.), William E. Hess (O.), William H. Bates (Mass.), Leroy Johnson (Calif.), Leon H. Gavin (Pa.), Philip J. Philbin (Mass.), William G. Bray (Ind.).

Four Democrats lined up with Molloy against the generals. They were: Arthur Winstead (Miss.), Melvin Price (Ill.), Clyde Doyle (Calif.), Victor Wickersham (Okla.).

AD LIB.—The President's speech-writers are having trouble keeping him from giving his speeches off-the-cuff a la Truman. "Mr. Eisenhower has insisted on giving his next speech ad lib. CHILDS Conservatives Look Like Shoo-In As British Election Nears; Laborites Divided and Confused Tories Resemble G.O.P.; They Are Well Organized, Have More Money to Spend Than Opposition — Bevan, Attlee Each Has Own Followers.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, May 24.

ON THE theme of "you never had it so good" translated into somewhat more urbane terms, the Conservative party led by Prime Minister Sir Anthony Eden is asking to be retained in power and the general belief is that they are a shoo-in. Conservative speakers throughout the country are ringing the changes on peace and prosperity, prosperity and peace. The election is next Thursday.

The Conservative campaign has some resemblance to that put on by the Republicans in 1952. The bland Conservative mixture of promise and vaunted performance foreshadows the Republicans' line in 1956. There is, in fact, a superficial resemblance between the Republicans in America and the Conservatives in Britain.

While both Labor and Conservatives, judged by American standards, operate in a pathetically amateurish and improvised fashion, the Tories are much the better organized. They obviously have more money and they are using it to create a glossy impression of inevitable triumph by the class best fitted to govern Britain. Their television appearances are, by British standards, carefully planned for the utmost effect.

Some Resemblance.
It is easy to see some resemblance between Conservative and Republican personalities in London and in Washington. Chancellor of the Exchequer R. A. Butler, whose private interests are interwoven with the country's top industry and finance, has skillfully managed the government's fiscal policy. His opposite number in Washington is Secretary of the Treasury George Humphrey. Both share a desire to break through debt and tax-ridden economies to give greater opportunity to private incentive and profit.

The resemblance between the two right-wing parties on each side of the Atlantic is, of course, only superficial. It is all infinitely more polite over here. Sir Winston Churchill calls Clement Attlee, the former Labor Premier, a peabird; Attlee calls Sir Winston a chameleon; and Churchill, noting this exchange in a campaign speech with that puckish look of a naughty boy on his face, says, "I like both these animals."

The words "Communist" or "treason" have not come into

In almost every department, and this is what really sets the British Tories and the American Republicans apart, the Conservatives have run away with Labor's social welfare program. In his campaign speeches, Churchill, whose political roots go back to unadulterated Toryism, boasts of the number of schools and houses his government built in the past three and one half years. In the previous election the Conservatives claimed they

GALLUP 'Best Brains' Reject Bricker Treaty Curb

'Who's Who' Sampling Shows Nearly 3 to 1 Opposed.

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., May 24.
MOST observers agree that the Bricker amendment, designed to restrict the treaty-making powers of the President, involves a point of constitutional law so fine that the average citizen cannot grasp it.

What do the best "brains" in the country have to say about it? The Institute sought the answer by conducting a special poll among a representative sample of persons listed in Who's Who in America.

The question: "What is your opinion of the proposed Bricker amendment?"

A tabulation of the replies shows almost 3-to-1 against the proposed amendment. Sixty per cent were unfavorable, 21 per cent favorable, while 19 per cent were undecided or did not reply.

Comments ranged all the way from that of a 64-year-old Spokane lawyer who said the amendment "is vitally necessary" to that of a 64-year-old Duxbury (Mass.) writer who said, "Drop it fast."

Some Majority Views.

Here are some answers typical of the majority point of view: "The amendment attempts to prevent ill-advised use of the presidential power. I agree that the powers have been unwisely used, but they are essential to the conduct of foreign affairs. Better Presidents are the answer." (Massachusetts educator, 53)

"An unnecessary and hampering proposal, loaded with political bias and potentialities that could defeat its purpose where it can only mean distrust of the executive." (North Carolina educator, 53)

"Adoption of this amendment would be the first step toward fascism." (Ohio investment banker, 77)

"It is unnecessary and harmful. It will make the conduct of American foreign affairs more difficult and confused."

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Rumpus in the Assembly

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

We hear and read a lot about juvenile delinquency but after reading about the disgraceful rumpus in our own State Legislature, I wonder if we are missing the point when we call delinquency "juvenile."

Teen-agers are merely a few steps away from childhood, but by the time persons are old enough to be in the State Legislature they should be able to show some maturity in solving their problems and their differences.

As long as adults in positions of leadership continue to settle their problems by juvenile behavior, what can we expect of our young people?

Perhaps what we should do is straighten out (or kick out) some of our state legislators and then tackle the problem of the juveniles.

BEATRICE HECHLER.
Troy, Mo.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The barroom tactics, hoodlum antics, childish activities recently going on in the halls of the Missouri Legislature might reasonably be expected when the inactive public sits back and permits a bunch of selfish interests to select their candidates and then elect them to do their bidding and dirty work.

We shall continue to have selfish, dominant and "hoodlum attitude" members in both the House and Senate from both the cities as well as the country. What we saw in action last week at Jefferson City indicates statehoodism seems to be the order of the day. From top officials on down, we need to clean house. Wake up voters, stop these brawls and disgraces to our state.

I. W. THOMAS.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In a single house legislature we would not have such disgraceful and undignified proceedings as we suffered just recently.

WILLIAM HENRY GRUEN.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I am writing to say that I feel our state "legislators" (to use the term lightly) have certainly shown themselves. I am sure it was not a Representative from my district, who said, "Let's go back and start killing Senate bills."

But, if he were I would like to know it.

LINCOLN COUNTY READER.

As Outsiders See An Issue

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The coming bond proposals are inconsistent as far as civil defense is concerned. The expressway program is quite properly urged as an aid to emergency evacuation in case of A-bomb attack, and would also aid the long-run dispersal of the target area.

On the other hand, the proposal for flood protection of potential industrial land would add to the concentration of industry between our downtown area and the industrial areas on the Illinois side, giving better hunting for enemy bombardiers, and increasing the number of people needing evacuation.

Even without these considerations, why should St. Louis and the United States Government pay to upgrade privately-owned land from agricultural to more valuable industrial use? If the project is worth the cost, why can't the landowners pay for their own improvements? It is fortunate that the voters can consider the propositions separately.

Kirkwood. J. K. LEWIS.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I think the people of St. Louis would be foolish not to vote the flood-wall bond. We have such protection here in Paducah. Our community was covered with water in 1937. We had to leave our homes and seek shelter anywhere. Meantime we were unable to work. So I say that the proposition for flood control is worthwhile.

C. J. RHODES.
Paducah, Ky.

Another Side

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

You have published two letters presenting one side of the situation on admission to medical schools. Now how about hearing another side?

Only a small percentage of applicants to any medical school are accepted. If a Jewish applicant is rejected, it is discrimination. How about the many more Christian rejections?

Then again many of our medical schools are run by Christian organizations, which certainly should give them a right to limit admission to non-Christians.

The solution to the problem is this—instead of Jewish organizations sending $100,000,000 to Israel every year, why not build medical schools in which they can limit non-Jewish admissions to any percentage they prefer. That should end any complaints.

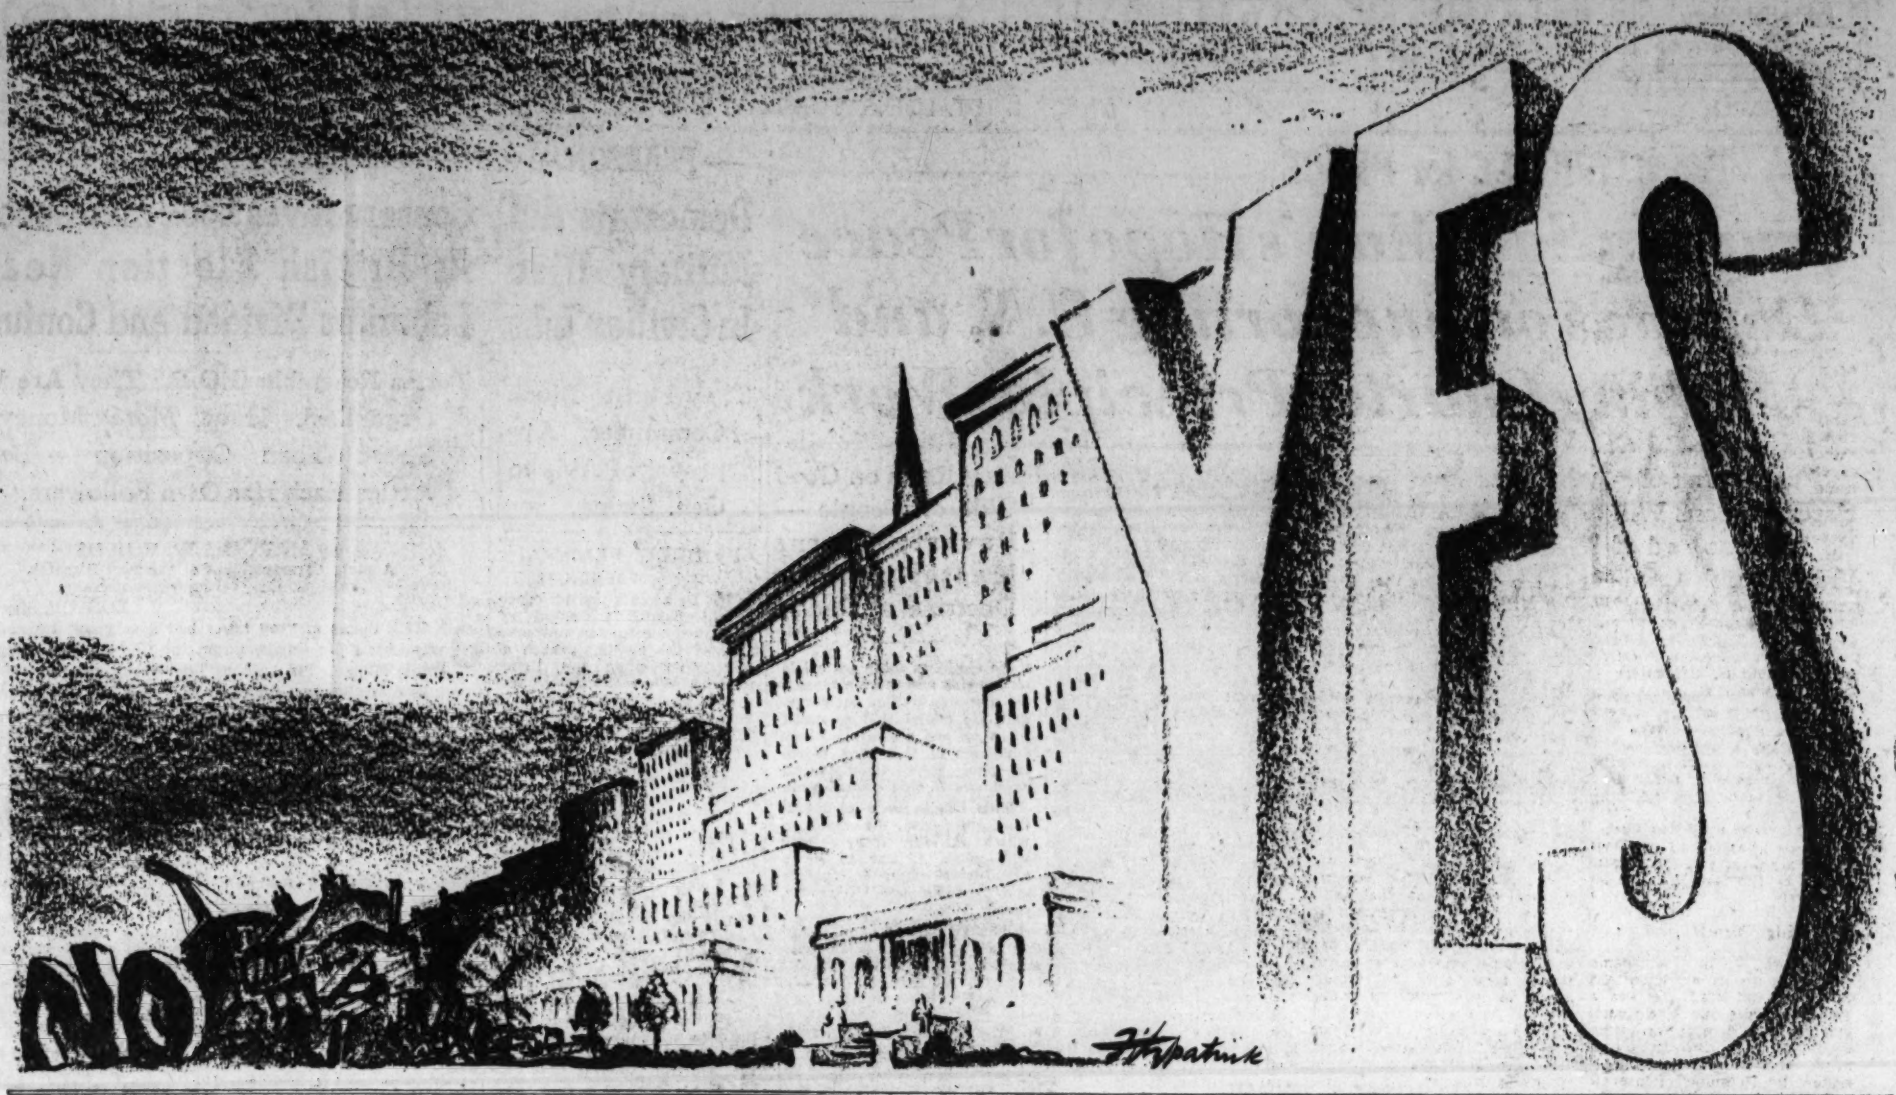

SAUCE FOR THE GOOSE.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

My opinion of the Trogodytes who control our institutions of higher learning has always been pretty low. But after reading the letter of the Jew who wanted to be a doctor I feel my opinion was fully justified. It seems to me that all these "intellectuals" are fit for, is to run around in cap and gown trying to impress themselves and the givers of largess with their importance.

Even so I never thought they would fall low enough to embrace the principles of the K. K. Klan.

SAMUEL HILL.

Protecting a Basic Right

The Supreme Court did a good day's work Monday. By comfortable margins and led by Chief Justice Warren, the high tribunal took a strong stand on the side of the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution with respect to the guarantee against self-incrimination.

Three men were cited by Congress for contempt because they would not answer certain questions put to them. Each invoked the pertinent words of the Bill of Rights, namely: "No person shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself."

The three were a pair of officials of the United Electrical Workers Union, Julius Emspak and Thomas Quinn, and the general manager of the Communist newspaper, The Daily Worker, Philip Bart. The cases of Emspak and Quinn went back to 1949 when they were found in contempt by the House Un-American Activities Committee.

That committee had every cause to be investigating Communist infiltration of labor unions for some unions had permitted themselves to be taken over pretty much by Communist party members. In the Electrical Workers Union the situation was so bad that the parent CIO finally expelled the UE.

Notwithstanding all this, the three men all were within their constitutional rights in invoking the Fifth Amendment and the Supreme Court has served the country by saying so. But in saying this we do not applaud the three cited men any more than does the Supreme Court. We do not defend their ideas or their activities in unionism. On the contrary, we are dead against them.

The founders wrote the Fifth Amendment into the Constitution because they knew what it was for a man to be judged guilty because a confession had been wrung from him by torturers. They wisely required that an accused person could be convicted only on the testimony of others. They wanted no more of the royal Star Chamber they had left in the Old World.

Reviewing the Emspak case, Chief Justice Warren who read the majority opinion said that it seemed "clear that answers to the questions might be dangerous because injurious disclosure could result." This was enough. The Justices soundly did not decide whether the First Amendment's protection of free speech was involved. That issue has been raised in other tests and will be up for decision soon.

The lineup of the Justices in these Fifth Amendment cases is worth noting. In all three cases Chief Justice Warren and Justices Black, Douglas, Frankfurter, Burton and Clark upheld the invokers of the protection and threw out the contempt findings. The newest member, Justice Harlan, was in the majority in two of the cases and with the minority in one.

These decisions ought to be a strong counterforce against those thoughtless, irresponsible people who have been content to see the historic Fifth Amendment—with its guarantees against double jeopardy and the taking of private property for public use without just compensation—turned into a smear term.

Pavement for Politics

Senator Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas has attacked the Administration highway program for just the wrong reasons. The Senate Democratic leader charges that the plan means "bonds for boulevards" but "leaves out farm-to-market roads."

This argument invites the kind of rural-urban contention which has made a mess of some state highway systems, and certainly ignores the Federal Government's primary responsibility to interstate highways.

Moreover, the Administration program and the rival Gore plan, which Senate Democrats are supporting, are not far apart in provisions for either interstate or farm-market roads. The Eisenhower program would spend 12½ billions on interstate highways in five years; the plan of Senator Gore of Tennessee would provide nearly nine billions. The first calls for federal expenditures of $1,050,000,000 on farm-market roads in five years; the second for $1,500,000,000.

These differences between the two bills are not enough to argue bitterly about, but the method of financing is. The Gore plan retains the traditional method of payment by appropriation. But the Administration program calls for floating special bonds which, by some fancy bookkeeping, would not be reflected in the federal debt.

Democrats can attack that aspect of the Eisenhower Administration proposal as misleading and expensive. But statements that farmers have been left out for the benefit of boulevards are purely political pavement.

Now the West's Turn

Possibly the best evidence that important progress has been made in disarmament negotiations was the many speeches by military leaders during Armed Forces week against disarmament.

The new Soviet proposals, some of which come close to previously advanced Western ideas, have changed the situation so markedly that the U.N. Disarmament Subcommittee has suspended its London meetings for a period of reflection. "To a measurable degree," said the American delegate, James W. Wadsworth, "the gaps between us seem to have been lessened." The subcommittee is to resume deliberations in New York after June 1.

As if in direct response, the air has been ringing with warnings from military men. Gen. Nathan F. Twining, Air Force Chief of Staff, in a Los Angeles speech declared that "we throw away our best insurance for peace" if we relinquish nuclear weapons. At another point in his address he said: "To give up nuclear weapons, unless all arms are truly banned, would mean victory for the Communists."

Gen. Twining is quite right in saying that disarmament cannot be applied to nuclear weapons alone. It cannot be applied exclusively to any other weapons in which one side or the other is presumed to have the advantage. And so the West has properly insisted on an integrated, balanced disarmament plan applying to all weapons and forces together, and proceeding on a single step-by-step schedule. The news is that the Soviet Union, after resisting this concept for so long, has accepted it, along with other Western views.

If disarmament agreements are ever achieved they may well be the last of a series of agreements on other issues, since they would require a degree of mutual trust which has not yet been created. But as U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld said, in hailing the progress so far made, it would be wrong to suppose that disarmament discussions should therefore be postponed. There is an interplay in all negotiations, he said, and "the very study of disarmament may be the vehicle for progress towards greater international understanding."

The current upturn in hope for an ultimate disarmament treaty was a consequence of Soviet proposals. Let Western diplomats resolve that the next upturn shall be credited to the West.

Full Value for Every Dollar

Who will be responsible for seeing that every dollar in the $110,639,000 bond issue is spent for the purpose for which it was voted?

There are, of course, many legal safeguards. These are administered by the responsible officials of the municipal government, and they can be enforced in the courts by an individual citizen. But over and above them is the device of the "watchdog" committee of citizens who can be counted upon to carry out the spirit as well as the letter of the 23 bond propositions.

Mayor Tucker has pledged that he will appoint just such a group if the people approve the bond issue at the Thursday election. It will be broadly representative, including individuals from business, labor, neighborhood and other groups. Its job will be to see that bond funds are used as advertised, and to assure St. Louis that it receives full value for every dollar spent.

This means that the people themselves will keep an eye on where the money goes.

A Month After Bandung

Under Secretary of State Herbert Hoover Jr. told a Los Angeles audience that this country welcomes recent Formosa peace bids by the Chinese Communists.

Discussing Chou En-lai's offer, during the Bandung conference, to negotiate with the United States, Mr. Hoover said we do not know what the purpose was, but "we intend to find out."

The date of this eminently sensible comment was May 23, just one month after Chou En-lai's first statement at Bandung. At the time—on April 23, to be exact—Secretary Dulles was away from his island and Mr. Hoover, as Acting Secretary of State, drafted a sharp reply to Chou En-lai which many Asians interpreted as throwing a bucket of cold water on the offer.

Mr. Dulles moved quickly to set things right when he got back to Washington, and now Mr. Hoover seems to be all straightened out. But what a lot of trouble would have been avoided if the Under Secretary had made on April 23 the friendly skeptical but receptive comment he finally made on May 23!

Reaction Through the Back Door

The Mirror
Public Opinion

California newspaper says new Hoover Commission would return Government responsibility to era of former President; has attacked whole series of reforms; this explains its low batting average in Congress in comparison with previous commission.

From The Sacramento Bee

Although Hooverism was emphatically ejected at the front door by the American voters in 1932 it is attempting to worm its way back into power by the back door.

After the Republican victory in 1952 the Hoover Commission was reconstituted. With sudden boldness it thereupon ceased to concern itself exclusively with, or even mainly, with neutral questions of efficient government procedure but instead began to expound and push for the discredited and antiquated principles of its chief, Herbert Hoover.

The dominant theme has seemed to be liquidation of as much of American social reforms as possible through assignment of government services to private enterprise.

It was the Hoover Commission which trundled out the partnership idea of power development, a policy which has caused the nation to lag far behind the need for new sources of power.

The commission moved from that proposal to one that most credit agencies of the Government be abolished and their functions returned to private banks and investment houses.

Now pursuing the theme to which Hoover clung so doggedly when millions were hungry, the commission has come up with a new list of activities to be relinquished to private business. It would curtail parcel post and wants the military service to get out of most of their business lines such as bakeries, meat cutting, laundry, dry goods and shoe repair, presumably regardless of the effect upon the servicemen's pocketbooks.

The commission in its most recent frenzy for promoting Hoover's old rugged individualism urged further that the Tennessee Valley Authority cease the production of fertilizer and the operation of post exchanges.

This last report was too reactionary for commission member James A. Farley, a conservative Democrat. He entered a stiff dissent.

It is not strange the Hoover Commission's batting average in Congress has declined sharply. Whereas the commission as constituted under former President Harry S. Truman saw 20 per cent of its recommendations enacted into law in a few months, the present commission with its switch to policy making has yet to find one legislative enactment following 200 recommendations.

The Hoover pressure could be dangerous, as the power business shows. Yet it has been useful in revealing how relentlessly a hard core of reaction will persist in its campaign for a counter revolution against the liberal advances of the last 20 years.

Between Book Ends

Mary Pickford Looks Back

SUNSHINE AND SHADOW, by Mary Pickford.
(Doubleday & Co., 382 pp., $4.75.)

There has been much of sunshine in the life of Mary Pickford, which she has shared with all the world, but much of shadow, too, which until now she has kept hidden in her heart. In her autobiography she has told about both as nobody else could because nobody else has known how often the shadow has darkened the sunshine for "America's sweetheart."

Mary Pickford's autobiography is not the history of motion pictures but the story of her own relation to them almost from their inception and through their development. She didn't think much of the "gallipating tinsies" at first. She was an actress at the age of 12 with four years of stock company acting behind her when D. W. Griffith persuaded her to do a day's work for him on "Pippa Passes." The pay was $5. That launched her in pictures and she went on to fame and fortune and a most remarkable personal achievement.

Cecil B. DeMille, writing the foreword for "Sunshine and Shadow," tries to account for there having been only one Mary Pickford. It was not, he says, acting ability, technique or conscious artistry, but in her way she belonged in that small but highly potent group of individuals, never more than a handful in any generation, who fire the imaginations of many because, somehow, they respond to something deep in the minds and hearts of their contemporaries.

Shining through Mary Pickford's story is her devotion to the members of her family. It was mutual and so intense that her first husband, Owen Moore, couldn't abide it and it contributed to the unhappy ending of that marriage. There was something storybook in her relations with her second husband, Douglas Fairbanks, but it ended in a tragic chapter, and it was only in her third marriage, with Buddy Rogers, that her happiness was complete.

In telling the story of her life Mary Pickford brings to bear all the warmth and charm that she infused into her acting. It has been a full, exciting and productive life. In the fullness of her years she says she has no desire to go back and live that life again. For her there is only the great Today and the promise of Tomorrow, with the sunshine and shadow of maturity.

A Joker on a Utopian Isle

LAUGH TILL YOU CRY, by Mankowitz. (E. P. Dutton & Co., 127 pp., $2.50.)

Mr. Rantz is shipwrecked on an island. His possessions are few. Chief among them is a crate of his company's products, practical jokes.

Specifically, they are 1 box King Crackers, 1 Pussycray, 2 doz Snowies, 1 doz pkts Lowdies, 1 doz Coramba cigars, 6 pkts Ace itching powder, 1 Squeak-seal, 1 Bunjump, 1 Mocknick, 2 doz Stinkos, 1 box Mockbeans and 1 pkt Snakes. Civilized tricks.

All right. The natives are Ditts. The Ditts are a pretty sad bunch, according to Mr. Mankowitz's views. They have poverty and waste. Everything has its purchasing power. Their institutions, such as marriage, are hypocritical and empty.

Mr. Rantz, being schooled in civilization, soon parlays his tricks into power. Then he finds that having all, he has nothing. Then he finds a quite adequate Utopia with the exiles. Everybody seems to be real happy and anti-civilization. And there sits the island of Ditt, sort of unresolved in a murky sea of symbolism. Personally, we wonder how that particular Utopia came out—but the book ended.

This is an interesting book for folks who like meanings obscured but not much. Mr. Mankowitz is an interesting writer. Malcolm Muggeridge, editor of Punch, in a foreword, says Mankowitz's humor is rich. But this isn't a funny book, in the sense of, say, exploding cigars. The laughing is done mostly to keep from crying. JOHN KEASLER.

Study of Our Legal System

THE AMERICAN LEGAL SYSTEM, by Lewis Mayers. (Harper's, $4.50.)

It has been said of our legal system that "such a multiplicity both of laws and jurisdictions has seldom existed in a single civilized community." Prof. Mayers offers this book as the first systematic account of our legal institutions (as distinct from our law).

Walt Whitman—Former St. Louisan

From The St. Louis American

One anniversary that falls in this year of 1955 that St. Louis should not pass without commemoration is that of Walt Whitman's "Leaves of Grass." One hundred years ago this book of poetry was first published—and the spirit of America has been quickened ever since. Walt Whitman was indigenous. His vistas continue to sing themselves:

Come, I will make the continent indissoluble,
I will make the sun ever shone upon,
I will make divine magnetic lands,
With the love of comrades,
With the life-long love of comrades,
I will plant companionship thick as trees along all the rivers of America, and along the shores of the great lakes, and all over the prairie;
I will make inseparable cities with their arms about each other's necks,
By the love of comrades,
By the manly love of comrades.
For you these from me, O Democracy,
To serve you me I am trilling these songs. . . .

St. Louis has a small but disregarded claim on Walt Whitman. He once lived a while here. His brother, Thomas Whitman, was an official of the city for more than 10 years. He served as city engineer and later as Water Commissioner.

It was in the late '70s, when the Good Gray Poet had reached his peak as "the" American poet, that he came to St. Louis to visit his brother and to remain here several months.

One of his daily pastimes was to walk down to the foot of Washington avenue and lean on the new Eads Bridge to watch the activity along the levee.

Some years before he and his brother, Thomas, had come up this river from financially disastrous but lastingly voluptuous experience in New Orleans.

But it is a local fact that Walt Whitman was a resident of St. Louis and that the house that he lived in with another brother, Jefferson, still stands. It is in the area that is bounded by the new rehabilitation bond issue. Something should be done to either preserve or mark the spot.

The address where Walt Whitman lived is 2316 Pine street in a dilapidated Philadelphia-style joined tenement. Just across the street then was the Loretto Academy convent which is now a hotel!

Private Flying Is a Solid Business

From the A.O.P.A. Pilot

There still are far too many people who think of private flying in terms of "Cubs," "put-puts," and pilots who generally are believed to be funny-looking members of the screwball fringe of humanity. We went into some detail to show that quite the contrary actually is true, that the much-maligned "Cub" today is a $7000 Piper Tri-Pacer, and that the supposedly wild-eyed pilot is actually the man next door, or your family doctor, your attorney, or your local car dealer.

Because the Aircraft Owners' and Pilots' Association now has the only readily-available punch-card record on every Civil Aeronautics Administration-certified aircraft in the country, we can learn a number of interesting facts about this private flying business, facts we didn't know before. Here are a few current items.

Private owners own almost as many multi-engine aircraft (1411) as the scheduled airlines (1477). In addition to those private owners, business organizations around the country own 2437 multi-engine aircraft. So altogether, non-airline owners own 2.6 multi-engine aircraft to every one owned by the airlines.

Among the single-engine aircraft, 63,464 are privately-owned, and 19,063 are owned by businesses.

In both categories private owners currently own 64,875 aircraft, and business concerns own 21,500.

Then combine with these figures the latest data compiled by the CAA shows that these planes flew nearly a billion miles in a recent year and burned 132,000,000 gallons of gasoline in the same year.

Such numbers add up to a pretty hefty little industry, and one that's growing all the time. Dealers, distributors and manufacturers of products for this industry consistently report more optimism and enthusiasm than we've heard of in recent years. The CAA's control towers (which represent only 3 per cent of all the United States airports) recorded a total of 7,755,550 non-airline civil aircraft movements last year alone—as compared with a total of 5,482,515 movements for the airlines.

These, then, are private flying's "facts of life." Next time someone pooch-pooches the private flying industry in the United States, just tell him for example, that the 10,487 civil aircraft currently registered in California alone come within 1094 of equalling the 11,581 civil aircraft that are the combined total registered in 21 other countries throughout the world!

THOMAS L. STOKES

When Justice Roberts Was a Key Figure

WASHINGTON. WE ALL RECOGNIZE that our government in its Executive branch today is under conservative management that has applied the brakes to slow down the economic and social reform movement developed during the 20 years of the Roosevelt-Truman regime that ended two years ago.

While the bulk of those reforms still are on the books, and some like social security have been expanded, others have been weakened by administrative rulings, notably in the field of natural resources, and especially in multi-purpose development of our great river systems.

How much further this back-tracking through administrative action may go no one can foretell. Much will depend on whether the Administration gets a further lease of power in next year's national elections.

In the midst of the current peaceful "counter-revolution," as it might be called, the death a few days ago of former Justice Owen J. Roberts of the United States Supreme Court took the mind back to the noisy and exciting "revolution," also peaceful, known as the New Deal which was directed by and dominated by the late Franklin D. Roosevelt.

First Big Blow.

For Owen J. Roberts became a key figure in an important phase of that era. He was a member of the Supreme Court, and the court became for a time a road-block to the dizzy economic and social changes generated by President Roosevelt and a Democratic Congress. In the end Justice Roberts became an instrument in removing that obstacle.

The first big explosion came with the decision holding NRA unconstitutional. That—National Recovery Administration—was created by Congress to supervise codes between Government and industry, including hours and increasing wages in order to absorb the great army of unemployed and infuse purchasing power into our starved economy.

At two succeeding news conferences, President Roosevelt deplored that decision and castigated the court for taking the country back to the "horse-and-buggy age," as he phrased it.

The public debate that he stirred up then by his attack on the court was only intensified by another decision. That nullified AAA, the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, the basic farm recovery agency created by Congress.

A Remarkable Memory.

Incidentally, that decision was delivered for a majority of the court by Justice Roberts. This reporter, who was in the court that day, can still remember it.

For two reasons. One was Justice Roberts, himself. He always delivered his opinions from memory and that day his performance seemed especially impressive. A handsome figure of a man, he looked out over the court from the end of the bench.

EAST AND WEST BOTH HONOR THOMAS MANN

Novelist Plays Key Roles in Schiller Ceremonies in Two Germanies.

The New York Herald Tribune Post-Dispatch Special Edition.

BONN, May 24.—Thomas Mann, who will be 80 next month, has just concluded two weeks of unusual activity on both sides of the Iron Curtain.

First in West Germany, next in East Germany, and then again in West Germany, the author of "Buddenbrooks" and "The Magic Mountain" has enjoyed a series of special honors. They culminated in a reconciliation with his birthplace, Lubeck.

Mann, who emigrated to the United States during the Hitler regime and became an American citizen in 1940, has been living in Switzerland since he returned to Europe about four years ago. While declaring himself a "loyal son" of the West, he has from time to time lent his prestige to the activities of the Communists, especially the East Germans.

Stuttgart Ceremonies. Two weeks ago, at Stuttgart in West Germany, he was the dominant figure in impressive ceremonies commemorating the 150th anniversary of the death of the German writer Friedrich Schiller. He sat with West German President Theodor Heuss in the presence of 1400 Schiller festival guests, including many distinguished persons.

Mann's address was the high point of the event. A few days later, he was in different company. After crossing the border between West and East Germany near Eisenach, he was driven to Weimar for another Schiller festival with an escort of Communist people's police.

Then he headed back West, this time to his native north German city of Lubeck. Lubeck, whose society he scalded in Buddenbrooks more than 50 years ago, in 1901, finally buried the hatchet with him and made him an honorary citizen.

"Retrospect of Humanity." Both in Stuttgart, near Schiller's birthplace, and at Weimar, where Schiller died, Mann delivered the same address. At the end, he described the present state of mankind as follows: "The last half century has been a retrogression of humanity, a frightening atrophy of culture of the most sinister kind, a loss in education, in decorum, in feeling for law, in truth and faith, in the most simple de-where he sat as he recited his opinion with the magnificence of a Shakespearean actor of the old school.

The second striking factor was the tortuous, involved devious path his decision took to arrive finally at the strangulation of the AAA law so dear to millions of farmers.

It was on that occasion that Justice Harlan Fiske Stone, who was rated among the liberals on the bench of that day and later was Chief Justice, bluntly denounced the court's majority for arrogating to itself legislative power and torturing the Constitution in this decision, as he saw it.

His outburst reflected the rising public criticism of the court provoked by President Roosevelt.

Perhaps the crowning blow came in the spring of 1936 when the court, by a 5-to-4 decision in which Justice Roberts joined the majority, held a New York state law fixing minimum wages for women unconstitutional.

Landon's Major Move.

That precipitated the Supreme Court issue into the national political conventions that year, and the candidate nominated by the Republicans, Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas, went so far as to come out for a constitutional amendment to permit states to pass minimum wage laws.

In February of next year, 1937, after his landslide reelection, President Roosevelt submitted to Congress the now famous "packing" bill to increase the size of the court by adding a member for each of the sitting members over 70 who remained on the bench.

This was the ultimate challenge to Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, who had seen the threat to the court and its prestige in the previous Roosevelt administration.

His hand was visible in a decision handed down soon thereafter which upheld, 5-to-4, a Washington state law fixing minimum wages for women. That reversed the New York decision, which had been handed down in the short space of only nine months.

The Pendulum Swings.

Here Justice Roberts was the key. He switched to uphold the minimum wage principle, swinging the court that way. It came out afterward that the court already had taken its vote in private before President Roosevelt had submitted his court "packing" bill.

But this shift was indicative of the skillful maneuvering which Chief Justice Hughes had begun soon after the election and the strategy became very plain subsequently as the court upheld other New Deal statutes, one after another. That tempered the storm and eventually the "packing" bill was abandoned.

So, through the years, the pendulum swings back and forth in our Government of checks and balances.

URGES SYNTHESIS OF SCIENCE AND RELIGION TO MEET CRISIS

BOSTON, May 24 (AP)—The most pressing need of the times is development of an ideology "that will have an outreach capable of stemming the tide of world Communism," Dr. Earl Martin, president of the Unitarian fellowship said last night.

In a report to the fellowship's annual meeting, Dr. Martin said that "only a synthesis of modern science and religion can fulfill the needs of the hour."

"The Unitarians of today have a future potential comparable to that little band of Christians that laid the foundations of Christianity before the council in Nicea," he said. "I do not believe any of the orthodox religions in existence can carry us through this crisis in Western civilization."

Dr. Martin, a Brooklyn College professor, said that "free and equal" is not the appropriate slogan for the modern world.

"Actually we are unequal and limited to a greater extent than ever before," he said.

"Your freedom and well-being and mine depends on the ideas of our neighbor's minds," he added.

pendability. Two world wars, sowing crudeness and rapacity, have forced the intellectual and moral level deeply downward and have produced a confusion which offers a poor defense against the plunge into a third war that would end everything.

"Rage and fear, superstitious hate, panic and wild persecution rule humanity. Without regard to Schiller's call for the silent creation of better conceptions, of purer principles, of nobler ways, degenerate mankind, drunken with stupefaction, is reeling toward its ruin to the announcement of sensational new technical and sports records."

He also referred briefly to the current split condition of Germany. "In Schiller's name," he said, "divided Germany can feel itself united against this political monstrosity."

PRESBYTERIANS VOTE TO ORDAIN WOMEN

Decision of Assembly (U.S.A.) Is Subject to Approval of Church Members.

LOS ANGELES, May 24 (UP)—The 167th General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America voted yesterday to allow women to become ordained ministers of the church. The decision, which was reached after heated debate, now must have the approval of some 2,500,000 church members in presbyteries throughout the country.

The action came in the form of a constitutional amendment which would allow both men and women to be called to the office of the ministry as bishops, pastors and associate pastors.

Mrs. J. R. Salbury, president of the National Council of Presbyterian women's organizations, called the amendment "a step toward maturity."

The proposal was adopted by a standing vote. A committee which favored ordination of women said in its report:

"...there is an increasing co-operation between men and women in business, industry, government, professional life and the church, whereby each makes room for the other to develop his or her special potentialities and each recognizes the other as a partner on equal footing."

"The Bible teaches... 'in Christ Jesus there is neither male nor female'..."

MEMORIAL SERVICES FOR RICHARD J. RAMMING

Memorial services for Richard J. Ramming, president and treasurer of John Ramming Machine Co., will be tomorrow at 10:30 a.m. at Webster Groves Presbyterian Church, 55 West Lockwood avenue. Interment in New Saint Marcus Cemetery on Thursday will be private.

Mr. Ramming died early yesterday at Barnes Hospital of burns suffered last May 8 when the automobile he was driving crashed into the rear of another automobile on U. S. Highway 40 near Terre Haute, Ind., causing both machines to catch fire. He was 52 years old and maintained a residence in Taos, N.M., and an apartment at the Congress Hotel.

Survivors include his wife, Florence R. Ramming; a daughter, Barbara; a son, John, his mother, Mrs. W. A. Ramming, and a brother, William A. Ramming Jr.

EISENHOWER PRAISES CLUBWOMEN'S WORK

Commends Federation for Efforts to Increase International Goodwill.

PHILADELPHIA, May 24 (AP)—President Eisenhower commended the General Federation of Women's Clubs today for its efforts to increase international goodwill. The message from the White House was sent to the opening of the organization's sixty-fourth annual convention.

Mr. Eisenhower said it was particularly impressive that through their generous contributions for overseas relief, the clubwomen have demonstrated their friendship for women of other nations.

The General Federation, the world's largest organization of women, has 11,000,000 members, half in clubs in this country and the rest in affiliated clubs in 33 foreign countries.

Mrs. Theodore E. Chapman of Jerseyville, Ill., General Federation president, said in an address that she hoped all member clubs in this country and abroad would celebrate the United Nations tenth anniversary in October.

"There is so much misinformation and misunderstanding about the U.N. that I challenge our clubs to be the channel through which authentic information and better understanding reach people everywhere," said Mrs. Chapman.

Mrs. Chapman, who is beginning her second year of her two-year term, congratulated the clubwomen on their drive to rid the newsstands of horror, crime and sex comic books.

This is one of the major objectives of her administration. She told the clubwomen they were getting results but she warned them to remain vigilant.

"As vigilance is the price of freedom, so it is the price of decency," she said.

She reported "almost universal co-operation" among the clubwomen toward building what will be the world's biggest cross at Bald Mountain near Cairo, Ill. This project is sponsored by the Bald Mountain Association.

Mrs. Chapman told reporters yesterday that it now appears there should have been more research before announcement was made about the Salk polio vaccine.

She said there was a possibility an emergency resolution will come up during the convention urging more caution and advance preparations in announcing results of future scientific findings.

Men of Distinction.

JIM JACKSON'S performance in the Walker Cup competition at famed St. Andrews left no doubt he belongs in the distinguished group of top American amateurs. Partnered with Bruce Cudd in the foursomes, Jackson's putting helped produce one of the best approximate medal scores of those four matches. He and Cudd were just one stroke over the figures given for par. The next day in the singles, the St. Louis star was one under par in his victory over the 44-year-old Irishman, Cecil Ewing, who is classed as an expert with long irons into the wind, a player whose favorite layout is the Old Course at St. Andrews. In the singles only Harvie Ward (three under) was sharper than Jackson in approximate medal and only Bill Joe Patton and Dick Yost equaled Jackson's one-under performance.

Jackson is entered in the British Amateur starting May 30 and then possibly may defend his Trans-Mississippi title at Des Moines June 13-19. The schedule was too jammed to permit his state title defense in the Missouri tournament at Kansas City June 7.

One of the best showings in many years was made by St. Louis golfers in the National Public Links championship a year ago at Dallas. Joe Evans went to the semifinals, Milt Frank and Art Jennemann to the fourth round. For this reason, if no other, U.S.G.A. delegate Dave Mitchell, is expecting another good showing this season in the National at Indianapolis in July. Entries close June 3 for the sectional trial at Norwood Hills June 20. Original hope to hold the trial at a fee course was discarded when it was found not feasible to close the course during the competition.

Incentive at Algonquin.

HERPHEL, Algonquin pro, and club members are pleased with the progress of their new caddy training program. The caddies should be, too. There are monthly cash awards involved.

In the system, caddies are divided into four classes, according to experience, and for each class a certain grade of mark ranging from exceptional down to poor, plus remarks on performance.

Grades are checked regularly and in two caddy training classes a week each caddy's particular weakness, as noted on the report cards, is given specific attention.

First month awards went to Kennedy, the regular class, Charley Shaiper in Class A, Bob Shannon in Class B and Ed Shannon in Class C.

"Members have noticed a big improvement in caddy performance," Herpel said. The Algonquin pro also is co-operating with membership in searching for boys who may qualify for the Western Golf Association Evans scholarship. There are two or three good prospects, Herpel said. St. Louis's most recent Evans scholar was Rene Bockenkamp, who used his award at the University of Missouri.

A recent P.G.A. gathering, Jim Fogarty reminded professionals that they should install the U. S. G. A. handicapping system if they don't have it already. It is a prerequisite now for eligibility in U.S.G.A. events. Fogarty, a national officer in the P.G.A., will attend the organization's meeting at Chicago in early June.

There still is a large need for donations of old golf sticks to the city's free golf school program. So far the number of sticks available is sufficient only to make up about 12 half sets, and there are about 120 boys and girls enrolled in the program. The City Recreation Department may be called to pick up contributions of equipment.

The Great Lakes Amateur Invitation tournament, which draws an occasional entry from St. Louis, will be played at Southmoor Country Club, Orlando Park, Ill., Aug. 16-19. An outgrowth of the old Chicago district amateur, it is a 72-hole competition limited to seven-handicap players.

Tom Tatum Resigns as Oklahoma City Leader

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., May 24 (UP)—Tommy Tatum, manager of the hard-luck Oklahoma Indians of the Texas League, resigned last night after San Antonio beat the Indians 5 to 3.

The Indians have lost the last seven games. They have won only 14 of 47 games so far this year and are in the Texas League cellar.

Owner-president Jimmie Humphries said he will name a new acting manager for tonight's game with San Antonio in Oklahoma City.

Tatum said he doesn't blame Humphries for the action. "No one can stand still for the kind of a showing we've made," Tatum said. "Everything has gone wrong from the start, that's about all there is to it."

Cardinals-Cubs Game Postponed; Doubleheader Tomorrow

Jackson, Lawrence To Pitch

By Bob Broeg

Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff
CHICAGO, May 24 (UP)—Eddie Stanky, who lost a bout with condiment jars after the Cardinals lost their third straight game Sunday at Cincinnati, dropped a decision to the weatherman this afternoon as his Redbirds' opener of a three-game series with the Chicago Cubs was prevented by rain.

The game immediately was rescheduled as part of a doubleheader tomorrow, and the Cardinal manager named right-handers Larry (2-0) Jackson and Brooks (2-2) Lawrence as Redbird starters in the Wrigley Field twin bill. Southpaw Paul (2-2) Minner and Righthander Bob (2-2) Rush were Stan Hack's choices for a Chicago club that has won eight of its last 10 games.

Stanky, whose young team broke a losing streak in its last game Sunday at Cincinnati, broke jars of mayonnaise and mustard with an angry sweep of his right hand in the Crosley Field clubhouse between games of the drawn-out doubleheader. The hand was cut.

Although he concealed the bandaged hand self-consciously before, during and after an open-date workout yesterday for reserves, and declined to confirm whether stitches had been needed to close the wound, the Redbird manager acknowledged it was a painful experience.

'Lend Me Your Ears.'

Stalking into the ancient frame visitors' clubhouse which must have served Cincinnati since the original Red Stockings went professional back in the 1890s, Stanky swiped aside the condiments set on an equipment trunk for intermission sandwiches. Then, cut accidentally as the mustard jar met the mayonnaise, and reportedly dripping gold, and the red of his own blood, Eddie sounded off about the 4-3, last-minute defeat before he permitted himself first aid.

"An occupational hazard," Stanky called it, managing a smile. "A bad hap in the clubhouse. No, it's not true I was trying to close my throat."

Cardinal players, who ordinarily treat their closed clubhouse with the same privacy they give their own kitchen conversations at home, permitted themselves to comment only when confronted with details obtained elsewhere. Rip Repulski summarized the athletes' viewpoint, it seemed.

"Sure, the skipper blew his top—for the first time this season—and I don't blame him," said the third-year outfielder. "The way we failed to hit with men on base in that series was brutal and that first-game defeat Sunday was a heart-breaker."

"Anybody Shocked?" Repulski, smiling as though he had played for firebrands like John McGraw and Frank Frisch, too, said he realized some players might never have seen a manager unload.

"But I'm not one of 'em," Rip added. "Every manager I ever played for—that includes Harry Walker, Johnny Keane and Stan Benjamin among others—kicked over the furniture in a clubhouse at one time or another."

Stanky, glad to change the subject, emphasized the timely hitting requirement when he said the Cardinals needed only "to do some two-out hitting and scoring," explaining:

"They're over-eager now after failing the star as much as the kid because a player of responsibility regards the job to drive in every run is his. If he tries too hard, he's depriving himself of some of his relaxed skill."

"That's why," continued the little manager who has shown considerable patience with rookies in four seasons with the Cardinals, "I try to avoid bringing up in clubhouse meetings the failure to pick up the easy run, the failure to drive in the man on third with none or one out. There's no reason to heap added pressure on a player."

"Besides," Stanky said, smiling, "I popped up enough times with men on, too."

But there are times when, as happened Sunday, a manager can smile no longer. Then? Hide the mayonnaise and mustard!

Ricketts Is Willing To Accept Two-Year Contract With Hawks

PITTSBURGH, May 24 (AP)—Daddy Dick Ricketts, one of the greatest basketball players in Duquesne university's history, said he was to give both pro basketball and baseball a whirl after he graduates.

The Pittsburger, Pa., youth said he prefers a baseball career but is going to take a crack at the floor game, too.

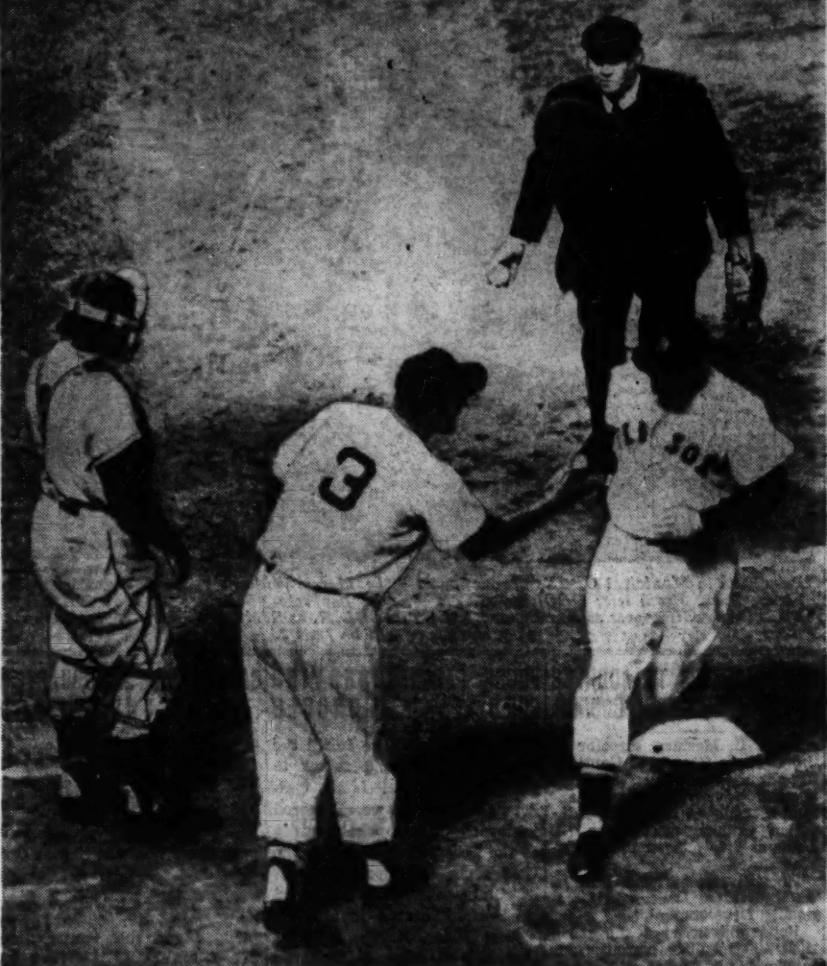

Ricketts, drafted by Milwaukee of the National Basketball Association, a team now transferred to St. Louis, said he will accept a two-year contract.

The big league baseball clubs—the New York Yankees, Philadelphia Phillies and St. Louis Cardinals—reportedly are waiting to talk terms the minute he gets his diploma June 5.

Ricketts, 21, said his baseball future depends on the best offer. He pitches and plays first base but believes he has a better chance to make the grade in the major leagues as a first baseman.

He stands 6 feet 7½ inches and weighs 210 pounds. Senators Release Levan. WASHINGTON, May 24 (UP)—Utility outfielder Jesse Levan of the Washington Senators today was optioned to Charlotte (N.C.) in the Sally League on a 24-hour recall basis.

All's Proper Again in Boston

TED WILLIAMS has hit a home run in Fenway Park, and that makes the baseball season official in Boston, ignoring the small matter that it was in an exhibition game. Williams is shown as he crossed the plate after hitting a 395-foot homer against the New York Giants in a benefit game. At the plate to congratulate Williams, back in baseball since May 10, is Boston's Norm Zauchin. Spectators include Giants catcher Wes Westrum and Umpire Bill Summers.

Ted Williams Hits Home Run; Dave Sisler Hurls 4-Hitter

BOSTON, May 24 (UP)—Ted Williams served notice today that he's about ready to start blasting American League pitching, but the Boston Red Sox slugger said "I'm afraid I can't start right away."

"It's nice to get off to a good start," Williams said last night after he hit a bases-empty home run in an exhibition game with the New York Giants. "I'd like to play tomorrow, but I'm afraid I can't."

The just-returning slugger played two innings in the outfield and said "my legs feel pretty heavy and my arms are a little tired but my hands feel pretty good."

Dave Sisler of St. Louis, Red Sox bonus pitcher, allowed only four hits in trimming the Giants, 4-3. He walked four batters and struck out one. Sisler, son of the great George Sisler, obtained an Army leave to pitch in the contest, a benefit for New England's hospitalized veterans. His Army stint runs for six months. He's expected to join the Sox next season.

Williams hit a one-strike pitch off the Giants bonus pitcher Paul Giel into the right-field grandstand to lead off the third inning. It was a sinking fast ball about waist high.

In his first time at bat, he barely got a piece of a 3-nothing pitch and popped out. He handled three chances in the field flawlessly.

In the pre-game homerun hitting contest, Williams bested Willie Mays by hitting two of the five allowed fair balls into home run territory, both into the right field grandstand. Mays hit one over the left field wall.

The 36-year-old Williams, making his third late in the season start, doubted whether he'd be able to get in the lineup within the week.

Norm Zauchin, Boston's rookie first-sacker, hit two homers, while Bill Taylor had one for New York.

Williams' .212 average still is 84 points lower than he hit for the Sox in 1954. Mays, who won the batting title with a .345 mark last year after deciding to forego home runs and shoot for base hits, planned the same tactics this season but somehow they haven't worked out. He has hit in streaks and his .289 figure is 56 points off his championship pace.

Come Back, Little Hils. Rosen, hampered by a pulled leg muscle, is hitting only .226, compared to last year's .300. Goodman, a lifetime .310 hitter for eight seasons, is struggling along at .231. Noren's present .238 average is far off his impressive 1954 mark of .319, while Catcher Stan Lopata of the Phillies, whose exaggerated crouch stance helped him hit .290 last year is down to .205. Kiner, having difficulty with American League pitching, is hitting only .240.

Adcock is off 56 points to .222; Sauer is down 60 points to .228; Gilliam is down 69 points to .213; Finigan is down 58 points to .244; Boone, bothered by an ailing shoulder, is off 61 points at .224; Yost is down 68 points at .188, and Sammy White of the Red Sox is off 65 points to .217, and Thompson's .217 mark is far off his lifetime .278 pace.

And then there's the sad plight of last year's prize part-time performer and world series hero, Dusty Rhodes of the Giants. Dusty, who hit a lousy .341 in '54, is down to an anemic .128 right now, with only one successful pinch hit to show for his efforts!

Piersall is another whose batting mark is off more than 100 points from '54. A respectable .285 hitter last year, the speedy Red Sox outfielder currently is bogged down at .180.

Robinson insists he is in the best physical shape of the past four seasons. But his 36 years are beginning to show, and his .227 mark is 84 points below his 1954 figure. Jablonski, one of the league's leading hitters for the first half of last season with the Cardinals, has been finding it rough with the Redlegs. Manager Birdie Tebbetts has shifted him to various spots in the batting order in an effort to shake him out of the slump, but Jablonski's .212 average still is 84 points lower than he hit for the Sox in 1954.

Mays, who won the batting title with a .345 mark last year after deciding to forego home runs and shoot for base hits, planned the same tactics this season but somehow they haven't worked out. He has hit in streaks and his .289 figure is 56 points off his championship pace.

New York Boxing Guild Inquiry Adjourned After Demand for Minutes

NEW YORK, May 24 (UP)—The New York State Athletic Commission's fast-finding inquiry into the New York chapter of the International Boxing Guild was adjourned today for at least three weeks when it can be reopened or when the commission can take action on the facts ascertained.

At today's concluding session, Chairman Julius Helfand ordered a request sent to the District Attorney's office for all minutes of the New York Guild's business meetings, which the district attorney impounded some time ago for his own investigation.

This request was made after Jack Reilly, a paid secretary for the New York Guild, had testified that most of the minutes were in the district attorney's office. However, Reilly said minutes of the last few meetings were in the hands of Murray Frank, Guild attorney, and that he had told Reilly there was no authority for Reilly to bring them to the commission hearing.

Helfand said, "we're going to run them down and get all these records."

The only other witness today, Fight Manager Bobby Nelson, denied that there was any connection between his being a member of the guild and his ability to get fights for Lightweight Frank Ippolito of New York. Nelson took over Ippolito's contract on April 1 after his original manager, Joseph Dimaria, was unable to get him matches.

Dimaria, not a member of the guild has said he "froze" out by the Guild.

Southwest High Leads In League Golf Meet

Southwest's 157 strokes for the first nine-holes yesterday gave it the lead in the Public High School golf tournament at Forest Park. Beaumont had 162 strokes. Solderan-Blewett 190, Hadley Tech 191 and Roosevelt 195.

Southwest's Doug Skinner was medalist with a 37 while his teammates Ray Weidner and Mel Fisher each scored 39. Jack Hennessey of Beaumont also had a 39.

The second nine holes of the tourney will be played tomorrow.

Bob Scheffing Named Manager Of Los Angeles

CHICAGO, May 24 (UP)—Bob Scheffing of St. Louis, veteran major league catcher and coach of the Chicago Cubs for the past two seasons, last night was named manager of the Los Angeles Angels of the Pacific Coast League.

Scheffing, 39, who spent nine of his 10 years in the majors with the Cubs, succeeds Bill Sweeney, who was forced to resign because of illness.

It will be Scheffing's first real managerial job, although he demonstrated his managerial ability early in his career. He broke his right shoulder during the 1938 season while playing for the St. Louis Cardinals, but instead of sitting out the next season, he became manager of the Washington club in the Pennsylvania State League. Although only 24, he piloted the club to the championship.

Scheffing broke into the majors in 1941 with the Cubs and remained with the club until June of 1950, when he was traded to Cincinnati. He finished out his major league playing career with the St. Louis Cardinals in 1951, winding up with a lifetime batting average of .283.

He coached the St. Louis Browns in 1952 and 1953, before returning to the Cubs as a coach. Ray Hayworth, 51, a long-time Cub scout, was named to succeed Scheffing as Cub coach.

Gene Bearden 6-0 at Portland

PORTLAND, Ore., May 23 (UP)—Gene Bearden, the forgotten hero of Cleveland's 1948 world series champions, looked over a record of six straight Pacific Coast League victories today and pronounced himself ready for another shot at the big time.

This was the Bearden who hurled the Indians to an 8-3 victory over the Boston Red Sox in the sudden death playoff for the 1948 flag, regaining a 2-0 shutout over the Boston Braves in the third game of the world series, then put down an uprising in the final inning of the last contest. That was his greatest year, and he had a muck smother which landed flush on Blower's jaw and knocked him out. He was carried to the dressing room and revived but was unable to continue play. Leake was ejected from the game.

Sooners Trim Kansas; Grab Big 7 Honors

NORMAN, Okla., May 24 (AP)—Oklahoma's Sooners defeated the Kansas Jayhawks 3-1, yesterday to win the Big Seven Conference baseball championship.

The Sooners' conference record is 8-1 with only another game against Kansas on their slate.

The victory also vaulted the Sooners into the District 5 playoff of the National Intercollegiate Athletic Association. Oklahoma meets the winner of the Missouri Valley playoff between Oklahoma A.&M. and St. Louis U.

A flare of fistcuffs enlivened the game. In the fifth inning, Kansas outfielder Dick Blower slid into second base and sent Oklahoma second baseman Joe Snyder sprawling to the ground on the force play.

Buddy Leake, Sooner shortstop, suddenly let loose a right hand smash which landed flush on Blower's jaw and knocked him out. He was carried to the dressing room and revived but was unable to continue play. Leake was ejected from the game.

Blue, Joe Mobra, a stolen base and an overthrow of second gave the Sooners their three runs in the fourth.

Kansas' only run came on Bob Conn's 385 foot wallop over the left field fence in the seventh inning.

Mobra struck out nine batters in winning his fourth game of the season.

Akins Wants Title Fight in St. Louis After Stopping Miceli

Quick KO 4th in Row For Virgil

BOBBY KEHOE, high-scoring center forward of the St. Philip Neri eleven, has been shifted to the inside right position as the C.Y.C. soccer squad is whipped into shape for its June 8 match with the Sochaux Club of France.

Kehe, one of three players on the squad who were in the lineup of the Zenthofers when that club defeated Eintracht of Frankfurt, Germany, in 1951, is one of the city's most versatile performers. In the final C.Y.C. alignment his name might be found in either the forward line, among the halfbacks, or at fullback. He has played well at all positions.

In current workouts, Hal Weigel has been used at center forward. Under the urging of the three-man coaching staff, Weigel has been encouraged to do more roaming than heretofore.

"Weigel's speed should enable him to run away from any opposing center halfback," said Bob Guelker, head of the coaching board. "We are trying to get him to break away before the ball is passed. If he masters that trick he'll be dangerous, no matter how tight the French team's defense."

This Club Is Loaded.

There is no reason to doubt the high class of the Sochaux club. Not only did the team finish near the top of France's first division but it is loaded with recognized stars, including France's top goalkeeper. The recent 1-0 victory of France over England at Paris further establishes the high rating of French players.

A new amateur sports organization, the Diamond Sports Club, has been formed by a group of young men headed by the following: Tim Ryan, Bill Huke, Pat'Brien, Don Schuessler. The club has a soccer team and will compete in softball, baseball, basketball and other sports. Rudy Fulguy, EV. 1-5287, and Joe Provazek, EV. 3-9563, are accepting applications.

Three or four St. Louis players probably will be on the United States soccer team that will visit Iceland in August. It will be a State Department-sponsored good will visit.

Fond Memories.

INTERVIEWED in New York before his team sailed for home, Franz Binder, the Nuernberg coach, said the game in St. Louis and that at Chicago were most memorable of the tour.

He said the speed, determination and stamina of the Kutz players were most astounding.

The chief criticism of United States soccer as he saw it was a lack of physical preparation, the one phase in which St. Louis players were outstanding. Material, he said, was generally good.

Of individuals he selected the Chicago center forward, Ed Murphy, as most outstanding. (Murphy scored two goals as the Chicago All-Stars lost, 5-3.)

The highlight of the tour, Nuernberg players and officials agreed, was the stop in St. Louis and the afternoon spent at August A. Busch Jr.'s estate, Grant's Farm. They were there the day after the match.

Ohio House Bill Hits Race Tracks in the Cleveland-Akron Area

CLEVELAND, O., May 24 (AP)—The Ohio House of Representatives last night passed a bill which may put two horse racing tracks out of business in the Cleveland-Akron area.

The bill provides that only one track may operate on the same day in any one county or within 30 miles of another track.

Representative Michael Crosser (Dem.), Cleveland, put the restriction through as an amendment to a bill which permits some harness horse tracks 44 days of racing, six more than they now receive.

Crosser told the House that the present law provides only one track may operate within a county or within 30 miles of another track on any given "date."

He said the racing commission had interpreted "date" to mean time of day and under this policy had allowed daytime and night racing within a county. He said his amendment would allow only one track to operate on any one "day." He said "day" would mean a 24-hour period.

In the Cleveland-Akron area, Ascot, Thistledown, Randall and Cranwood race tracks operate consecutive 44-day running race meetings beginning April 1. The Grandview and Painesville harness racing tracks operate 44-day harness racing meetings during the same period but at night.

The Senate passed the bill extending harness racing meetings some time ago. Its sponsors said the Senate would not accept the Crosser amendment.

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—Virgil Akins, a one-time in-and-out fighter, is taking dead aim on the welterweight title now that he has five straight victories, four of them by knockouts.

The solidly built, 25-year-old St. Louis Negro stopped jolting Joe Miceli of New York in 2:41 of the first round on three knockouts to chalk up his fourth successive kayo.

"No more fooling around for me," said the rejuvenated Akins last night after he had polished off the hard-hitting Miceli. "I got a chance to go places now and I'm going to keep in shape. That's the reason I'm going good now—clean living done it."

New Manager Aids Virgil. A new manager, St. Louis druggist Eddie Yawitz, apparently has helped Akins considerably. Yawitz is getting Akins matches where his predecessor couldn't do much for the stiff-punching welterweight. Not many name fighters wanted to mingle in the ring with Akins, who formerly was a ranking lightweight.

"We're going to offer the winner of the Basilio-DeMarco title fight a $40,000 guarantee to fight Virgil in St. Louis," said Yawitz. "There's a St. Louis syndicate ready to put up the money."

Yawitz declined to name the syndicate members. Welterweight Champion Tony DeMarco defends his crown against Carmen Basilio in Syracuse, June 10.

A left hook to the body started Miceli on the way out midway in the first round of the network television tilt at St. Nicholas Arena. The hook doubled over Joe and a jarring right and left to the jaw dropped him. He staggered up at five, shaking his head to help clear away the cobwebs. After Referee Ray Miller tolled the automatic eight count, Akins stormed after Miceli and decked him again with another right and left to the jaw.

Third Round and Out. Miceli bounded up immediately and was given another eight count. Determined to get his man quickly, Akins ripped after Miceli and belted him down for the third and last time with a right to the jaw.

The referee waved his hands, signaling the end of the fight. Under New York rules three clean knockdowns in one round means you're out.

It was Akins's second straight sensational victory in three weeks in the same arena. He knocked out Ronnie Delaney, a ranking middleweight, in the eighth round on May 2. Delaney, of Akron, O., never had been stopped before and he hadn't lost in seven years.

A 17-10 favorite, Akins weighed 145 to Miceli's 148½. The crowd of 1800 paid $2385. TV money probably boosted each fighter's purse to around $2000.

30 College Crews to Compete in Regatta

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—Thirty college crews, forming the largest fleet since 1950, will be out on Onondaga lake at Syracuse, N. Y., June 18 for the first Intercollegiate Rowing Association regatta.

In the draw for lanes yesterday, the association announced 12 colleges will compete in the three-mile varsity race and nine each in the junior varsity and freshman races. The field is the largest since 32 crews competed at Marietta, Ohio, five years ago.

Only Yale and Harvard of the major rowing schools will be missing. They'll stage their annual duel the day before on the Thames at New London, Conn.

The varsity lineup is headed by Navy's defending middies, Penn, Cornell and Washington, and also includes Princeton, MIT, Columbia, Wisconsin, Stanford, Boston Univ., Syracuse and California.

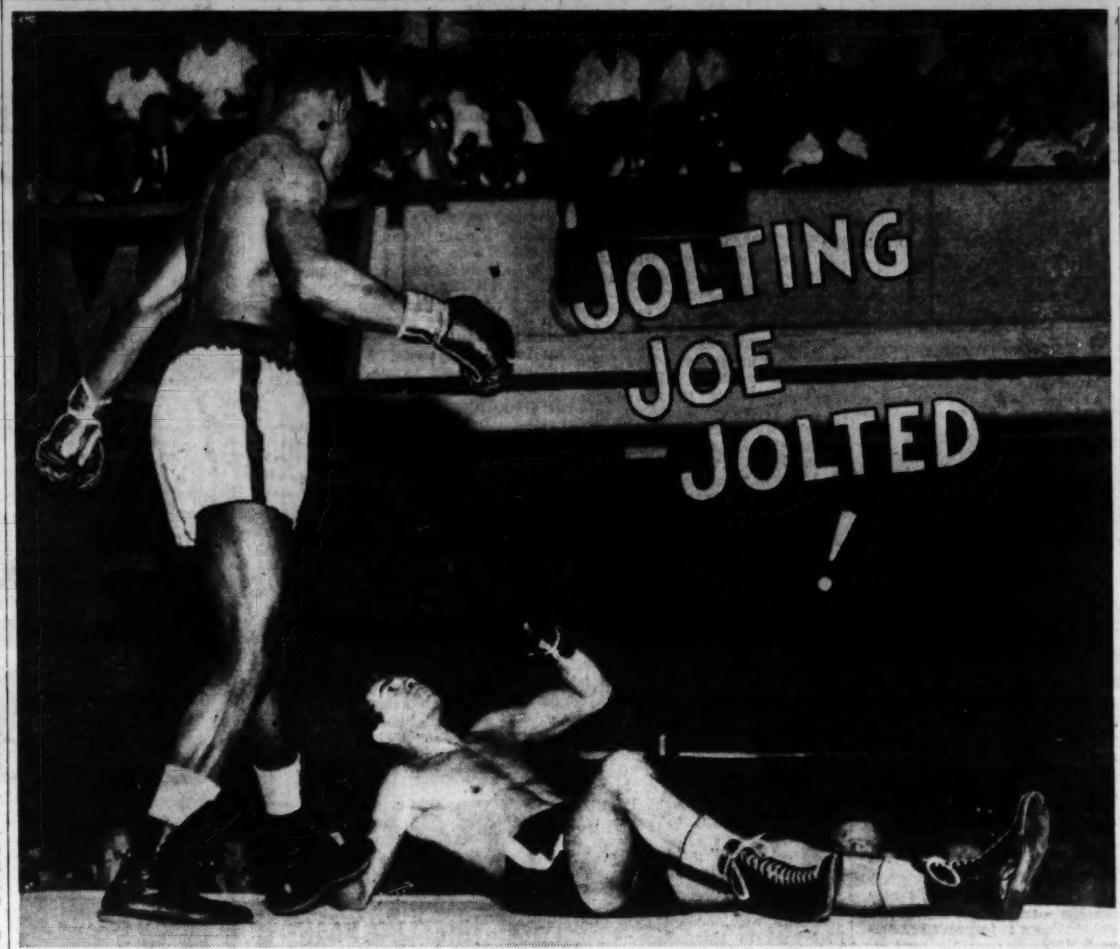

The junior varsity, also a three-mile event, has attracted Pennsylvania, Princeton, Navy, Cornell, California, Columbia, Wisconsin, Syracuse and Washington.

And in the freshman race at two miles will be Pennsylvania, Syracuse, Cornell, MIT, Navy, Columbia, Washington, Princeton and Wisconsin.

"He can hurt you with a jab, right cross, uppercut or hook," Trainer Tony Anderson said of Middleweight Jesse Bowdry. That's just about like one pitcher with a screwball, knuckleball, fastball and curve—good with all pitches, too.

Anderson, connected with the fight game nearly 40 years, doesn't hesitate to go way out on the limb on a youth who won't have his first professional bout until tomorrow night at The Arena.

"He's easily the greatest of all the fighters I've ever had, including Charley Riley at his peak," said Bowdry Anderson of 17-year-old Bowdry, sensation of the last crop of Golden Gloves. "It's very tricky and it's hard to trap him, and when trapped, he's going to fight his way out," Anderson said.

Welterweight VIRGIL AKINS of St. Louis looks down at JOE MICELI of New York after flooring Miceli for the first of three times in the first round of their fight at St. Nicholas Arena in New York. The referee stopped the bout after the third knockdown. It was the fifth straight victory and fourth consecutive knockout for Akins.

High School Baseball Teams in Carter Ailing, Four State Title Games Today

By John J. Archibald

The high school baseball season boils today to a climax as eight survivors battle for the Missouri state championship at Forest Park. All games will be played in the Central Field area, near the old Mounted Police Station, starting at 3:15 p.m.

Five of the eight are St. Louis teams, making the host city a favorite to regain the title which it gave up last year for the first time in the five-year history of the tournament. Cape Girardeau defeated Lutheran in the final at Busch Stadium a year ago, but both of these teams are now out of contention.

Joplin will represent the Southwest section of the state, having walloped Bronaugh, 20 to 0. Some of the Joplin players will be the same as those who made up the state championship basketball team in the tournament here less than three months ago. Basket star Gary Smith will be at first base.

If Joplin adds another state crown to its collection this week, however, it will have to do it the hard way, for its opening-round opponent today will be powerful Ferguson. Al Sona will be Ferguson's pitcher. Sona has hurled no-hit games in two of his three state tournament matches, although the game with West Plains last Saturday went only five innings. Earlier he had set down Washington Tech without a hit, and in between he hurled a four-hit victory over Webster Groves.

The Ferguson-Joplin game, on Diamond No. 8, will be in the lower bracket. In the same division will be the contest between two St. Louis entries, Mercy and Central, on Diamond 7.

Upper bracket pairings are McKinley vs. Campbell, Diamond 9, and Kirkwood vs. Shelby on Diamond 11.

Versatile Bowdry Better Fighter Than Charley Riley, Says Trainer

By Neal Russo

"He can hurt you with a jab, right cross, uppercut or hook," Trainer Tony Anderson said of Middleweight Jesse Bowdry. That's just about like one pitcher with a screwball, knuckleball, fastball and curve—good with all pitches, too.

Anderson, connected with the fight game nearly 40 years, doesn't hesitate to go way out on the limb on a youth who won't have his first professional bout until tomorrow night at The Arena.

"It's very tricky and it's hard to trap him, and when trapped, he's going to fight his way out," Anderson said.

So, an Evans Buford of Chicago may not have things so easy when he meets Rocky A.C.'s Bowdry in a four-rounder on the Arena card. Charley Green, Los Angeles, and Holly Mims, Washington, D.C., will meet in the 10-round main event, which will be telecast at 9 o'clock nationally and locally (over KWK-TV).

Green and Mims completed their heavy drills yesterday at The Arena. Green, stablemate Pennsylvania Quintet Rolls 2872 in A.B.C.

FORT WAYNE, Ind., May 24 (UP)—People's Cleaners of Norristown, Pa., warmed up a little too late last night but still wound up with a respectable 2872 score to pace all teams in the night's open division bowling in the American Bowling Congress tournament.

Led by Leonard Stone, who compiled a three-game total of 626, the squad fired a 901 opening game and then followed up with a 978 and a 993. It left them 140 pins short of the tenth-place team in the standings.

Booster teams rolled on the first night squad, with a 2538 by Oak Manufacturing No. 1 of Chicago the high count.

Earlier, Billy Martin, Evansville, Ind., had a 689 singles series and missed a 700 total because of a stubborn 10 pin. Martin missed the 10 pin in the last frame and finished up with a 191 after bowling games of 231 and 267. A score of 692 or better is needed to crash the top 10.

The best doubles score of the day was turned in by Joe Pavlich and Henry Lemke, Kansas City, Kan., a 1232 count that also missed the top 10.

Buddy Parker Here, Pushes Pro Game Plan

Lest an old acquaintance, and a new promotion, be forgot, Buddy Parker came to St. Louis. Parker's usual locations are limited to somewhere in Texas, where he worries about the Detroit Lions, or somewhere in Michigan, where he worries about the Detroit Lions.

Head coach of one of professional football's most successful teams, Parker today will return to Detroit, having made everyone he contacted here happy. He served as an off-season reminder that there will be an exhibition game here Aug. 28 between his Lions and the Chicago Cardinals, for the Cardinal Glennon Memorial Hospital Fund, and was happy to do so.

He also was happy to see Jim Conzelman, Parker, a man not in line for much sympathy during the regular season, was asked with some solicitude if he gave away much of his summer in personal appearances. It has been reported that he prefers to spend his summers with a motion-picture projector, reminding his nervous system of last year's strain and stress.

Parker confessed he doesn't get around much in the summer. "This is the first trip like this I've made," he said. "It tied in nicely, I wanted to see Jim, really." Across the table, Jim Conzelman nodded appreciatively. He wanted to see Parker.

Conzelman said, "I think the first sign of Buddy coming along fast, as a coach, was his appreciation of the defense. The more he'd talk, the more he'd talk about pass defense." Conzelman first heard Parker talking about pass defense when Parker was an assistant coach on Conzelman's Cardinal staff, in the early '40s.

"Gale Bullman will be at camp for a couple of weeks," said Parker. "Pipe and all." He said he would ask the Rolla coach, as usual, "When you gonna send me a football player?" Bullman will reply, as usual, "When I see one." He did see one, said Parker. The player was Gil Mains. The Toronto club saw him, too. It seems there's a war on.

Somebody commented on Detroit as a sports town, and the values of such franchises as the Lions', and their record of three successive Western Division championships. Conzelman said, "I bought that franchise once, for 50 dollars."

Nick Kerbawy, Lions general manager, said "Fifty dollars— you know what that franchise would cost today?" He made it anybody's question to answer, and nobody did. Kerbawy's tone indicated it has at least doubled in value.

Many Britons Sentimentally Back Acropolis

LONDON, May 24 (AP)—The English Derby will be run for the 176th time at Epsom Downs tomorrow and the favorite, both actual and sentimental, is Acropolis, owned by 93-year-old Alice, Lady Derby, whose family gave the turf classic its name way back in 1780.

The small-time punters always back a sentimental choice. Usually it's a horse owned by a member of the royal family. Last year it was Queen Elizabeth's Landau. The year before the Queen's Aureole attracted the small bets. Neither won the mile and one-half race on which an Irish sweepstakes is based.

This year in Acropolis, a good-looking chestnut colt, they have not only a colt racing in the silks of a popular member of royalty but one that has been made the 10-3 choice by the bookmakers.

Lady Alice is the grandmother of the present Earl and widow of the seventeenth Lord Derby, racehorse owner and breeder, who died in 1948.

"Lady Alice has asked me to tell you that the horse is well," Lord Derby told a gathering of reporters at a Derby luncheon Monday. "I hope my grandmother may be persuaded to bring her horse in after winning Wednesday."

"If this is to be the last Derby I shall see, I want to win," the stately old lady said.

Two American-owned colts—Solarium and Bryn—are expected to be among the 25 starters. Solarium, a 33-1 chance, races for 22-year-old Gerry Albertini, the youngest owner in the race.

Bryn, a 50-1 shot, is owned by Ralph B. Strassburger, Norristown (Pa.) publisher, who now lives in Paris.

Does Mile In 1:39.2 In Tryout

BALTIMORE, May 24 (AP)—Six colts being primed for Saturday's $100,000 added Preakness were lodged in the Pimlico barns today as the management prepared to check in three others, including Belair Stud's favored Nashua. In his last workout in New York, Nashua did a mile in 1:39.1-5.

Racing Secretary Lou Pondfield said the latest word was Nashua would arrive from New York some time tomorrow.

Also due about the same time to put the finishing touches on their preparations for the seventh running of the Preakness are Clifford V. Moore's Traffic Judge, winner of the Withers mile at Belmont last Saturday, and Clearwater Stable's Portersville, who was third in the same race.

Nance's Lad, which carried the C. J. Calhoun colors to second place in the Withers, was among the half-dozen 3-year-olds already on the grounds.

The others were Montpelier's Saratoga and the only four starters in the Preakness Prep yesterday.

W-L Ranch's Honeys Alibi, that could do no better than seventh in the Kentucky Derby while Nashua was second to Swaps, was easily the 3-year-old's small lot in the $5000 Prep.

A length and a half behind came Duntreath Farm's Fleet Path, followed by Gee M. Cohen's Chuck Thompson two lengths back and Christina Stable's Thinking Cap, trailing by six after breaking badly.

Although Swaps won't be going in the Preakness, track officials said there still was a possibility the field for their big race would exceed the nine who went in the Derby.

Besides the nine probables already mentioned, they said Cain Hoy's Flying Fury, sixth in the Derby and Brookmeade's Sailor still were possible entries.

They based their reasoning partly on Swaps' demonstration that Nashua, winner of nine out of 11 races and four straight this year before the Derby, can still be beaten.

Another factor in their hopes for a sizable field was the generous prize money of $25,000 for second, $15,000 third and $7500 fourth.

Honeys Alibi, coming from just off the pace to collar the pace-setting Fleet Path on the turn for home, flashed no blazing speed in completing the mile-and-sixteenth Prep in 1 minute, 43.3-5 seconds—1-3-5 seconds off the track record.

With no betting because of the small field and the real money race still five days off, neither winning rider Carlos Gonzalez nor any of the three trailing jockeys took any chances on pushing his mount to the limit.

For his victory, which is an eighth of a mile shorter than the Preakness, Honeys Alibi picked up $3250 and hiked his total earnings to $28,150 for 17 races.

By contrast, Nashua has piled up $502,440.

Nance's Lad didn't arrive at Pimlico until late in the day but Saratoga passed up the Prep even though he was at the track. Instead, the unpredictable son of Blenheim II-Shipshe II worked out for what was supposed to have been a mile but wound up as six furlongs. He pulled up twice and simply refused to exert himself any further.

Neist Gains Place in P.G.A. In a Playoff

The National P.G.A. tournament, one of golf's most demanding exercises, began in its accustomed style for the local qualifier Ted Neist, St. Louis Country Club professional, earned the Eastern Missouri P.G.A. berth to the national, and had to play 37 holes to get it.

Neist yesterday defeated Meadowbrook Pro Walter Ambo in a sudden-death play-off. They had completed 36 holes at Westwood in a tie at 144, par for the distance.

Neist scored a par four on the extra hole. Ambo had a short putt for a halve, and missed it. "I was already in Northville," said Ambo. "After he looked up on the putt, Ambo was back from Northville, and in the position of first alternate to Neist."

Lead-Stepping Hours.

NEW YORK, May 24. BEATING Baltimore, 7-to-5, in eight-and-a-half innings recently, the Yankees consumed three hours, 20 minutes. In Brooklyn the Phillies contrived to overcome the Dodgers, 5-to-3, in two hours, 40 minutes. Time of the New York-Pittsburgh game the same night (Giants, 6; Pirates, 3) was 2:16. Here's one, though: In Chicago, a character named Arthur John Dittmar pitched a two-hitter for Kansas City and the White Sox were shut out, 1-to-0, in one hour, 39 minutes.

Before Ford Frick gets too much pre-occupied with the research firm he is hiring to find out what's good and bad about baseball, he should have Arthur John Dittmar stuffed and mounted for Cooperstown. Then let the commissioner's inquiring poststers ascertain, if they can, the fan's true sentiments about the tempo of modern games.

The researchers should not be content merely to sound out the customers in major league cities. Let them also make inquiries among fans in the Pacific Coast League, if they can find any fans out there. Elapsed time for three recent games between San Francisco and Sacramento was 1:22, 1:52 and 1:31, the first being a seven-inning game of a night double-header.

Frick's plan for a quasi-scientific survey of baseball's problems seems sensible enough. There is probably no other business field where so many free-hand thinkers arrive at snap judgments and reiterate the opinion until it is accepted as fact. If the researchers get nothing more than some straight answers about the pace of today's ball games, they'll have earned a substantial fee.

The Play's the Thing.

THIS is an old argument which nobody has decided because nobody really knows how the fans feel about it. Sports writers, representing themselves as spokesmen for the public, are eternally harping that games are too long. Dissenters like Warren Giles, the National League president, retort that the only complaints they hear come not from customers but from newspaper men who are bored with their jobs.

Frick has opposed unnecessary delays, but sometimes he inclines toward Giles's view. He says he seldom sees many customers quit the park before the ninth inning.

Both sides, it seems here, are slightly off the target. It isn't that the games are too long, but that they are frequently too slow; it's the pace that counts, not the number of minutes consumed.

A three-hour game is not too long if it is a good game, briskly contested, offering three hours of sustained suspense. A two-hour game is an abomination if it consists of only one hour of entertainment.

Payoff for Hustling.

THE Coast League is mentioned because Claire Goodwin, the new president, is paying the teams to keep the show lively. He raised a $20,000 endowment to be distributed, $2500 at a time, in monthly awards for hustle beyond the call of duty.

Money makes the mare go, and it also encourages flannelled lard-buckets to move on and off the field with more than wonted celerity. Though the San Francisco-Sacramento games mentioned may not be typical, more games are being completed under two hours than formerly.

Observers on the coast profess to sense a new urgency in the play, a more nearly unanimous disposition to get the show on the road and keep it moving. There are fewer time-wasting arguments, fewer instances of deliberate dawdling.

What few customers the league has been drawing seem to have caught the spirit. Where they used to jeer the umpire, they are now booing the frustrated ham who tries to make a Shakespearean tragedy of each small disagreement. Emboldened by support from stands from upstairs (there's a $2500 umpire-of-the-year award on Goodwin's prize list), the umpires give stallers a quick brush.

Making It Official.

ATTENDANCE has been discouraging. Chances are this is due to a variety of factors—unfavorable weather until recently, too much loose talk about major league baseball moving west, San Francisco's chilly night fog, maybe a smothering over-supply of eastern baseball on the radio all day.

However, if Goodwin's new crackle-snap-pop-and-bustle policy hasn't improved business, it can't possibly hurt it. It keeps the performers alert. Recently three managers, Tommy Heath, Lefty O'Doul and Clay Hopper, called on the league president. In the outer office, Heath took a hitch in his ample waistline.

"You guys open the door," he said, "and I will do a belly-slip up to his desk. We'll show him some hustle." (Copyright, 1955.)

White Sox and Braves Tie in Exhibition Game

MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 24 (UP)—Pitcher Mike Fornieles hit a bases-loaded triple in the eighth inning last night to tie the Chicago White Sox 7-7 with the Milwaukee Braves in an exhibition game.

The game was halted in the tenth inning to allow Chicago to catch a train for Cleveland. Andy Pafko was at bat with two out, and no one on when the game was stopped after two hours and 45 minutes of play.

Milwaukee led 7-3 until the Sox got four runs in the eighth. Bobby Thomson's pinch-hit home run in the fourth with one man on was the big blow for Milwaukee.

Fornieles was the third pitcher used by the Sox. He was preceded by Harry Dorish and Bob Chakales. Milwaukee used Joey Jay, Bob Buhl and Humberto Robinson.

Scores Ate at U. City.

Harold Belshelm scored a hole-in-one on the University City golf course. He made his tee-to-cup shot at No. 8, a 155-yard hole. Raymond Spangenberg was with Belshelm on the round.

Monsanto Triumphs.

Monsanto gained a 11-1 victory over Western in a Y.M.C.A. Industrial League game. Pitcher Struharik of the winners yielded only two hits.

Says Johnson Was Stopped by Blow, Not Drug

PHILADELPHIA, May 24 (AP)—A terrific body blow, not drugs, stopped Harold Johnson in his May 6 bout with Julio Mederos, one of Mederos's seconds testified yesterday.

Barry W. Cohen, 37, of Springfield, Mass., appearing as a voluntary witness at the fight probe hearing conducted by the Pennsylvania Athletic Commission, said in answer to a question: "Jack Dempsey caught (Louis) Firpo with exactly the same kind of punch. It took 15 minutes to bring Firpo around."

Johnson was unable to answer the bell for the third round of the nationally televised bout and Mederos was awarded a second round TKO. Commission physicians and police subsequently reported Johnson had been drugged prior to the fight. Gov. George E. Leader suspended state boxing for 90 days and ordered the present probe.

Cohen, under questioning by Deputy State Attorney General Harold Levin, denied any knowledge of drugs being administered to Johnson.

Levin, obviously impatient with the testimony of Cohen, his own witness, got into a wrangle with the fight handler as he was about to leave the stand.

"Cohen," said Levin, "I don't mind telling you that you were well rehearsed in your testimony after consulting with someone else. You can take that back to Massachusetts and New York."

Levin asked Cohen, "who gave the drug to Johnson?"

"What drug?" asked Cohen. "Why the drug that dooped him?" Levin said.

"How would I know?" Cohen replied. "Why don't you ask Johnson?"

"I am asking you," Levin told the witness.

Cohen repeated that he felt it was a body blow landed by the man that caused the fight to be stopped.

He testified that he had been in the fight game most of his life as manager, second, match-

Montreal Wins Two Games From Rochester

MONTREAL, May 24 (UP)—The Montreal Royals moved up to second place in the International League today on the strength of their doubleheader sweep over Rochester, but they failed to gain an inch on league-leading Toronto.

The Royals scrambled from behind twice to beat Rochester, 9-7, in their seven-inning opener, Glenn Mickens getting the victory in relief, and then romped to a 3-0 victory in the nightcap on the seven-hit shutout pitching of Donald Drysdale. Rochester, which had been in second place, dropped to third, four full games behind Toronto.

But Toronto also won a pair of games, beating Buffalo, 11-6, and 4-3.

Holquin's 131 Paces P.G.A. Qualifiers

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—Tony Holquin, head pro at the Midlothian (Ill.) Country Club, broke his own course record yesterday as he paced about 75 qualifiers into the Professional Golfers Association's championship at Detroit July 20-26 with a 36-hole total of 131.

Holquin, a native of San Antonio, Tex., who prefers the status of a home club professional to that of tournament player, toured the Glenageary Country Club near Chicago in 1953. His 63 broke the course record of 64 he established last fall.

Qualifiers, for the most part, were either home club pros or those who compete only at intervals in the PGA-sponsored tournaments.

Practically all of the name players were exempted from qualifying under the rules, which automatically qualify defending champion Chick Harbert and all past champions, members of the 1953 Ryder Cup team, the eight quarterfinalists in last year's title play, the 30 leading money winners in approved tournaments and the low 25 and ties in the recent Fort Wayne Open.

A number of the pros elected to qualify in the Fort Wayne tour-names rather than in their sections.

The PGA scheduled 30 qualifying tournaments with instructions they be played between May 23 and May 31, with one or two exceptions.

Johnny Revolta of Evanston, Ill., turned in the second lowest score of 133, also at Glenageary, but his card didn't count since he qualified as a former champion.

Emory Thomas, pro at the Forest Hills Country Club in New Jersey, trailed Holquin by four strokes as he turned in a 70-65-135 with his second 18 bettering the Forsgate Country Club course record.

Ernie Ball of Oak Park, Ill., also broke 140 at Glenageary, whipping around the course in 71-68 for a 36-hole total of 139.

In the 140 division were such as Len Wagner, Cincinnati; Ted Gwin, Fort Worth, and Labron Harris of Stillwater, Okla. Scores of the other qualifiers ranged from 141 to in the low 150s.

Al Watrous, Oakland Hills, Mich., who qualified for his first PGA championship in 1922, made the grade again at the age of 56 with 146 at Detroit.

Jim Brown of Weston, Mass., who eliminated National Open Champion Ed Furgol last year and got as far as the quarterfinals, tied for medalist honors at Marblehead, Mass. He shot 142 to match the score turned in by Charlie Sheppard of Brae Burn, Mass.

Al Morley, Johnson City, N.Y., needed a caddy to tie up his ball because of a badly sprained back, but still managed to shoot a 71-75-146 to lead the qualifiers at Binghamton, N.Y.

PEACE HOPES RAISED IN BRITISH DOCK WALKOUT

Rival Unions' Dispute Over Bargaining Rights Tying Up England's Busiest Ports.

LONDON, May 24 (AP)—Peace moves raised guarded hopes today that rival unions may settle a waterfront strike crippling Britain's busiest ports.

With the general election only two days off, the warring organizations took steps which could lead to an end of the jurisdictional dispute. The walkout began yesterday in London, Manchester, the twin ports of Liverpool and Birkenhead, Hull and Rochester.

A government spokesman said 18,400 dockers were idle in those ports but 30,850 others were on the job as usual. The spokesman listed a total of 83 ships idle in all the ports, 88 only partly worked and 102 being handled normally.

The strike already has caused a pile-up of foodstuffs on the docks. Prime Minister Eden has said its continuation would seriously impair the nation's economy.

First Hint of Peace.
The first hint of a peace move came from the 17,000-member National Amalgamated Stevedores' and Dockers' Union, which called the strike to enforce a demand for bargaining rights. These rights are now held solely by the giant Transport and General Workers Union everywhere except in London. The T.G.W.U. shares its jurisdiction with the capital.

The NASDU called a conference, said, every development which could be considered a basis for ending the strike "commensurate with our object of securing recognition as a trades union in behalf of our members."

The meeting opened here as the TGWU claimed that "it is very clear that the attempt to dislocate the ports of this country had failed dismally."

TGWU spokesmen said the organization was "not closing any door which might lead to a reasonably quick settlement."

Told to Stay on Job.
The TGWU has called on its members to stay on the job and ignore NASDU picket lines. Apparently some of them stopped work in sympathy despite the orders.

The Trade Unions Congress—nearly all British unions are affiliated to it—recently expelled the NASDU for "poaching" waterfront members from the TGWU. The NASDU contends the big transport union, with its 1,300,000 members in all fields of industry, is too remote to serve dockers properly.

Eden's government also is faced with the threat of a nationwide strike of 70,000 railway engineers and firemen set for Saturday midnight. Labor Minister Sir Walter Monckton scheduled talks today with leaders of the Associated Society of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen in a fresh effort to head off the walkout.

The ASLEP called the strike to enforce demands for pay raises to maintain their traditional differentials over less skilled employees on Britain's nationalized railroads.

CONSERVATIVES APPEAR LIKELY TO WIN ELECTION would build 300,000 housing units per year and the Laborites derided this claim. Nearly 1,000,000 units have been built under direction of Harold Macmillan who went from Housing Minister to be Foreign Secretary.

"And we are going to go and build hospitals," Churchill says. "Hospitals are badly needed and we mean to provide them."

Labor campaigners find fault with various aspects of the Conservatives' social program, attacking certain features on the national health service which the Tories took over from Labor and have altered but little. Labor promises to raise the family allowances and to improve the lot of those living on very small pensions, but the average voter is apparently not too much exercised over minor deficiencies and defects in the welfare system that Labor initiated and that the Tories claim to have expanded.

Labor's greatest success has been in exploiting the pocket-book issue of higher prices. Two former Laborite cabinet members, Dr. Edith Summerskill, Minister of Food, and Harold Wilson, head of the Board of Trade, put on an effective television program comparing food prices in 1951 and today. Butter then cost 35 cents a pound and today it is 50 cents, cheese was 16 and now it is 24.

"The achievement of the Labor government," Wilson said, was that we kept cost of living steady in this country than in almost any other country in the world. Under the Tories, with world prices falling for three and one half years, the cost of living has risen almost worse in Britain than in any other country in the world."

Prices High at Every Level.
There can be no doubt about high prices here and that appears true on every level from the minimum cost of living to the luxuries available in profusion. The Tories respond to the high price charge by saying that wages have gone up correspondingly and therefore people can buy more than they have ever bought before. Angrily, Labor replies that it was their party, through the trade unions, which got wages raised so that the ordinary man could buy a little more.

What really gets the Socialists aroused is the Tory charge that a Labor government would try to lower prices by restoring rationing and restrictions. The Socialists denounce this as a lie, claiming that they would bring down the cost of living by bulk purchasing through government agencies and in eliminating monopolies that keep supply short and prices high.

Divided between the followers of the fiery Welshman Aneurhan Bevan and the regulars under mild-mannered Attlee, the Labor party has not provided an effective opposition. It has appeared divided and confused, reacting with deep emotionality to the terrible threat the hydrogen bomb represents to the very existence of this small island, but offering little in the way of sober advice.

The promise of further nationalization seems to have slight appeal since Socialist campaigners say almost nothing of it. It has long since become evident that the exchange of a private monopoly for a public monopoly, as in the railroads and coal mines, does not automatically confer the blessings of higher wages and shorter hours. The nationalized industries have been in trouble and there is more ahead in the squeeze between rising prices and wages.

As in elections everywhere, such serious matters are obscured by the loud simplifications of the politicians. Almost no one talks about the high sales tax—here called a purchase tax—which contributes greatly to the cost of living. Curiously enough, few Laborites point out that Britain, unlike America, has no capital gains tax so that the wealthy who deal in stocks and bonds come off with clear profit. This and the agricultural subsidy enable the thinning ranks of the upper classes to give at least a fair imitation of the assured upper class existence. Having adjusted themselves to the ways of the welfare state, they mean to try to preserve all that is left of what Labor angrily denounces as "pride, selfishness and privilege."

ton Hotel, put on the pressure. Comptroller Gidney delayed the decision at first—until the local bank tried to forestall the Du Ponts by opening an affiliated bank of its own. As soon as Gidney heard about this, he rushed through a national charter for the Du Pont bank, even though the new affiliated bank had already been granted a state charter.

This means tiny Vero Beach is now authorized to have three banks, a community that can barely support one.

than it already is, at a time when intelligent and prompt decisions are imperative." (Illinois physician, 54)

Some Minority Views.
Here are typical statements of the minority point of view: "Because of the change in our world position since World War II, we need this definite statement and provision for acceptance by action of our Congress on treaty law and executive agreements that would otherwise change local law with the people, and even the legislators, scarcely knowing of such change. These should not be left to reliance on men, but tied down by law." (Michigan lawyer, 53)

"Under no circumstances should we allow any organization, treaty, or executive treaty, to override the Constitution and laws of our country." (Retired Brigadier General of the Army, 72)

"I favor it because of the danger we will have another FDR and Truman." (Washington D. C. scientist, 72)

"Never again must we permit a secret Yalta Agreement." (Colorado mining engineer, 69)

"It is essential to protect us against egotistical, naive or unscrupulous Presidents in the future." (New Jersey real estate broker, 51)

Political Division.
Leading citizens of both political parties oppose the amendment. However, substantially more of the leaders who claim allegiance to the Democratic party oppose it than do top citizens who vote Republican.

The division of the vote, according to political affiliation, follows:

	Rep.	Dem.	Ind.
Favor	28%	14%	16%
Oppose	49	74	66
Undecided	23	12	18

Aircrafts Aloft in Mixed
Market That Closes Higher

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—
The stock market continued to day in extremely quiet trading with the final push ahead coming in the late stages of trading.
The market was quite irregular all day with little interest shown by traders.
With the exception of a few value movers, prices went from around 2 points higher to a point lower. Aircrafts were outstanding on the higher side of the market.

Associated Press average of 60 stocks closed up 3 of a point at 162.8. The rail and utilities indices rose a smaller amount while industrial stock index gained 2 of a point.

(Dow-Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was 17.07 of a point higher at 420.33 at the close. Ex-dividends lowered this index by .24 at 155.84 and the 15 utilities rose 14 to 63.89.)

The market was eight issues narrower than yesterday at 1189 issues. There were 480 gainers, 451 losers and 258 unchanged.

There were 40 new 1955 highs and 11 new lows.

Trading amounted to only 1,650,000 shares. That is the lowest since last Columbus Day, Oct. 12, 1954, when the total was 1,620,000 shares. Yesterday's market accounted for 1,900,000 shares.

The market wavered considerably during the day. It leaned a little higher at the start and then sagged. Within a short time it improved, but it was unable to hold to its advantage for very long.

Aircrafts did better than any other major division, and stocks in this class making prominent progress were those named as top beneficiaries of Government defense spending.

Higher stock at times included
United Aircraft, North American Aviation, Douglas Aircraft, Boeing, Zenith Radio, F. L.
Jacobs, Crown Cork & Seal,
General Dynamics, Homestead Mining, Northern Pacific, and Caterpillar Tractor.

Lower at times were Bethlehem Steel, General Motors,
Edison, Dow Chemical, Eastman
Kodak, Westinghouse Electric, and Beech-Nut Packing, which lost around 3 points after company officials denied merger reports.

London stock average compiled by the Financial Times advanced 2.3 points to 193.1
today.

Maek Trucks, yesterday's most active issue up 1/2, opened today on 1000 shares unchanged at 27 1/2, and then improved. Six-thousand shares of Sunray Mid-Continent Oil sold unchanged at 23 1/4.

Liberty Loan Corp. declared the regular quarterly dividend of 37 1/2 cents a share, payable July 1 to record June 10.

Midwest Rubber Reclaiming
Co. declared a dividend of 25 cents a share on the common stock, payable July 1 to record
June 6.

Sears Roebuck & Co., which has put its mid-summer sale catalog in the mails, said prices were reduced nearly 10 per cent from the general catalog, and also were lower than in the 1954 mid-summer catalog.

Commonwealth Edison Co. declared a common dividend of 50 cents a share, up 5 cents from the quarterly rate the company has been paying. The dividend will be paid Aug. 1 to stockholders of record June 22.

Missouri-Kansas-Texas Lines reported April net income, after adjustment of bond interest payment, was $318,000, compared with $309,000 for April 1954.
Gross revenues were $3,965,000, against $3,904,000 for the year net was $1,097,000, compared with $917-000; gross revenues, $23,590,000, against $24,195,000.

A moderate volume of business was reported in the cotton textile market Tuesday. A number of fabrics sold, including print cloths, broadcloths, drills and some sheetings. Deliveries were mostly in nearby shipping and ranging into the third quarter. While there were no signs that a large buying movement is imminent, mills were impressed by the steady day-to-day flow of orders.

Mayrose Barbecues can make you famous

MAYROSE BEEF-N-BACON STEAKS. Hamburger with a touch of genius! Season the meat with salt, pepper, basil and rosemary. Moisten with milk and Brooks catsup. Shape into thick patties and wrap with Mayrose Bacon slices. Grill 4 inches above the coals for 15 minutes or until meat is brown outside. Keep turning patties. A real steak taste!

MAYROSE HAM STEAK PLANTATION STYLE WITH BROOKS BARBECUE SAUCE. Chefs prefer this way of cooking ham steaks. Slash the fat around the edges and slather with Brooks Barbecue Sauce (its smooth, spicy-rich flavor brings out the wonderful Mayrose taste). Grill 6 inches above the coals. In about 25 minutes you'll have the tenderest, juiciest ham steak in town.

TO KEEP MAYROSE HOT DOGS PLUMP AND JUICY. Grill just 4 inches above the coals. At that distance, the heat brings out the flavor without shrinking the meat. Turn franks without piercing them and they'll stay just as plump and juicy as when you started. Serve with Brooks Barbecue Sauce in toasted frankfurter rolls for a real treat.

Try this Armour discovery

New Franks with an "Open-fire" flavor!

They have a sizzly-juiciness even when only heated in water

One taste—and you know. There's a new flavor in these Armour Star Franks. A kind of sizzly-juicy taste that's delicious.

Try 'em again. Ummmm . . . smooth and tender! And again notice that flavor. Doesn't it remind you of the wonderful taste of franks cooked over an open fire?

Yet this new taste is in the meat itself. You get that same outdoor, over-the-flame flavor—even if you only heat these franks in water.

That's because Armour Star Franks are prepared by a new banked-heat process—cooked over radiant fires. And they're all meat—made only of fine, fresh beef and pork, with a new, delicate seasoning blended in.

Try new Armour Star Franks. Heat them in water. Grill them. Cook them any way you want. However you prepare them—you'll want more of that new, delicious "Open-Fire" Flavor.

PRESIDENT RELATES PEACE, INFORMATION

He Tells Broadcasters Informed Public Has Never Been So Important.

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—President Eisenhower said today that an informed public at home and abroad is the "way to win the war for peace."

He told the thirty-third annual convention of the National Association of Broadcasters that it has "never been as important as it is today that the American public be informed." He said Americans must know about everything from a proposed four-power conference to the Indo-China crises.

He said information media from this country should also help people abroad understand America.

The President said if he had to choose between free communication and some kind of world government to enforce peace, he would unhesitatingly choose free communication.

He said everyone in the radio and television field should think of himself as a "crusader" to help spread understanding of what goes on in the world.

The President said that as long as radio and TV follow the "normal rules" of decency and good taste, he saw no reason why they could not be used for the expression of "proper opinion," as are the editorial columns of newspapers.

He recalled saying about newspapers, "the news columns belong to the public and the editorial page belongs to the paper." He said this was "an easy standard to follow" and suggested that some such formula be developed by the broadcasting industry.

He recommended, however, that news and opinion be clearly separated and defined.

"When we call it news, let us simply be sure that it is news."

Advocating that the broadcasting industry see to it that the radio and television "remain completely free of domination of any unfair kind," the President said efforts to maintain this freedom "must not wait for government intervention or regulation in the form of suits, anti-trust action and all that."

Mr. Eisenhower said the Government had to intervene in the radio industry more than it does in the printed field because "there is only one canopy of air over the country and the world." He added, however, that he hoped that this necessary allocation of channels was done fairly and without partisan politics.

ADENAUER TO GET HONORARY DEGREE, VISIT WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—State Department officials said today that German Chancellor Adenauer will pay a one-day visit to Washington next month. They said Adenauer will be in the United States to receive an honorary degree from Harvard University June 16.

While in the United States, they said, Adenauer will visit Washington for courtesy talks with President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

No big topics are expected to come up for discussion. Officials pointed out that Adenauer talked at length with Adenauer at Paris this month when West Germany joined the Atlantic alliance.

Adenauer visited the United States last October when he received an honorary doctorate from Columbus University. He had previously toured the country in the spring of 1953.

MCCARTHY ASSAILS INFLUENCE OF MILTON EISENHOWER

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (Rep., Wisconsin), said last night he regards Milton Eisenhower, the President's brother, as "the unofficial President of the United States."

Describing Milton Eisenhower, who is president of Pennsylvania State University, as "more than an influence on the President," McCarthy said:

"He is one of the most left wingers you can find in the Republican party. Luckily, he doesn't follow him in all his advice. If he did the country would be in much worse shape."

Milton Eisenhower has undertaken two special missions to Latin America for his older brother; he also has served as chairman of the United States commission to the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization. He is a former president of Kansas State College.

McCarthy criticized both Eisenhowers in a transcribed radio interview.

FORMER WIFE SUES CARDY OF CANADA FOR $15,000,000

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—The former wife of Canadian multi-millionaire Vernon G. Cardy is suing him for $15,000,000, claiming she is entitled to the money under Canada's community property law.

Mrs. Hilda Bouvier Cardy, in a State Supreme Court action made known yesterday, charges she agreed to $1400-a-month permanent alimony at the time of their divorce in 1950 only because of Cardy's "nerve-wracking campaign of duress."

She contends that Cardy, who rose from bellhop to a hotel chain owner while still in his 30s amassed his fortune while married to her and thus she is entitled to half. She said Cardy was worth $30,000,000 when they parted.

Cardy, almost a legendary personality in Canadian financial and sport circles, was not available for comment at the Garden City (N.Y.) Hotel where he is staying. He is now racing his thoroughbreds at Belmont Park. Most of Mrs. Cardy's 82-page

Life Savings in Gunnybag

AMEN BALKIN filling out deposit slip at Minneapolis bank for life savings of more than $5700 which he turned over to teller TED DRAKE in a gunnybag.

POLICE MAKE MAN PUT GUNNYBAG OF MONEY IN BANK

MINNEAPOLIS, May 24 (AP)—Amen Balkin walked into a bank yesterday with a gunnybag over his shoulder and deposited his life savings.

Police had called on the 63-year-old odd-jobs man at his room in a low priced hotel and told him he would have to move out so the management could clean it up.

Balkin took a gunnybag with him. At police headquarters, Capt. Maurice Smith asked to see what was in the sack. Balkin dumped a dozen paper bags onto Smith's desk. Inside each sack were fat rolls of currency.

Balkin told Smith he had not trusted banks since he lost $400 during the depression. Smith explained that depositor accounts are now insured up to $10,000 and added Balkin would not be permitted to keep the money in his room.

"Well, that's different then," Balkin replied. "Lead me to the nearest bank."

Balkin, with the gunnybag over his shoulder and a policeman as an escort, went to a bank and deposited $5754 in small bills.

DOG CUSTODY CASE CALLS FOR WISDOM OF SOLOMON

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 24 (AP)—Judge Mike Foster scratched his head in municipal court yesterday when two women confronted him with a dog-custody case.

Lois Frederick contends Mrs. Jessie Hall gave her the four-month-old screwtail bulldog last February. Mrs. Hall says the dog belongs to her and that she never gave permanent custody to Miss Frederick.

"This is like a child custody case in a lot of ways," Judge Foster said. "I'm looking up my divorce and child custody laws to see if there is a precedent in this sort of thing which might also apply to dogs."

The women agreed to let a veterinarian keep the dog until the judge makes his decision.

10 ARRESTED IN ITALY AS RED SPY RING SUSPECTS

ROME, May 24 (AP)—Police said yesterday that 10 persons were being held in an investigation of a suspected spy ring believed to have radioed Western secrets to Iron Curtain countries. Six other persons were questioned but were released.

The roundup stemmed from the arrest two weeks ago of a young Trieste couple, charged with "possessing espionage equipment" and with gathering secret information. They were identified as Angelo Haffner, a Trieste citizen of Slavic origin, and his wife, Coca.

The police said Haffner had a high-powered radio station and a code book in his Trieste home for flashing information into eastern Europe. He was said to have attended a "political school" in Czechoslovakia.

PHILIPPINE WIDOW TO ASK FORGIVENESS FOR JAPANESE

TOKYO, May 24 (AP)—A Philippine widow, whose husband was killed by Japanese troops, said today she would ask her countrymen to forgive their former enemy. Mrs. Pilar Normandy, who heads a delegation of 10 war widows visiting here, said she had overcome her hatred after meeting many Japanese widows. "I don't know exactly how, but I just came to feel this way," she told a reporter. She said she would try to convince her people the Japanese she met are seeking "nothing but peace."

JUDGE REFUSES TO CONVICT RACE TRACK CRAP SHOOTERS

EPSOM, England, May 24 (UP)—Judge Tudor Rees refused yesterday to convict four men arrested for shooting craps just outside Epsom Downs race track. The gambling law is "most chaotic," he said, when it prohibits a small game of chance outside the track and allows racing fans to bet thousands of pounds inside.

STORE IS ROBBED OF $727

Harry Schaum, co-owner of a drug store at 3700 North Grand boulevard, reported yesterday the store was robbed of $727 Sunday night by burglars who forced open a safe in a back storeroom.

Police said the burglars gained entrance through a second-floor window from the roof of an adjoining one-story building. A physician's office was ransacked but nothing reported taken.

RESTORATION TO BEGIN TODAY OF NORTH CHURCH STEEPLE

BOSTON, May 24 (AP)—Restoration work on the old North Church steeple—where hung the lanterns that warned Paul Revere the British were coming—is scheduled to begin today. The first of several white oak beams, hand hewn and 48 feet long, were to be set into place with the siding, spire and weather vane scheduled to follow.

A spokesman for the McGraw Construction Co. of Hartford, Conn., said the entire job is expected to be completed in August—a year after hurricane Carol toppled the original structure.

President Names Julius C. Holmes to Job Not Subject to Senate OK.

WASHINGTON, May 24 (UP)—Julius C. Holmes, whose nomination as Ambassador to Iran was withdrawn earlier this year, was appointed by President Eisenhower yesterday as the United States diplomatic agent at Tangier, Spanish Morocco. The appointment is not subject to confirmation by the Senate.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said that after Holmes was nominated for the post in Iran "medical authorities" recommended that Holmes not take the assignment because of his health. Hagerty said Holmes' condition had since improved.

In testimony last February before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Holmes acknowledged he made a profit of $270,000 on a $10,000 investment in a 1947 surplus tanker deal, but he said there was no wrongdoing on his part and that he did not consider his profit excessive. Indictments against Holmes in the case were dismissed last year.

Holmes' name figured in a Senate investigation of a ship deal in which former Representative Joseph E. Casey (Dem., Massachusetts) and 17 associates reportedly parlayed a $100,000 investment into a $2,800,000 profit. Indictments against Casey were dropped on the ground he had acquired immunity when he testified before a federal grand jury about the deal.

SIKH AUTONOMY AGITATION GOES ON, 779 NOW HELD

NEW DELHI, May 24 (AP)—Agitation by Sikh nationalists seeking an autonomous state entered its third week today with arrests approaching 800.

The movement is centered in northern India's Punjab state. The bearded Sikhs have been defying the state government's ban on slogans identified with Sikh autonomy.

The Punjab is a stronghold of Sikhism, a Hindu reform movement which over the centuries developed a powerful military organization. Many of the soldiers in the old British-Indian army were Sikhs.

Reports reaching here from the Punjab said that up to yesterday 779 persons had been arrested throughout the state for carrying banners inscribed with demands or shouting slogans.

TEXAN FACES 5 NEW CHARGES IN VETERANS LAND DEALS

AUSTIN, Tex., May 24 (AP)—Bascom Giles, father of the $100,000,000 Texas veterans land program, today faced five new indictments growing out of his administration. They allege theft by fraud involving $33,600.

Giles' trial on a bribery charge involving $30,000 in a Bexar county veterans land deal was postponed in San Antonio yesterday.

He faces a third group of indictments, charging conspiracy to commit theft of $83,500 in a Dimmit county deal.

The new charges involve a block land deal in Kinney county.

In block deals, a promoter buys a large tract of land, breaks it up into small tracts, signs up veterans to buy it, then receives from the state the total amount of money the veterans have agreed to pay.

FORMER WIFE BEATS MAN TO THE DRAW, KILLS HIM

TULSA, Okla., May 24 (AP)—Three shots from a pistol fired by his recently divorced wife in the downtown Tulsa business district fatally wounded Ray Madison Deatherage yesterday.

Police arrested Mildred Ann Barton, 44 years old, after the shooting in front of a department store at the evening rush hour.

The woman told officers her former husband entered the department store where she worked and threatened her. He then demanded she leave with him. She was divorced from Deatherage in January.

As they got to the door of the store, Miss Barton related, the former oil field worker reached inside his shirt. She said he had a pistol but she beat him to the draw. Police said a loaded pistol was found on Deatherage.

AFGHANISTAN SAYS PAKISTAN CLOSED BORDER, BROKE WORD

LONDON, May 24 (UP)—Afghan Ambassador Najib Ullah charged today that Pakistan had closed its frontier with Afghanistan and blocked all trade traffic since May 14 despite assurances that no such action would be taken.

Mediators are seeking to end a dispute between the two countries over the Northwest Frontier territories. Najib Ullah said the Afghan charge d'affaires in Karachi had protested to the Pakistan Government over the border closing.

No official comment was available from the Pakistani high commission office here but Pakistani sources denied that the border had been closed. They said trade had been considerably reduced, however.

U.S. OPPOSES RESTRICTIVE BUSINESS PRACTICES INQUIRY

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., May 24 (AP)—The United States yesterday opposed a pending international agreement for an organization to investigate restrictive business practices.

United States delegate Preston Hotchkiss told the 18-nation United Nations Economic and Social Council this agreement, drawn up by a special committee in 1953, "might well prejudice rather than promote the attainment of the desired objectives."

He added that the United States would co-operate with other nations against restrictive business practices "through normal diplomatic channels and through technical assistance."

ICC RECEIVES PLANS FOR ILLINOIS TERMINAL

11 Carriers Say They Would Continue Routes and Rehabilitate Line.

By a Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 24—Eleven major railroads which are seeking to buy the Illinois Terminal Railroad Co. yesterday told the Interstate Commerce Commission that they "would rehabilitate and strengthen" the line if permitted to buy it for $20,000,000.

In a statement filed with the ICC, the proposed purchasing group said that its plan "unambiguously calls for continuing present routes and connections" and that a broad rehabilitation program would be effected under the new ownership.

The statement by the railroads followed the action of the Justice Department last week in asking the ICC to resolve a series of anti-trust questions before passing on the sale.

The questions of a buyer's possible elimination of competition should be examined, the department said. The question of whether a sale to one railroad only might better serve the public interests also should be studied, the department said.

ESCAPEES SAY REBEL ALGERIANS ARE WELL-ARMED

ALGIERS, May 24 (UP)—Six French paratroopers reached French lines today after escaping from Algerian rebels and told commanding officers the rebels are well-armed and prepared for a long guerrilla campaign.

The six were taken prisoner in an ambush in the Aures mountains Feb. 16. One reached safety at Berkane. A patrol unit picked up the other five near Negrene. The six were rushed by helicopter to French headquarters at Constantine to give the first eyewitness account on how the elusive nationalist "Army of God" lives and fights.

They said the rebels used them as "coolies" to carry heavy packs of ammunition and supplies between insurgent camps in Algeria and Tunisia. The paratroopers said the rebels had ample supplies of arms and ammunition and were ready to wage a long guerrilla war from their hideouts in the Aures mountains.

MARK TWAIN EXPRESSWAY BRIDGE PERMIT SOUGHT

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 24—An application for authority to build a viaduct to carry the proposed Mark Twain expressway over tracks of the Wabash railroad in Normandy was filed with the Public Service Commission yesterday afternoon by the State Highway Department.

The overhead structure, to provide for six traffic lanes, is estimated to cost $200,000, to be paid from state and federal highway funds.

Construction of the overhead crossing would eliminate a grade crossing which would be inconvenient and dangerous to the traveling public, it was said. Department engineers said the site chosen for the overhead structure is north of Natural Bridge road and 500 feet east of Florissant road.

UNION ACCUSED OF KEEPING ITS EMPLOYEES OUT OF UNION

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—The National Labor Relations Board called the AFL Teamsters Union on the carpet today on charges that it has sought to discourage some of its own employees from becoming members of a rival AFL union.

An NLRB trial examiner, Martin S. Bennett, has held that the Teamsters Union tried to prevent the AFL Office Employees Local No. 11 from organizing teamster employees at Portland, Ore., and fired five of those workers in the process. Bennett ruled that one employee, Jane Cook, was discharged for refusing to cross an Office Employees Union picket line around the teamsters' office building.

The examiner also found that John J. Sweeney, Teamsters Union international representative, tried to get a witness, Mary Emenc, to change her testimony or "take a trip" to avoid testifying in an NLRB hearing on the West Coast in connection with the same charges.

Today's hearing was on an appeal of the teamsters from Bennett's findings.

PRESIDENT SAYS G.O.P. HOLDS MAJORITY VIEWS

Tells Republican Dinner That Party Applies
Founding Fathers' Principles.

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—President Eisenhower told a Republican audience last night that Democrats may outnumber them but that G.O.P. thinking is "majority thinking."

The President said most Americans agree with the aims of his Administration, which he said are based on "a very simple sort of idea."

"We take the principles of the past and apply them to the problems of the moment, and that's all there is to it."

Speaking informally at a G.O.P. "kickoff for 1956 dinner," Mr. Eisenhower depicted the Republican party as a middle-of-the-road group with principles based on the moral precepts of the founding fathers.

"We are not trying to go back to the horse cars, we are not trying to fly to Mars," he said.

"Majority Thinking."

"Now we have been told that the Republican party is a minority party. And I suppose by statistical records, that is true. But it is not true that the doctrine I have been so roughly expounding... is minority thinking in this country—not by any means. This is majority thinking."

Mr. Eisenhower said he regards the G.O.P. as "the finest political organization we have through which the electorate can do its part in preserving for the future the kind of America we have inherited."

The $25-a-plate dinner was sponsored by the District of Columbia Republican Women's Finance Committee. The crowd, estimated at 1600, took up a chant of "We Want Ike" as Mr. Eisenhower walked on the platform. He grinned but gave no hints of his plans for next year.

Mr. Eisenhower later pointed to Vice President Nixon as a "great leader" and added:

"We have dozens of others of his age (42) in the Republican party who bring inspiration to all of us by their dedicated service to the United States."

Other speakers urged the audience to begin "right now" re-electing President Eisenhower and Nixon.

Prosperity Theme.

Summing up a panel discussion that preceded Mr. Eisenhower's appearance, moderator Nixon said the Administration has brought the nation prosperity and a "new atmosphere of peace."

Participants in the discussion, recorded and filmed for later use by radio and television, included Secretary of Defense Wilson, Secretary of Labor Mitchell and Secretary of Agriculture Benson.

Earlier yesterday Indiana Republicans presented Mr. Eisenhower a copy of a resolution adopted by the Republican state central committee urging him to seek another term.

Asked how the President received it, Gov. George M. Craig said, "I think he was pleased—probably." The visitors said the President gave them no inkling whether he would run again.

Senator McCarthy (Rep., Wis.), in a transcribed radio interview last night, said he could not support Mr. Eisenhower for re-election in 1956 "unless the President does something about the prisoner of war situation." He said, however, that if Democrat Adlai Stevenson were the only other candidate "I would have to, I suppose, vote for Mr. Eisenhower as the lesser of two evils."

NICKEL SCHEDULED FOR U.S. IS DIVERTED TO INDUSTRY

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—Three million pounds of nickel, originally scheduled for delivery to Government stocks in June, will be diverted instead to industry, the Office of Defense Mobilization announced yesterday.

ODM authorized the sale of 2,000,000 pounds to industrial users at market prices, on top of a 1,000,000-pound diversion previously ordered to relieve the persistent shortage of the alloying metal. The shipments had been committed to the national defense stockpile and to the reserve acquired by the General Services Administration under long-term federal purchase contracts designed to stimulate domestic production of the metal.

ODM said the portion originally intended for the stockpile will be delivered to defense producers under Commerce Department instructions. The rest will be doled out by the producers who, ODM said, are pledged to make an equitable distribution among industrial consumers.

IT'S A PSYCHOLOGICAL FACT: PLEASURE HELPS YOUR DISPOSITION

FEEL LIKE ROARING? That's only human. Little annoyances pile up... you're cross and edgy—Grrr!

That's why, psychology says, everyday pleasures are so important. For pleasure takes the edge off annoyances... helps your disposition. So, if you're a smoker, you should choose a cigarette that gives you the most pleasure. And that means Camels!

For more pure pleasure
...have a Camel

CAMELS are not only the choice of pleasure... they are the choice of wisdom! It's wise to get all the pleasure there is when you smoke. Because everyday pleasures are important. And "all the pleasure there is" means CAMELS, known the world over for their rich flavor and mildness! No wonder Camels agree with more people than any other cigarette! Remember—the cigarette that's stingy with flavor won't give you CAMELS' pure pleasure. So... have a CAMEL!

No More Hamburgers at Filet Prices for State's Emissaries

Comptroller Also Rules Out Bar Bills,
Laundry and Other Items as Proper Travel Expenses.

By BOYD CARROLL Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 24—New regulations on travel expense accounts of state officials and employees, which would bar recovery of filet mignon steak prices for hamburger fare, have been issued by State Comptroller Newton Atterbury, effective June 1.

The new rule book of 12 pages is based on the theme that traveling expenses reimbursed from state funds must be confined to those essential to the transacting of official business for the state.

Prohibited from inclusion in such accounts are personal expenses "for the sole benefit of the state employee or official," such as bar bills, laundry, radio or television charges, valet service, extra meals, and incidental items not directly connected with travel.

Expects a Savings.
Atterbury said the new regulations, compiled after study of such rules in use by the 47 other states, and by 18 large corporations, "should save the state some money." He would not venture an estimate.

About 3000 of the state's approximately 22,000 regular and seasonal employees submit expense accounts some regularly, some occasionally, it was said.

The new rules would prohibit a practice—said to be somewhat prevalent—of several officials or state employees riding on official business in one automobile, but coming up later with separate automobile mileage accounts. The allowance is seven cents a mile, as heretofore.

Officials who deem it necessary to have dinner guests at state expense, must explain the reason in asking reimbursement, and include the names of the guests.

All items heretofore listed on expense accounts as "miscellaneous" must be explained, Atterbury said.

Receipts Required.
A former practice of permitting officials and employees to submit printed memorandum slips covering a wide range of expenses, signed by the cashier, clerk or attendant who received the money, is being abolished.

Instead the receipted bills of hotels, including the number of guests involved, the stubs of train, bus and plane tickets and other verifying data must be included with the expense accounts, under the new rules. Another rule prohibits state officials and employees, who reside in Jefferson City, or are employed here, from collecting expense money for hotel bills and meals in Jefferson City.

BRITISH CANDIDATE MAKES HYDROGEN BOMB AN ISSUE

GRAVESEND, England, May 24 (AP)—In this corner of England near the mouth of the Thames, Thursday's election will be, in effect, a referendum on the hydrogen bomb.

Election posters depict the mushroom clouds of atomic explosions. There are pictures of devastated Hiroshima, of piles of corpses.

There is no provision for a referendum on any subject in the election. But the vote will amount to that here because of the burning conviction of one candidate, Sir Richard Acland. For seven and one-half years Acland represented this district as a Laborite in the House of Commons. His last majority was a healthy 6000. Then his party approved manufacture of nuclear weapons. His opposition was so violent he resigned from the party, re-signing from Parliament, and decided to fight as an independent for re-election. "It will be the first time, as far as I know, that common people will have a chance to pass judgment on this hideous weapon," Acland says.

A Wonderful Hobby

Watching a Baby Grow Into a Child

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP).

EVERY adult in the world ought to spend at least an hour a day baby watching. I can't think of a better way to learn human nature. Seeing a child struggle so desperately to become a grownup, you begin dimly to understand why grown-ups so often act like desperate children.

HAL BOYLE

It seems to have sprung up with the speed of a flower racing the turning sun.

So it has been with Tracy Ann, a small stranger who came into our lives as a month-old mite in a bundle nearly two years ago.

Why, it seems only yesterday that I held her to my shoulder to burp her. So soft and frail and helpless she felt then, so utterly dependent, that I was afraid she'd bend and break.

WHAT HAPPENS to a baby? Where do they vanish so swiftly? Right while you're watching, right before your eyes, the baby fades and disappears. Suddenly you no longer are watching a baby but a small sturdy human being running on its own legs, pushing your helping hands away impatiently, and trying to seize the whole wide world in its two little hands.

When did it happen? You can't quite remember. All you know is that the baby you loved is gone. A child you love has taken its place.

There is a big difference between a baby and a child. Take reading, for example. As a baby, Tracy Ann loved nothing better than to digest newspaper editorials. She did this literally, by tearing out the editorial, stuffing it in her mouth, and gumming it until it had been thoroughly absorbed. Finally had to take newspapers away from her altogether. Afraid she might ruin her eyes.

NOW, AS A CHILD, she is on a Mother Goose jag. We read these jingles together practically every morning. But I may have to halt this, too. It seems to make her melancholy. Her favorite picture shows Little Boy Blue, fast asleep under the haystack. He is barefooted, and this distresses Tracy no end.

"No shoes," she says sadly, shaking her head. Never mind the sheep in the meadow, the cows in the corn. Isn't that sleepy little boy ever going to get a pair of bright new shoes?

MY WIFE, FRANCES, and I believe Tracy must be a genius because, although her second birthday is still a month away, she can count up to five and tell the primary colors.

That is, she can do these things when she isn't in her dotage or trying to tease me. A child's dotage comes just before its nap or bedtime, when its wits wander like those of some very old people. At such moments Tracy insists four comes after two and there is no such number as three at all.

But a child loves nothing better than pulling a grownup's leg. Thus it is that on some days, although she knows the grass is green and the sky is blue, Tracy will stoutly argue both are red. In fact, when she is in her scarlet mood, she even upholds the theory her feet are red.

"Tracy, do you want to grow up to be a real fat girl or a real pretty girl?" I ask her.

"Real fat," she answers, looking up with a leer that only childhood knows.

SHE HAS SUCH a tremendous thirst for knowledge—she seems to be trying to learn everything under the sun each moment—it sometimes appalls me.

Watching Tracy as a baby was tremendous fun. So is it now to watch her spiritlike child's mind unfold. But I have an uneasy feeling now that she is studying me as much as I am studying her.

This is a real crossroads in life for any parent, the time when he is perhaps wise if he went into a closed room, stared at himself in the mirror, and started pondering over what he wants his child to see in him.

Etiquette

READERS ask me frequently whether they must reply to wedding invitations, what they should do when they receive wedding announcements, and under what circumstances they must send gifts.

AMY VANDERBILT

The rules, in brief, are these:

If you receive an invitation to the church and not to the reception, you go to the wedding if you wish, but you do not have to send a reply. Also, you send a gift or not, as you wish.

When you receive an invitation to the wedding and the reception you must reply, as the latter is a social occasion and preparation for the proper number of guests must be made. If you go to the reception you usually do send a gift. If you send your regrets you send a gift or not as you choose.

When you receive a wedding announcement you send a gift if you wish to, a friendly note if you so desire to the bride and groom or to the bride's family or the groom's family—in other words, to the person or persons to whom you feel indebted for the invitation. This, however, is not obligatory. You may merely accept the announcement for what it is—an announcement—and put the information contained in it in your address book.

Try and Stop Me

AT an exclusive restaurant on Fifty-second street in New York City, "Have you a reservation?" is the chill formula that sends all but "regulars" back out into the cold night. Lucius Beebe tells of one time, however, that the late Robert Capa, the photographer, outwitted the "opposition." He had just gotten off a plane from Europe and was unshaven, disheveled, and in every respect exactly the kind of customer this fancy "jerk" was wont to frown upon. "Have you a reservation?" the maitre d'hotel asked "Bob" in his most chilling tone. "No," admitted Capa in a very lordly manner, "but Robert Capa, the world's greatest photographer, asked me to meet him here." The major-domo melted. "Come right in, sir," he beamed. "Mr. Capa hasn't arrived yet, but we're expecting him any minute."

It's an Agile Hip, Lazy Foot Dance

'Merengue' Is the New Latin Step Rubirosa Taught Zsa Zsa Gabor

By Phyllis Battelle

NEW YORK, May 24 (INS).

HERE are not many things that Porfirio Rubirosa can teach Miss Zsa Zsa Gabor, for she is pretty well up on the tricks of the trade—"trade" in this case meaning the exchange of social niceties and marriage vows, as they are swapped in Rubi's "international set."

But there is one thing he taught her, and that was the "merengue." Not the merengue like you eat with strawberries and whipped cream, but the merengue like they dance down in Rubirosa's homeland, the Dominican Republic.

It is a new step executed with a fluttering hip and limp leg, and is said to be the hottest innovation in the dance world since the black bottom.

"You really must learn it," said a representative of the Dominican embassy. "Within six months, it will have swept the country and completely replaced the mambo."

So—visualizing the awkward moment when a local Romeo might ask me to merengue and I would have to say that my feet were killing me—I took off for a lesson in this brand new art of terpsichory.

The teacher was Chancellor Guillermo Nadal of the Dominican consulate, and we met in a back room at Arthur Murray's. All very businesslike, because Murray was there as chaperone. Also two of his girl teachers, "Miss Debbie" and "Miss Betty." They were wearing snug skirts, to illustrate a point.

"It is a very subtle dance,"

ZSA ZSA GABOR AND PORFIRIO RUBIROSA... SITTING ONE OUT.

said Chancellor Nadal. "The hip move is important."

To show what was meant, Miss Debbie thrust out a likely left hip. "See?" said Nadal.

It was hard even for a woman to miss.

"That is the first half of the basic movement of the merengue," said Murray, sticking his hip into the conversation. "The other half is a sort of limp with the right leg. In other words, here's how it goes—sway out with the left hip, drag the right foot, sway with the left, drag with the right, sway with the left, drag with the right."

"This dance is really a one-step, in which you do a sort of a fox trot with one leg, and rumba with the other," said Murray, clinically. "It will replace the mambo easily, because the mambo is a dance that can only be done by a young, exhibitionistic crowd."

"This is much easier," he said, heaving lightly.

NADAL regretfully gave up dancing with Miss Betty and returned to the discussion, speaking loudly over the tomtoms. "The dance is at least 100 years old," he said. "It is said it originated when a Dominican soldier returned with a crippled leg, and a dance was held in his honor. He could only limp when dancing so, in homage to the guest of honor, the rest of the people copied his style. And that is how the merengue is said to have started."

Do you believe that? I asked him.

"No," snorted Nadal. "But I have no other stories."

The reason that merengue is being introduced around the United States today, Murray and Nadal admitted, is two-fold: To give the dance-loving Dominican Republic some extra-Rubirosan stature, and to re-inspire interest in ballroom terpsichory in America.

"It's been a long time since he had a new dance that the older people could enjoy," they pointed out, "but this is an easy, relaxing series of steps they should do with the same ease as the youngsters."

In fact, perhaps, from what I saw of the merengue, with its lame duck action, every little infirmity may help.

Iodine Is Necessary For Health

By Edith M. Barber

ONE of the important minerals is iodine. A very small amount of this will supply all that we need. It was for this reason that the importance of iodine was not recognized for a long time.

In many sections of the country the soil supplies to the crops that are grown on it, and consequently to the persons and animals that eat them, an adequate amount. This means that vegetables and milk may or may not be good sources. Water may also have a natural content.

When there is an acute iodine deficiency, enlargement of the thyroid gland, known as goiter, may result. In one mountainous region in Europe, this was once very common. In certain of our own states there was a good deal of goiter until it was discovered that the addition of iodine was a preventive.

As salt is so commonly used, a practical plan of adding iodine to this condiment was decided upon. This is now generally available. Goiter is no longer common even in places where little is supplied by natural means.

As so much of our vegetable supply comes from a distance and we cannot be sure of the iodine content, it is good insurance to purchase iodized salt for common use. The cost will be very small and the premium will be prevention of deficiency.

The amount of iodine supplied by the salt is not great enough to have any harmful effect. The use of fish and shell fish from salt water so common in coastal regions has shown that the natural content of iodine is a preventive of goiter.

Perhaps the most generally popular products from salt water are shrimp, sardines, tuna and salmon. From all of these we get an iodine dividend.

Sardine Sandwiches. One can sardines, butter, one-half cup minced celery, one-fourth cup minced carrots, mayonnaise to moisten, sliced bread. Drain sardines and combine oil with softened butter and use to spread slices. Mince sardines. Add celery and carrot and enough mayonnaise to hold ingredients together. Spread on bread slices. Put together in pairs. Slice diagonally and serve garnished with lemon wedges. Yield: Four sandwiches.

Baked Tuna Fish With Cheese. Four tablespoons butter, four tablespoons flour, three-fourths teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, two cups milk.

1. DO WOMEN BREAK DOWN UNDER LOVE DISAPPOINTMENTS AS OFTEN AS MEN DO? YES ☐ NO ☐

2. IS IT LACK OF MEMORY WHEN YOU CAN'T TELL GROceries WHAT YOUR WIFE WANTS? YES ☐ NO ☐

3. SOME BOYS ARE MADE "BAD" BECAUSE THEY CAN'T READ. TRUE ☐ FALSE ☐

Answer to Question 1. O. Science writer John Gibson shows in a leading magazine that three times as many men as women commit suicide over lost love. Also, far more murder for "love" (not true love, but insane jealousy). Curiously, young men usually murder their rivals, while older men take it out on the woman. So girls, size up the age of your boy friend before breaking off with him.

Answer to Question 2. No. You never knew what she said. You weren't interested in it. The first law of memory is interest. You rarely remember what you are not interested in.

three-fourths teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, one cup (one-fourth pound) grated cheese, two pimientos, cut in small pieces, one (seven-ounce) can tuna fish.

Melt butter, stir in flour, salt and pepper, and when well blended, add milk slowly, stirring constantly over low heat until mixture thickens and boils. Add Worcestershire sauce. Add cheese and stir until well blended. Add pimientos and flaked tuna fish. Mix well, pour in greased one and one-half quart baking dish and bake in moderate oven (375 F.) 15 minutes. Serve with buttered noodles. Yield: Six servings. If desired, two cans of tuna fish may be used.

Little Hat. A little hat made of glistening green leaves fits the head snugly and is dotted with rhinestones. Another made of pink pique is edged with matching braid that is also trimmed with the glistening stones. These small hats are designed for evening wear and provide a minimum of head coverage.

On Going Away on Vacation. At this time of year an old classmate of ours is busy as can be reading over the social columns in the local newspapers and driving around suburban streets looking for little piles of letters, newspapers and milk bottles on front doors.

This chap never did very well at school and he has never been able to hold a job for more than a couple of weeks, but he does make a pretty fair income breaking into homes of people who have gone away on vacation and failed to take a few simple precautions.

Your average housebreaker much prefers to work in a house that is deserted for a week or so than one where the family might return at any minute, so it's natural that they keep an eye open for homes where the family is obviously off for a couple of weeks of fun and sunshine.

Piles of newspapers, letters and milk bottles are a sure sign of this, and so is uncut grass in an area where lawns are kept neatly trimmed.

Our advice is before you go take a few simple steps to prevent your house from looking as if you were away. Stop the deliveries of milk, newspapers and magazines and mail. If you can't stop all of them, have a friend pick them up in the morning and put them away for you. This should be done as soon after delivery as possible.

If you are going to be gone for any length of time, pay someone to cut the lawn for you and do any trimming of bushes that might give away the fact you are away. Don't pull down window blinds and shades throughout the house. Notify the local police that you are going off, so they can keep an eye on the place.

Last but not least, don't leave a lot of money or small valuables around—a thief needs a truck or car to remove a TV set or a home freezer, but money and diamonds fit comfortably into almost any pocket.

Postcard Press Agent

By Stan Delaplane

IF YOU LIVE in Hollywood or New York particularly, you know that Everybody has to get his name in the papers. Or be a Nobody. Being a Nobody is terrible. So the other night I stopped over in Hollywood to see Sam Wall whose business is making anybody somebody.

STAN DELAPLANE

Wall is a press agent. He fires off items to the papers about singers, restaurants, band leaders. If these items are printed, Wall's clients are Somebody. They are very happy. However, it is a wear-business.

"In my business, we have lots of twosomes," said Wall. "Minnie the Moocher dining at the Villa Capri (the client) with Joe Glow, TV star." Many a twosome gets sheared off by space or the fickle judgment of column writers. But then there are red letter days when the jackpot falls.

"I'LL NEVER FORGET when my wife was having our second baby," said Wall emotionally. "I rushed her to the hospital in New York. 'Honey, I said you go on up and I'll register you in.'"

"Well, when I went up to the room, 501, there was nobody there. The hall nurse said, 'Your wife is in the delivery room and will be out in a few minutes.' So, I hadn't seen the papers yet. I said, 'Have you got the morning papers?'"

"She had only the Mirror. I open it up to Winchell. What do you know? I got five mentions! Two Orchids to one to Joe Ricardel's orchestra, he was playing in the Tavern-on-the-Green. One Sound in the Night, I had. Two mentions, Vincent Lopez and Tony Craig who was singing at No. 1 Fifth avenue."

"Well, I'm standing there. I can hardly believe it. They wheeled my wife out. I bend over her. She said: 'Sam, it's a little girl. Aren't you happy?'"

"Happy?" I said. "I'll say I'm happy! I just got FIVE MENTIONS in Winchell!"

"You know what?" said Wall. "She still gets mad when I tell that story."

ONE OF WALL'S greater creations came during a brain-wracking period.

"I have mentioned all the twosomes I know. Also I am now down, to where I am twosomeing my 6-year-old daughter with a neighbor boy."

"I am looking out the window, staring at a big sign across the street, 'Abbey Rents.' Comes a knock on the door. It was Ericson, the landlord for the rent."

Wall returned to his typewriter and batted out a twosome. Miss Abby Rents, the starlet, dining with Mr. Guy Ericson, millionaire. The Rents-Ericson romance began to flame hotly. At all of Wall's client eating houses.

"I dined them at the Villa Capri. They split up at the Tabletoppers. They made up at Casa Toluca. He gave her an engagement ring at the China Trader."

IT WAS a tempestuous affair. Odd in a way since it was about two twosomes who actually were nobody at all. Abby became well-known for her sudden flareups. Readers watched the columns to find that good old Wall had squared it again. To the romantic music at Johnny Walsh's "881."

It was a major production. But Wall was really relieved when it ended. The ending was sad but dramatic. "One of the Los Angeles columnists got hep. I had to confess."

"Next day I read in her column: 'Guy Ericson, man-about-town who has been squiring lovely Abby Rents, died last night of a sudden heart attack.'"

"The least she could have done," said Wall thoughtfully, "was kill him in a client restaurant."

Choosing a Sitter

By Angelo Patri

"HOW old should a girl be to act as a baby sitter?" asks a mother whose young daughter wants to earn some needed money this way. As usual in any situation concerning children, we must say, "It depends."

It is never a young person's age, the number of his birthdays, that make him eligible for a position of responsibility. It is his maturity of judgment, his dependability, his knowledge of the requirements of the job that qualifies him. I knew a small boy of 3 who could be trusted to guard his baby sister while she had an airing in the garden, and I knew a young woman of 18 who could not be depended upon for any such thing.

TO BE A RESPONSIBLE BABY SITTER, and there no other kind is acceptable, experience with young children is essential. The sitter must know something about the nature of the child she takes care of: how to amuse him, how to control him; how he is to be bathed, and fed and dressed. If a young girl has helped her mother care for younger brothers and sisters she has a good background for this task. After that she needs to be welcomed and accepted by her charges to be.

Anybody engaging a baby sitter, old or young, should be more than careful about getting references from people who have a thorough acquaintance with the candidate. The fact that a girl lives next door is not the sole qualification for this most responsible relationship to a family. Before employing her ask her teachers about her qualifications for baby sitting. Ask the neighbors, too.

My favorite baby sitter is Grandmother, or Grandfather. After the grandparents come aunts. There is nobody like an auntie to take care of the child, or children, that she loves. Failing these the experienced, motherly friend or neighbor, who makes a practice of baby sitting, fills in for the occasion.

THE FEELING that the baby and his sitter have toward each other is important. Unless they like each other there will be trouble. Babies and children young enough to need a sitter are sensitive to the feeling people have about them. They seem to hear them think. If a child says he does not want this or that person to stay with him, better think twice before insisting.

If a child does not trust the sitter he will not go to her for help. If he is thirsty, or frightened, or lonely, he suffers doubly because he does not feel that he can ask for help for the comfort and affection of one he does not like or love him.

It is open season now for baby sitters. Do be most careful about selecting the one who takes over the responsibility for your children.

A Big Step Up at the Municipal Opera

Alan Green Had Walk-on Role as a Boy, Now He's First St. Louisan to Be Park Stage Director

ALAN GREEN... HIS FIRST STAGE APPEARANCE AT THE MUNICIPAL OPERA WAS ENOUGH TO FIRE HIS AMBITION FOR THE THEATER FOR LIFE.

By Clarissa Start

THE way most small boys idolize baseball players was the way Alan Green idolized the Municipal Opera performers when he was a child. He would go to see every show at least twice, and when his seventh grade class at John Burroughs School was taken on an educational trip to Chicago, and saw the show, "Three Little Girls," scheduled to open that summer's opera season, he had a very daring idea.

"There was a part for a child in the show," he recalls, "so I wrote to J. J. Shubert, who was running the opera then, and I told him I'd be much better than the boy they had in Chicago. He wrote back at, despite my feeling in the matter, they were bringing the entire company from Chicago including the boy. However, he added, there was a part in the second show, 'The Street Singer,' that would be cast locally, and if I wanted to audition for it, I could."

Many years later, Green suspected that the part in "The Street Singer" was invented solely for the benefit of the brash youngster who had written the letter, but at the time his "elght was unshadowed by doubt. He auditioned, was hired, and started on his career, a career which has led from that lowly walk-on to his recent appointment as stage director of the Municipal Opera, first St. Louisan ever to hold that job. Green's family did not realize the full implications of his first job. They had not taken his rap interest in theater seriously. Even now, aside from his unusually long, artistic looking hands, Green looks like a pleasant, conservatively dressed young man of good family, who might be a junior member of a banking or brokerage firm. His father was the late Judge Ernest A. Green and there was no theatrical precedent in the family.

His family's only tangible reaction, as he recalls it, was an expression of horror that someone would have to escort him from their Kent road home to Forest Park every night for a week.

"But my sister came opening night, took one look at Archie Leach, the leading man, and volunteered to bring me for the rest of the run," he laughs.

His sister had a good eye. Archie Leach later became known to motion picture fans as Cary Grant. Others in the cast included Queenie Smith and Jack Good, who will be back this season for "The Desert Song." Green finds it highly amusing that the one time page boy of "Street Singer" will be directing one of the leads. The page boy's part was a rather modest one.

"I came on in the middle of the ballet and broke it up by shouting, 'Second act, girls, second act,'" he says. "Then later on, I crossed the stage with a basket of flowers for Queenie Smith."

This was enough to fire his ambition for life, however. Throughout Burroughs and Washington University, he appeared in school theatricals and in plays at the Little Theater and the Civic Theater on Warsaw in Stockbridge, Mass., for an apprenticeship.

Then the war cut into his career for four years. In the Army Air Corps, he "finally achieved the rank of corporal" but had "the good luck to get a fine tour of Europe and be stationed 40 miles from London or Paris most of the time."

"When I got out of the army," he said, "I decided the period in which I would have been pouncing the pavements trying to get into the theater as an actor had passed and that I'd better try to get started in some other capacity. I came here to see about a job at the Municipal Opera and was taken on as second assistant stage manager, in 1946."

Green traces most of his theatrical progress to the opera in some way or other. For instance, John B. Kennedy, producer of the opera, who "has been wonderful" to him, made him assistant stage manager of "Angel in the Wings," Broadway show which starred Paul and Grace Hartman. This led to another Hartman show, "Tickets Please." He also got the job as stage manager at the St. Petersburg (Fla.) opera through singer Wilbur Evans, whom he'd met here. When Bob Perry, who'd been a director at the opera, came to St. Louis to start the Empress Playhouse, he made Green assistant director for the first season. And musical director Edwin McArthur recommended him to Harold Koplar to direct "Two Gentlemen of Broadway," the first of a series of supper club musicals at Koplar's Park Plaza Hotel.

DURING the summer seasons at the opera, he advanced from second to first assistant stage manager, then to assistant stage director, and this year succeeded Romney Brent as stage director.

"The stage manager runs the show after the stage director finishes with it," he defines the difference between the two jobs. "He sees that what the stage director had planned is followed out, that the sets follow in sequence, and the performers make their entrances on cue."

The director's job begins early in the season. In fact, Green worked in New York about six weeks before coming here last week, conferring with the producer, the scenic and costume designers, costume companies, musical director, choreographer and so on. Green lives in St. Louis during the winter months, stays at the Gatesworth Hotel while here. His mother lives in Clayton, his sister, Mrs. Joel A. Rogers, lives on Southmoor drive, his brother, John L. Green, on Willow Hill road.

"The Merry Widow" will be the first production of the opera season, opening on Thursday, June 2, and its rehearsals began yesterday, when Green started working with the principals. He finds people in musicals much easier to get along with than those in straight plays and while a certain amount of personal relations psychology is needed, by and large, he has few problems of temperament at the opera.

"Perhaps it seems that way because all the straight plays I've handled involved former movie stars and they're always impossible. I won't mention any names since I've said that," he adds with a laugh.

"But I think there's another reason for the difference. I think singers and dancers are easier to handle because they consider their role something they're willing to do between their big numbers. They're most amiable. If you say, 'I think you ought to do this bit of action this way instead of the way you've been doing it,' a singer thinks, 'Oh well, if he wants me to speak my lines this way between my two songs what difference does it make?' And dancers feel the same way."

Green is so pleased with his present job that he has no thoughts for future ones, or very few thoughts at all beyond opening night. He gets fewer nervous jitters over openings than he did as an actor but might be justified in having some qualms when he considers the weeks ahead of him.

On Saturday, after one week of rehearsals, "The Merry Widow" will have its first run-through. On Sunday, the first dress rehearsal of the first act, on Monday, the second and third acts, on Tuesday the guarantors' dinner, on Wednesday the final rehearsal, on Thursday the opening, and then Green will start work on the next show. He sees the finished performance only on its opening night.

"In fact," he said rather sadly, "I don't get to see as much of the shows out front now as I used to when I was going to John Burroughs."

Contract Bridge

By Ely Culbertson

THE forcing pass is essentially a high-echelon bidding device, but, strange to say, it is not too well understood by those players who profess to know all about it. Let's look at a sensational deal that involved this bidding situation.

South dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

This was the bidding in a rubber game:

South West North East

5♣ Pass 6♣ Pass

Pass 6♥ Pass Pass

Dble. Pass Pass Pass

Let's not linger too long on West's remarkable bidding behavior, viz., the fact that he passed (and no wonder) over South's high pre-emptive opening but then came in with the fantastic six-heart bid on the next round. What we are presently concerned with is the North-South reaction to this intervention.

First, we'd better find out what happened. North opened the ace of clubs against the doubled six-heart contract, and West took all the tricks, scoring 1860 points.

This conversation (for a reasonable facsimile thereof) then took place between North and South:

South: "Why didn't you bid seven clubs? I'd have made it, too, against the normal lead of the heart ace."

North: "Why didn't you bid seven clubs?"

South: "How could I? Your pass over six hearts asked me to bid seven clubs or double. I certainly couldn't see 13 tricks with my hand, so I doubled. And we'd have beaten them, too, if you hadn't got off to that (censored) lead."

South was right, of course, about the lead—the ace and another diamond would have beaten the contract—but South was 100 per cent wrong otherwise. The forcing pass does not invite partner to double if he simply feels he has reached his own bidding limit; it demands a further bid if partner cannot make a logical double.

It is all a matter of putting the emphasis on the right side.

On the Virtue of Shoddiness

By Mary Margaret McBride

MR. PRICE, whose hobby is antique automobile, shook his head sadly as he viewed the 1955 streamlined job his neighbor had just proudly acquired. "They don't build 'em the way they used to," he declared and looked lovingly at the vehicle in his own driveway, an ancient touring car, more like a praying mantis than anything else.

Mr. Price probably won't agree with an argument I recently heard put forth by Dr. Margaret Mead, one of the most lucid of our thinkers. The brilliant anthropologist called the fact that we don't build houses, furniture, hats or even stockings quite as solidly as we used to, a sign of a "good" civilization.

"In a good civilization," remarked Dr. Mead thoughtfully, "things should perish fast. Toys, for example. You buy them, take them home, the children play with them for a while and break them. You throw those away, go out and buy some more. That creates more work for the people who make the toys."

I suspect that fashions in clothes are part of a major scheme to make you and me buy more garments than we absolutely need to cover our nakedness. And, according to Dr. Mead who may possibly have had tongue in cheek, this is just dandy. She cited the floral necklace of the South Seas that takes several days to make as a case in point.

The necklace lasts for a day or so, fades and is discarded. Lots of work and very little wear, but says Dr. Mead: "The decks are cleared and they start making another. It's a good idea."

MY VISION sharpened by listening to the anthropologist, I spotted, while leafing through a report on a forum attended by food and cookbook writers, the question an amateur observer had asked a merchandising expert, to wit: "Are jar lids that you have to pry off and can't screw back an irritant to the consumer?"

The expert, not to be caught in a direct answer, parried: "There is a reason for the pry-off top. People hate to throw away glass containers. If a glass has a screw top, people keep it for ages, even if they have no use for it!"

So the glass packagers, bless their little hearts, make pry-off tops to save us from ourselves—and sell more jars, of course.

I'D LIKE the packaging people to know that I'm one who has been definitely irritated by pry-off tops on glass jars, first because the tops always manage to roll away to a corner under the sink while being transported to the refrigerator, and second, because I buy about four times more grated Parmesan cheese than I would if it came in jars with screw-on tops.

Now, because of Margaret Mead's theory of desirable perishability, I'm resigned to the situation. All the same, I've thought of a way to bore a hole in the dike of our economic situation. I shall, henceforth, save all jars with screw-on tops and use them for my grated Parmesan cheese. And I shall throw away the pry-off tops but save the cheese jars themselves for an emergency supply of drinking glasses!

Martha Carr's OPINION

Dear Martha:

I HAVE been married four years and have two children. My husband and I quarrel constantly. He thinks my place is in the home with the children and to never go anywhere. When one of the children is sick, I just about have to beg him to take us to the doctor. He leaves me at home without a penny. When I ask him for money he says he is getting tired of handing out money to me and the kids. He says he works for the money and it is his. When we were first married, I worked and helped pay the bills until our first baby was born. When she was 3 months old I went back to work for two years. I have been sick and have two sick children. I can't take this much longer. I love my husband but when my children are sick, they come first.

HEART-BROKEN MOTHER.

Your children deserve all the concern and affection and care both you and your husband can give them, but is it possible that you have been devoting your life to them altogether, so that your husband feels he has nothing to say about them and doesn't count as much with you as they do? Even so, he has no right to neglect his family and if he is doing so, you'll have to try at least to change his attitude. You can help by refusing to be drawn into those constant quarrels. Professional counseling will help you understand the problem and make your home a happier, healthier and more secure place for all of you.

Dear Martha:

IN A RECENT LETTER, a writer said his parents were upset over three years' difference in the ages of a boy and girl who were dating each other. How do you think parents should feel when the girl is twice the age of the boy. What is best to do?

THE FAMILY.

I think the parents of both would have every right to be upset when there is such a tremendous difference, especially as the woman is older. But becoming upset and solving the problem are two different matters. If the boy is mature enough to make his own decisions. The parents can try their best to dissuade him. They can ask the help of their pastor or some family friend whose opinion the boy respects. They can ask him to postpone it at least for a few months, hoping he will change his mind. But in the last analysis, as long as he is of legal age, the decision must be his, and if he decides to marry her—even though it does seem to be a mistake—the parents can only accept the fact and summon the grace and courtesy to welcome her into the family.

IN ANSWER TO Puzled: You should acknowledge in writing every gift you received during your illness, and if you have the time and strength it would be a gracious gesture to write notes to those who took the trouble to select cards for you. Otherwise you could thank them by telephone or the next time you meet them. Your note of thanks for the flowers from your husband's company would go to all employees, if all contributed; otherwise to the employees of the single department which remembered you.

Useless Competition

By Ruth Millett

IN discussing the causes of mental illness a well-known psychiatrist recently indicated that there is a definite tie-up between mental illness and "the individual competitive aloneness of the people."

RUTH MILLETT

teaching our children to measure themselves against others and to be dissatisfied whenever they are outclassed in any way.

We give a husband a feeling of "competitive aloneness" when what he is able to earn is never enough to satisfy our needs, because we are always trying to keep up with someone who has more than we do.

We get a feeling of aloneness ourselves when we envy others their possessions and accomplishments and take no real deep pleasure in all the things we have that we should be thankful for. And we make others feel alone when we are so lacking in good will, compassion and understanding; when we are always tearing others down instead of building them up; when we are ready to pass along destructive gossip or throw cold water on other people's dreams or successes.

We women could do a great deal to cut down on the needless and useless competition in everyday living instead of contributing to it. But first, we've got to learn to be satisfied with ourselves. Then we don't have to push our husbands and children beyond their strength, their talents and their abilities to satisfy our own ambitions.

Designing Woman

Summertime Decorating Lesson

By Elizabeth Hillyer

THERE'S A FEELING that comes with the first warm weather—that everything in the room is too big and heavy, and the walls are closing in.

This brings on a rash of scooping-up everything that's expendable—extra pieces of furniture, somber draperies, big rugs, bric-a-brac clutter—and banishing it from the scene.

There, now. That slightly bare, airy look the room takes on is an enormous improvement. For now, but what about in the winter to come?

THE summer shedding of non-essentials is a good lesson in decorating. The room may look better all year if it's left in this simplified state. Or changed, with less cumbersome furniture, lighter window treatments, smaller rugs, cooler colors.

Interior design today aims point-blank toward making the most of limited space, and in making even less limited room look as spacious as possible. In so doing, furniture goes up on its legs and has other see-through features to reduce its bulk. Windows are never smothered as they once were, but are played up as the means to the enjoyment of light and air, and both designs and fabrics for windows are simpler. Rugs are less than room-size to show waxed and gleaming floor.

And colors change. Instead of the many warm tones that once earned a room the doubtful compliment of being called cozy, colors are fewer and cooler. The same light neutral may spread all over the walls, windows, and floor; and this turns the magic trick of making the room look larger, more effectively than anything else.

The Furniture that's called summer furniture for want of a better name came into all year around use and style importance because it fits air room plans so well.

Look at it now, while it's at the peak of its market, to see how it can help make the pleasant changes for winter, too, that summer has taught.

The Little Woman

Your House as Might-Be Buyers See It

By Clarissa Start

"DON'T stay home while your house is up for sale," a friend warned us. "It'll drive you out of your mind. All those people tramping through and fingering your draperies and sniffing. How can people live like this?" Take my advice, go out, and leave the salesman in charge.

We did that for a couple of Sundays but then came a couple of rainy Sundays and we really didn't feel much like going out and besides we were curious. Who were these people who were touring our castle-on-the-FHA, our suburban triumph of the do-it-yourself era, and finding it not to their liking?

We soon found out, and should you be about to undertake the rigorous chore of selling a house, we pass the information on to you.

THERE WILL BE three kinds of people looking at your house. The ones who find the house enchanting but really are looking for something about $5000 cheaper. The ones who find the price just right but really are looking for something with two more bedrooms and one more bath, and preferably a little more ground, and a neighborhood a little more in the vicinity of the country club grounds. And third, the lookers.

These last are really the most charming and gracious of all. "I've gotten more ideas in decorating from looking at your house," one woman gushed. Trouble is you don't sell many houses that way.

You will find that even though your realtor's ad clearly states the physical properties of the house, people will show up expecting something quite different and will be extremely hurt and pained when they do not find it.

"My goodness, I thought it was a full two-story house with four bedrooms," they will murmur, although the ad specified otherwise. Or, "Oh dear, I thought it was a new house."

SOONER OR LATER you learn to emphasize the good features of your house and minimize the bad. Up to the time you put the house up for sale you hadn't been aware that there were quite so many bad ones. You thought the house was too small or too large or too cluttered or too isolated for your needs.

You soon learn that it has such unspeakable things as small window panes which require painting, ivy which must be removed, and a gigantic shade tree which one looker announced firmly, "I would cut down immediately." ("You should have thrown her out—the very idea," we all said angrily when this was reported.) The children catch on to the routine, too. Our 3-year-old latched onto a little girl whose parents were looking through one Sunday, marched her back to his bedroom, flung open a door, and announced, "Dis is a nice big closet. You can hide in here."

BESIDES THE CRITICS, there are other headaches. The people who don't show up after you've cleaned the house on an hour's notice for their arrival. The ones who take a look at the exterior, shudder, and refuse to come in. The ones who will let Wondering how to give that economical cut of meat savory flavor? Here's a list of seasonings, all good with meat, to choose from: Catsup, chili sauce, bay leaf, all-spice berries, garlic, onion, paprika, soy sauce, tabasco sauce, Worcestershire sauce, oregano, basil.

Savory Flavor

Few Tips on Expressing Appreciation

I may be more blessed to give than to receive, but this is a give-and-take world. Receiving is part of our natural relationship with others just as giving is. Do you know how to accept favors as gracefully as you bestow them?

We all know the person who is always doing something for someone else, but who seems unable to cope with the situation when anything is done for him. This often causes embarrassment to everyone concerned. To make any well-intentioned person uncomfortable is, of course, out of the bounds of good manners as well as charm. Thus graciousness on the receiving end is as important as on the giving.

You want to be the giver as often as you can, but when you are in a position of accepting, do so simply. Don't object or try to refuse when an appropriate service or favor is done naturally and wholeheartedly. Argument is awkward, and it's a rebuff that isn't deserved. Then, too, it is unkind to deny another the pleasure of being generous or thoughtful.

Express appreciation that is definite, but avoid being profuse. Too emphatic thanks can also make others uncomfortable. A more sincere appreciation is expressed differently. It is so much better to remember until later when you can return the compliment with some generosity or thoughtfulness of your own.

Vacation Dresses

Dresses knitted of linen threads are effective in pastel shades for summer vacation needs. Most of these dresses have the low, round neckline and brief sleeves. An occasional dress is designed in the two-piece mode, the overblouse having a convertible collar and short sleeves. These dresses pack well and are suitable for many different occasions.

My Day

U.N. Charter Celebration

By Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK. WHAT a beautiful day last Saturday was for the Armed Forces day parade. I think we all like to do honor to the people who give the greater part of their lives in defending the nation, and I am sure there was great enthusiasm in the crowd that greeted the parade here on Saturday.

I have just had called to my mind again an activity undertaken after the war by the United States Navy Seabees. Since the war these men have kept together and on holidays used their various skills in helping groups which would otherwise find it difficult to put through building programs or camp preparations. For instance, I saw a little notice on the editorial page of one of our metropolitan papers thanking them for help given in connection with the Herald Tribune fresh air camps.

I ALSO was told that the Long Island Seabee unit celebrated Armed Forces day by building a camp for the Nassau County Council Boy Scouts. About 100 Seabees appeared on the evening of May 20 to do this job, and the Boy Scouts were on hand to provide them with living quarters and with meals over the weekend. The Seabees brought along their own hand tools and work started early on May 21.

Early Sunday morning the Scouts and the Seabees attended church services before their work started again and by 4 p.m. the job was finished—64 lean-tos.

This was quite an accomplishment and was typical of the way in which many Seabee units celebrated Armed Forces day all over the country. It was a very commendable way to do it.

IT IS INTERESTING to note that Foreign Ministers Molotov of Russia and Pinay of France are joining Secretary of State Dulles at the celebration to take place in San Francisco, June 20 to 26, in commemoration of the signing of the United Nations Charter. It looks as though there might actually be a meeting of the top ministers during this meeting in San Francisco, so it might become of more vital importance than was originally thought.

With so many important people converging on San Francisco I am sure that many people who really feel the importance of commemorating this significant day will be urging the President to change his plans and spend some part of his time on the opening day or during the session in San Francisco.

PERHAPS, too, as a change of pace the President could find somewhere in the neighborhood where he could go fishing at least during part of the time that he would be in the West. My husband loved fishing, too, and I can quite understand the need for recreation which any President has.

A United States President is sorely burdened and has a right. I think, to all the relaxation he can possibly get. But this is a very important meeting in San Francisco, and one cannot help but hope that it will be attended at least on one day by our chief executive. This country has much to be thankful for in having the U.N. here in our own country and, like so many other countries, we must be grateful for the work which the U.N. has accomplished.

Tasty Tricks

Unless there is a very good reason for thawing foods before they are put on to cook, do not thaw. There have been a number of studies showing that the bacteria count increases during thawing.

HOW OLD IS SHE? The beautiful and charming Mrs. Herbold is one of many Hollywood women who keep their hair young looking with Herbald Pomade. She looks much younger than she really is. Is she 30-40-50-60? What's your guess?

Amazing Creamy Pomade Tones Down Grayness, Hair Looks Young Again

Gray Hair makes you look older than you really are. But you can look years younger by simply using Herbald Pomade as your regular hair dressing. This amazing creamy pomade tones down grayness and makes your hair look young again; like it did before it turned old and gray, by blending in just the right touch of lasting color, while its Lanolin and special fine hair oils groom and condition your hair.

No long complicated directions, no mixing, timing, shampooing. No mess or bother with this clean easy-to-use hair cream. Simply use Herbald Pomade as your regular hair dressing. Rub it into your hair and scalp (as you do any hair dressing), comb it—that's all.

No confusion in finding the right shade, because Herbald Pomade does not come in shades—just one creamy pomade which is right for your hair.

Gray, streaked, drab, mousey hair is toned down so gradually, and blended so perfectly with the natural color of your hair that no one can tell you are using anything but a fine hair dressing.

Men Look Younger, Too
by simple use of Herbald Pomade

Herbold Pomade is not a coal tar dye, tint or rinse. That's why you never have a "dyed," "painted" or "a drastic sudden change in your appearance—or grayness next to the scalp showing—when you use this one and only Herbald Pomade.

So—when your first gray hair appears—or if you are now completely gray—or if your hair has been dyed—start using Herbald Pomade today as your regular hair dressing—and your hair will always look young without a sign of grayness. It's a wonderful hair conditioner because full strength Lanolin and special fine oils correct dryness. Frizzy, damaged, strawy hair becomes soft, lustrous, life-like and young looking when you use this one and only Herbald Pomade.

Don't wait! It's later than you think! Get started today. Convince yourself YOU CAN LOOK YOUNGER. Get Herbald Pomade today at Katz Cosmetics counters. Still only $1 plus tax on MONEY BACK GUARANTEE.

Drain liquid from peas into a measure; add enough milk to make one and one-third cups; add to butter-flour mixture. Cook and stir constantly over low heat until thickened and bubbly. Add drained peas and salmon, including salmon liquid; stir enough to flake salmon. Add salt and pepper to taste. Layer the mixture in a one-and-one-half-quart casserole with the sliced eggs. Arrange onion rings over top. Place in a moderate (350-degree) oven until bubbly-hot and onion rings are browned—15 to 20 minutes.

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE

THEY were supposed to come for you in a fishing boat at 6 this morning," Sam said. "I guess they got delayed."

"Why a fishing boat?"

"To transfer you to a seaplane for Cuba."

Jonie was startled. "Capt. Garcia wants me that bad, to go to all that trouble?" Jonie asked. "He thinks you know too much."

She was still sure that something about Sam was familiar. She had seen him some place. Not on the yacht. She remembered every one of the crew she had seen. Perhaps Sam would let some remark drop that would give her a clue.

"Where were you all night?" she asked.

"In the bunk house," he said, indicating one of the outbuildings. "It's used by fishermen in the season. Nobody here but me now."

"Can't you put that gun down?" Jonie asked. "You make me nervous. I'm not going to hurt you."

"Anybody smart enough to get out of a locked storeroom and safe, ashore can't be trusted," he said. "I'm taking no chances."

"Oh, that's it. You're one of Garcia's gang. You helped unload the arms and then rowed ashore. I heard the oars."

"I don't know anything about arms or Garcia either. Just forget it."

"Well, you're holding me here against my will, and using a gun to do it. That's enough for me. I can make it mighty hot for you when I get back to the mainland. By the way, how far offshore is this island. What's its name?"

"Wait 'till you get back," he said in threatening tones. "In the meantime, answer my own questions. I'm not answering any."

"How long are you going to wait for that fishing boat, to come for me?"

"Until they get here."

"You'll have a long wait. They're not coming," Jonie said.

PERHAPS she could try another approach with the stubborn man, who looked at her with hostile eyes.

"Yes, they will."

"I know they won't. Garcia told me as much. He said when he got those arms aboard nothing else mattered. He was heading for Cuba and then to South America. He doesn't care what I know, or whom I tell."

"Don't be so sure," Sam told her. "Garcia's a hard man."

"He got what he wanted. You'll never see him again. I hope he paid you off."

Jonie saw Sam's reaction to her remark. Then he assumed his poker face again.

"I got my dough. All legal, too."

"No, you didn't," Jonie said, following up on her argument. "Garcia told me he'd pay off his crew in Cuba, that's all. He was giving a big double-cross to everybody else, including you and Pedro and Nina."

"You're lying," Sam snapped. But his face was flushed and Jonie knew that she had hit him where it hurt.

"Garcia never even mentioned me," Sam protested. "In fact, he didn't know me."

"He thought you were just a tourist, watching the arms being transferred," Jonie cried, taunting him.

Sam made a motion as if to strike her. Then he thought better of it. He sat down, scowling at her, still holding the rifle.

Jonie smiled sweetly. "Come on," she said. "Let's be friends. I may know something that will be valuable to you. And you might take me to the mainland and get rid of me, before that seaplane comes back and really goes over this island."

"The plane will come back. You know that. You're on a hot spot. Sam. You might just as well face it. You take me in,

Uncle Ray's Column By Ramon Coffman

IT SEEMS strange to think of fish walking along the bottom of the sea, but certain fish do that, at least in a sense of the word "walk." The fish known as sea robins have fins which serve as legs of a sort. These fins are behind and below the head.

Baby sea robins are so small at the time of hatching that 16 of them, end to end, would cover only one inch. When they grow to full size, they often reach a length of 12 inches.

SEA ROBINS usually stay away from very deep ocean water. Most of those on the western side of the Atlantic are found within close range of the North American coast, from Nova Scotia down to South Carolina.

Oysters, worms and small fish make up the chief food of sea robins. They hunt for victims while moving slowly along the bottom.

If you ask whether any fish can get out of water and walk on land, the reply is "yes." A few kinds of fish can live an hour, or even several hours, while moving about on land.

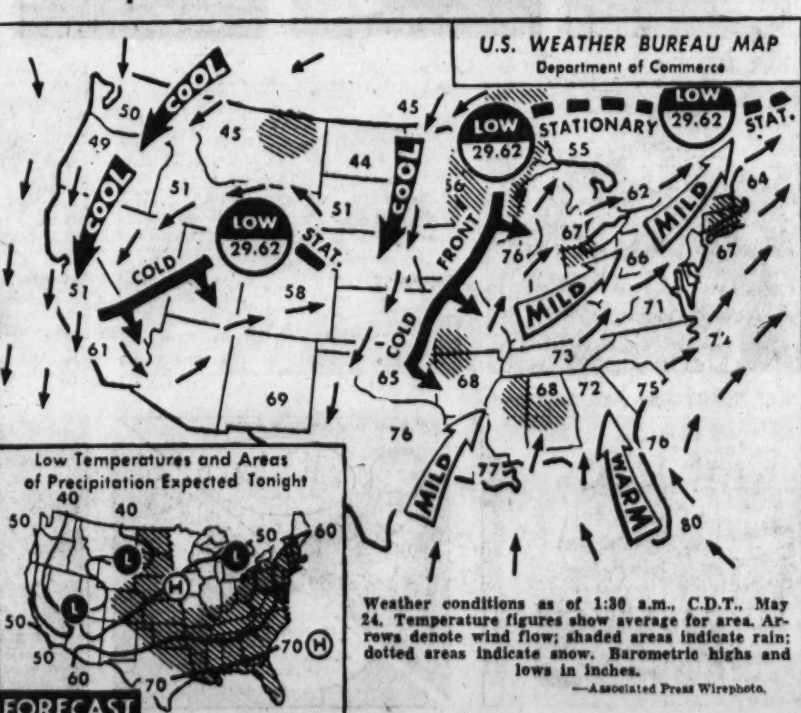

Blennies sometimes walk or skip from one pool to another on a beach. In some places the high tide leaves small ponds in the sand when the main mass of water goes back to the ocean.

BLENNIES are tiny fish. When full-grown, they usually measure from one inch to five inches in length. Besides employing a pair of fins for moving, a blenny flips its tail against a stone, or other object, and in that way is able to make a long skip.

Walking perch (sometimes called climbing perch) live in southeastern Asia, also in lakes and ponds of the East, can climb steep banks, and are able to cross fields. If they move in damp grass, they may live 24 hours while outside of water.

Prospect of Showers as Heat Relief

Summer is coming. St. Louisans realized, as they experienced yesterday their first day of 90-degree temperature this year. It was recorded at 3:30 p.m. Meteorologist Harry F. Walgren reported that the high mark was caused by a mass of hot air that moved in from the South and Southwest. This mass had raised the temperature to 104 in Laredo, Tex.

Hot weather predominated in Missouri. Springfield had the lowest maximum with 80. St. Charles was top for the state with 93.

In spite of the heat, Butler, Mo., received 2.62 inches of rain. In Wichita, Kan., hail stones as big as 2 1/4 inches in diameter fell.

Predictions indicated that St. Louisans need not fear a heat wave for showers are expected intermittently through Thursday, with the weather remaining partly cloudy.

Jonie, she recognized him, from his build and loping run. Sam was the man who had stolen Martha's $25,000 in the trailer at Seaside Gardens.

Suddenly Sam leaped to his feet, and ran to the door, opening it and listening. As he crossed the room, his back to other cans of vegetables. Perhaps a good meal would help thaw out her captor.

She opened canned meat and other cans of vegetables. Perhaps a good meal would help thaw out her captor.
